Tokio Reports Ma's Troops Retreat.

TOKIO, Nov. 18 (Wednesday).—(AP)—A Rengo News agency dispatch from Mukden today said the Japanese occupied Anganchi at 1 p. m.

BULLETIN.

TOKIO, Nov. 18 (Wednesday).—(AP)—Manchurian forces of Gen. Ma Chan-shan were completely demoralized today by the sudden onslaught of a Japanese offensive, said a Harbin dispatch to the Rengo News agency.

Gen. Ma's Chinese troops were retreating in disorder, scattering along the Chinese Eastern railway, with Japanese pressing at their heels, the dispatch said. The Japanese were expected soon to take Anganchi. Rengo's Changchun correspondent said the Japanese had inflicted a severe defeat and were chasing Ma's troops toward Tsitsihar.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Nov. 18.—[Wednesday]—1:10 p. m. Japanese troops in the Nonni river district of Manchuria clashed with the Chinese army of Gen. Ma Chan-shan at 3 o'clock this morning, according to a Mukden dispatch to the Tokio Asahi.

The clash was preceded by firing from field batteries of the Chinese army, the dispatch said, whereupon Lieut. Gen. Jiro Tamon, Japanese commander, ordered a counter attack on the Chinese. Japanese infantry and cavalry forces, the dispatch said, advanced and at 6 a. m. Japanese artillery opened fire on the main Chinese positions.

Chinese Army Reinforced.

Another dispatch from Mukden said that between 3,000 and 4,000 Chinese troops from Anganchi arrived at the first front line between Sanchienfang and Shaohsintun.

This dispatch said Chinese cavalrymen have been continuing their offensive in an effort to outflank the right wing of the Japanese for the past several days. The Chinese were said to have started firing heavily on the Japanese at noon yesterday [Tuesday] and severe fighting was continuing at several points.

JAPAN BOMBS TOWNS

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBIN, Manchuria, Nov. 17.—Japan is dispatching more airplanes, including new giant bombers with a wide cruising radius, to the Nonni river front. The planes are being sent from the Japanese air base at Seoul, Corea, as well as from Japan proper. The Japanese action is believed here to be in preparation for a determined air offensive to drive the Chinese troops north of Tsitsihar, capital of Heilungkiang province.

Reports here tonight said Japanese planes at 11 o'clock yesterday morning dropped six bombs on the town of Fularchi, on the Chinese Eastern railway west of Tsitsihar. One bomb fell near a railway materials building and another near a house where railway laborers were living. All the windows in the house were broken but no lives were lost.

Two Other Towns Bombed.

It was also reported that Japanese planes bombed other towns in the same district, including Ubuchi, where one house was destroyed and several persons killed, and Keilmu. Twenty bombs were said to have been dropped near Chinese troops at the latter place.

This is the first time the Japanese have actually entered the Russian zone on the Chinese Eastern railway, which is owned jointly by Russia and China.

The Japanese newspaper Harbin Times, which is published in the Russian language, declared today that Tsitsihar's fate would be solved from the air. Japan, it said, has ordered several new air squadrons to northern Manchuria to bomb Tsitsihar and other northern Manchurian towns.

Ma Makes Counter Proposals.

Meanwhile, Gen. Ma today replied to the Japanese ultimatum, which demanded that his troops evacuate the Nonni river district.

Gen. Ma's reply said he is willing to withdraw his troops providing the Japanese also withdraw south to the town of Tungping, on the Taonan-Anganchi railway, at the border of Heilungkiang and Fengtien provinces, about 90 miles south of Anganchi.

Gen. Ma makes the condition that

Chilly Blasts to End Balmy Autumn Today

Summerlike temperatures which have caused roses to redden and strawberries to ripen in Chicago in the last two weeks are scheduled to be routed today by cold blasts from the northwest.

J. R. Lloyd of the weather bureau predicted much lower temperatures today, with clouded skies in the morning and clear weather in the afternoon. Indications were that the mercury would fall to 38 degrees, which is near normal for the date. At midnight an unofficial thermometer registered 48 degrees, 19 degrees below the reading of 67 at the sam hour Monday night.

Cold and Snow in West.

Snow lay heavy last night over portions of California, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado. In the northwest the first intense cold of the autumn was reported. In the Yukon region a minimum of 27 below zero was recorded. Storms caused property damage and two deaths in Minnesota and heavy rains fell in the southern cotton belt, breaking a drought of long standing.

Four men, one of them Noah Beery, film actor, who were reported snowbound in the California mountains on Monday, were found safe yesterday.

17 Days of Record Warmth.

Temperatures for the seventeen days of November which have passed are the highest ever recorded at the Chicago office of the weather bureau. The daily mean has been 10.8 degrees above normal. Although yesterday's maximum was held down to 66 degrees at 11 a. m. by intermittent rain, the figure was only 3 degrees under the Nov. 17 record, established in 1917.

	Mean temperature.	Normal.	Departure.
January	32	26.3	+5.7
February	35.8	26.3	+9.5
March	34.8	35.3	—0.5
April	49.1	46.9	+2.2
May	55.6	57.5	—1.9
June	71.8	67.3	+4.5
July	76.4	72.5	+3.9
August	73.2	71.6	+1.6
September	71.2	63.2	+8.0
October	58.8	54.0	+4.8

The year 1931 has been to date the second warmest in the records, only 1921 exceeding it. The accumulated excess temperature yesterday had reached 1,322 degrees for the year, a daily average of 4.1 degrees. Chief Meteorologist C. A. Donnel said that the total excess to this time in 1921 was 1,658 degrees. Similar high temperatures prevailed over most of the country.

The summer months of June, July and August were the second hottest in sixty years, being exceeded only by the summer of 1921. July was the hottest summer month since 1921 and the fourth hottest July of record. September was the warmest of record.

So far this year in Chicago the excess of rainfall over the average over the years for the same period is 5.36 inches.

Mrs. Floyd Keepers of 710 Forest avenue, Geneva, yesterday reported strawberries ripening in her back yard. Mrs. George Luebbe of 3716 Argyle street reported roses blooming. Lilacs were in full bud in Lincoln park and migratory birds were still here.

CHICAGO WHIPS NEW YORK IN NOISE BATTLE

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Chicago's theater hour traffic and the thronging crowds in the heart of the loop section made four times as much noise tonight as all the hurly burly of New York's Times square.

At least, engineers of a broadcasting company, who sponsored a demonstration of radio broadcasting methods and facilities for the benefit of 1,100 members of the New York Electrical society, claimed this and the volumes of sound that roared out of the loud speakers on the stage seemed to support their figures.

For the purpose of the demonstration, two microphones were used to pick up the noises of the theater sections of the two cities.

The Chicago roar flooded the room. That of Times square came on the air, but it was much milder in tone and the roar of traffic was at times subdued to a gentle murmur.

Hiccoughs 10 Days; 'Cures' Clutter Mails

As Ira A. King lies on a cot in the general hospital, gradually becoming weaker from ten days of incessant hiccoughing, suggestions for his cure were pouring in tonight from all parts of the country. The walls of his room were "papered" by letters and telegrams.

Already hundreds of suggestions have arrived, and the frequency of their arrival is increasing. Telegraph offices were swamped with proposals sent by wire, and the postmaster and police department were flooded with letters. Some sympathizers even sent in pills.

Told to Put Coin Between Toes.

Advice ranged from some of the best that physicians could offer to those from believers in charms. A friend in Cleveland told King to put a coin between his toes. From Argo, Ill., came the suggestion that he press his hands behind his ears. There were suggestions from Tampa, Fla., and Los Angeles, Cal., that he be given aromatic spirits of ammonia.

A Boston physician said he had cured the hiccoughs by holding a paper bag tightly over the patient's mouth until carbon dioxide from his breath caused a reaction in his lungs which would stop the disturbance.

From Hartford, Conn., came the information that the eating of a quart of ice cream had cured an 8 day hiccougher. Other suggestions included standing on his head, binding a bandage tightly around around the region of his diaphragm, having him stick his fingers in his ears while he drinks a glass of water.

Musk Has Little Effect.

Some of these suggestions were tried. His physician, Dr. R. R. Black of Mansfield, discouraged, tried the administration of musk, from the musk-deer. It had but slight effect.

A number of fatal cases of hiccoughing have been reported in American annals of medicine and no sure remedy ever has been found, physicians said.

It became almost impossible for King to retain food today. He was given soup, but he could not hold it on his stomach. Injections were given to make him sleep, but the hiccoughing did not abate.

His first attack of hiccoughs was on Nov. 2. The attack stopped a day later. The affliction began again, however, and developed into a violent and painful contraction of the diaphragm.

Bullets with Girl's Aid Balk Bank Robbery

The coolness of a girl cashier and a bank president balked an attempted holdup of the Metropolitan State bank at 2201 West 22d street yesterday afternoon. Four bandits, three armed with revolvers and a fourth carrying a machine gun, fled without loot as the president fired upon them.

With their guns drawn, the bandits entered the bank at 3:30 o'clock. Two pointed their guns at the bank employés, and the other half walked up to the cage in which Miss Helen Kuphas, 20 years old, 3322 South Morgan street, the assistant cashier, was standing.

Girl Gives Alarm.

"Open this door," one of the gunmen ordered. Instead, Miss Kuphas pressed an alarm buzzer with her foot, and, pretending to be bewildered, did not comply with the bandit's command. The buzzer was connected with the Marquette police station near the bank at 23d street and Damen avenue.

When Miss Kuphas did not open the door, one of the bandits fired his revolver into the glass window, then reached his hand through the jagged hole to unfasten the lock.

President Opens Fire.

At this point, John Brenza, president of the bank, came out from an alcove at the front, where he had been sitting unnoticed. He had a shotgun and began firing at the four men, whose backs were turned to him.

The bandit who had attempted to unlock the door hastily withdrew his hand, cutting it on the glass. "Let's get out of here," he shouted. Under fire from Brenza's shotgun, the gang fled out the front door.

The bandits raced away in a sedan with a fifth robber at the wheel. Brenza appeared on the curb just as the squad from the Marquette station drove up. The bandit car, two blocks away, was pointed out to Lieut. James Kerr, whose flivver squad started in pursuit. The bandit car was lost in traffic.

Start Search for Girl.

The police began a search for an attractive young girl, who had been loitering in the bank during the afternoon. The police believe that she was an accomplice.

Although the vaults of the bank were closed, $3,000 was in the cages to cash checks of policemen. A few minutes before the bandits appeared two uniformed policemen cashed their checks and departed.

It was the second time this month that bank employés have frustrated a holdup. On Nov. 6 the alarm buzzers pushed by employés of the Prairie State bank of Oak Park routed a gang of five gunmen, who fired a few shots and fled.

RUM RUNNER GOES OVER NIAGARA IN FLEEING ARREST

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—One rum runner was believed to have gone to his death tonight over the American falls when he leaped from his beer laden craft. His companion was captured at the head of Goat island by immigration border patrolmen.

The captured man identified himself as Mike Pyzyski, this city. He could only identify his companion as "Louie." The head of Goat island is about an eighth of a mile above the falls. When Pyzyski and his companion landed their eighteen foot row boat at the head of the island there were two federal officers awaiting them.

Seeing the federal men, the runners ran into the river toward the American shore. Pyzyski turned back, but his companion continued out into the swift rapids and started swimming.

While one officer held Pyzyski the other attempted to run along the shore, keeping a flashlight playing on the swimmer, but could not.

REVEALS BAIN'S $500,000 LOSS IN STOCK MART

A mass of figures and facts concerning the manipulations of Banker John Bain was made public late yesterday in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg. The judge is seeking to discover assets of John Bain, Inc., a holding company for the twelve Bain banks which closed last June 9.

Former Senator Charles S. Deneen was a witness, but his testimony told only of his stock holdings in the Bain banks and of real estate deals he had made in partnership with Bain.

Tells of Bain Stock Losses.

Harry L. Oppenheimer, a matter of fact public accountant who had made an analysis of Bain's personal books, furnished the evidence which held the intense interest of the court crowd of Bain bank depositors. His testimony revealed:

1. That Bain lost nearly half a million dollars in speculating on the stock market, presumably with depositors' money, in the period between May, 1929, and July, 1931.

2. That Bain, who has insisted that he can yet pay off the depositors who lost $13,000,000 when his banks closed, is hopelessly insolvent.

3. That Bain gave $35,000 in cash as Christmas presents to his sons and son-in-law last Christmas. The sons and son-in-law have insisted that they are now penniless.

Judge Impounds $31,000 Bonds.

At the morning session of court Judge Feinberg was able to seize the first tangible assets for the creditors uncovered since the hearing began. He impounded bonds and mortgages totaling $31,000 in face value, most of them believed to be good.

Mr. Oppenheimer's testimony first disclosed a stock transaction of former Senator Deneen and John Bain. The books revealed, he said, that the two men had bought and sold Sears-Roebuck and Montgomery Ward stock in August, 1929. A profit to Mr. Deneen of $6,414 was shown thereafter, but in July, 1931, this profit had changed to a debt of $906 which Mr. Deneen owed to Bain. The former senator had previously testified that he could not remember this debt.

Then the witness swung into the testimony which drew the first murmurs of the day from about 400 depositors, who had sweltered in the stuffy courtroom for hours. They previously had been kept quiet by the presence of a force of police and deputy sheriffs who searched all for weapons as they entered. This order was given by Judge Feinberg because of threats uttered against the Bain family.

$257,786 Loss in Wall Street.

"Does your examination of Bain's books show his stock transactions on the New York Stock exchange in 1929, 1930 and 1931?" the judge asked.

"It does," replied Oppenheimer. He stated that in the period mentioned Bain speculated in stocks with a resultant profit of $139,990 and a loss of $397,776. The net loss, he testified, was $257,786.

Continuing on instructions of the judge, he revealed that the banker had conducted stock speculations on other exchanges with a profit of $464,457, and losses of $698,402, a net loss of $234,144.

"What was his total loss from all sources in these transactions?" the judge inquired.

The witness then gave figures which led him to the conclusion, he testified, that Bain was "hopelessly insolvent."

Facts on Bain's Finances.

The statement of Bain's assets and liabilities as given by the accountant, as of July 31, 1931, was as follows:

ASSETS.
Loans receivable	$ 98,642
Notes receivable	2,982
Stocks	2,899,908
Bonds	16,725
Real estate	896,927
Mortgages receivable	20,374
Automobile	1,153
Loan due from Charles S. Deneen	906
Miscellaneous	253
Total	$3,148,689
LIABILITIES.
Bank overdrafts	$ 6,740
Bank loans payable	1,494,623
Due to James Peters	97,000
Due to Ray Masson	8,389
Mortgages due	12,000
Due to Lewa company	41,450
Due to John Bain, Inc.	23,000
Collateral trust, John Bain, Inc.	660,160
Total	$2,343,838

Bain's net worth last July, according to his books, was therefore $1,044,851, the witness said. But in his further testimony Oppenheimer said that this meant nothing.

"That net worth is mostly all book value, isn't it?" asked the judge. "Have you formed a conclusion as to Bain's solvency or insolvency?"

Calls Stock Worthless.

"It appears that his liabilities exceed his assets by a very considerable amount," the accountant replied. "There is no doubt that he is insolvent unless the real estate listed as an asset should have an immense value. I have no information as to the value of the real estate. The stock listed as an asset is almost entirely worthless."

Oppenheimer then related a number of transactions in which assets were switched from one Bain company to another. He testified that he had been greatly handicapped in his investigation because no check register or check stubs for the years 1930 and 1931 had been found.

He also revealed that in July and August of this year, after the banks closed, Bain sold a Union League club bond for $1,250 and credited the cash to his personal account, and sold a Waverly cemetery bond for $2,250, turning the proceeds over to his wife, Mrs. Jean P. Bain.

Bain Gifts to Family.

"Have you a record of any gifts by John Bain to members of his family?" the judge inquired.

The accountant said the books showed the following:

Dec. 24, 1929, W. Merle Fisher, son-in-law, $5,000.

Dec. 24, 1930, Leslie Bain, grandson, $11,-672 [including the release of a $6,672 bank account already started].

In September, 1929, Bain gave securities worth $34,000 to members of his family who were not named, according to the books, and in December, 1929, he gave $15,000 to the Susan Bain Memorial fund, Mrs. Susan Bain was his first wife.

The accountant said that the books found did not extend farther back than May 1, 1929. A balance of $5,-830,164 was shown on the books at that time, he testified.

"Was there anything in the books to indicate what that amount was made up of?" inquired the judge. The answer was in the negative.

"That entry would indicate a prior set of books not yet found?" asked Judge Feinberg.

"Yes, sir," was the reply. "I have no information as to where they may be."

DENEEN ON STAND

Former Senator Deneen on taking the witness stand at 11 o'clock at the morning session read in a calm, measured voice from a statement, copies of which had already been issued to the press. This statement revealed Mr. Deneen's stock holdings in the Bain banks and his partnership with John Bain in three real estate deals.

Mr. Deneen testified that he owned the following shares of stock in these Bain banks: 45 West Highland State, 88 West Englewood Trust and Savings, 88 Auburn Park Trust and Savings, 89 Stony Island Trust and Savings, 59 Chatham State, and 53 Chicago Lawn State bank.

The witness then related his interest with Bain in property at 63d street and Crawford avenue, listed as trust No. 215 at the West Englewood bank. His total investments, made in the period from April, 1928, to November, 1928, totaled $16,930, he testified.

Half Owned by Bain.

"Bain owned one-half of the trust and he owned the other half, Mr. Deneen testified.

"Do you know what Bain paid for that property?" asked Judge Feinberg.

"Did you know that Bain gave James Peterson, the owner, only his personal note in the purchase?"

"I did not know that," replied Mr. Deneen.

He continued his testimony, telling details of the trust known as Inlander Mayer Trust No. 883, in which, he said, he owns a one-eleventh interest. He invested a total of $28,700 in this trust, he said, and received $7,225 in a distribution of profits.

The third piece of property in which he and Bain had an interest was known as the Lombard property, a 210 acre tract near Lombard, Ill.

Forty acres of the property have been subdivided. Mr. Deneen purchased a 15 per cent interest for $35,468, he said. Bain owned the remainder of the property.

Questioned by Judge.

Judge Feinberg questioned Mr. Deneen about another property at the northeast corner of 63d street and Crawford avenue, in addition to the one already mentioned, which the former senator and Bain had owned with a number of others. The witness said his interest had been closed out some time ago.

"The records indicate that a distribution of $100,000 in cash was made to you on that property," the judge said. "Of course, you realize we have had difficulty in tracing some of these matters——"

"There was no concealment of records," interrupted Mr. Deneen.

"There was no suggestion of concealment," replied the judge. "Can you get for me from your own records the amount you received in that transaction?"

Promises Records of Deal.

The witness replied that he would have difficulty in finding the matter recorded in his own records. He said he was sure that he could get the information, however, and would gladly furnish it to the court.

The questioning by Judge Feinberg was continued:

Q.—Did you and John Bain have a joint stock securities account? A.—No. I invested with Mr. Bain on only two occasions that I can remember. That was when we bought Sears-Roebuck stock and Montgomery Ward stock.

Q.—Did you know that he had been dealing heavily in the stock market? A.—No. I was away in Washington most of the time.

Q.—Did you know that his losses at one time ran close to $500,000? A.—No, sir.

Asked About Bain Securities.

In answer to other questions, Mr. Deneen said he knew of no securities that John Bain might now possess in addition to the securities he has admitted owning or has pledged with banks to secure loans.

Mr. Deneen revealed that in October, 1930, he settled debts amounting to $25,000 to the Bain banks incurred by his son, Charles Ashley Deneen.

"How did he become indebted to that amount?" asked the judge.

"He was employed for many years by one of the banks," was the reply. "He severed connections in June, 1930."

The judge did not pursue this line of questioning further.

"The records show that you owned 1,467 shares in John Bain, Inc.," said Judge Feinberg. "Did you pay any cash for that stock?"

"I shall be glad to furnish that information for your honor," replied the witness. "It is my impression that as a stockholder in six of the banks I was given that stock."

Recalls Bain's Deposits.

Q.—The records show that as late as July, 1931, John Bain was making deposits in banks, including one for $18,434 in the Continental Illinois bank. Do you know from what source he obtained that money? A.—No. But I understand that our office has cleared up that matter.

Attorney Lippincott, representing the Bains, interrupted to say that this was correct. The explanation of the $18,434 deposit would be made later, he said.

The same questions were asked Mr. Deneen that have been asked most of the witnesses. In response to them he said he had no knowledge of any bank accounts outside of Chicago that Bain might have had; knew of no safe deposit boxes he rented. He had heard of the vast hunting preserve owned by Bain on the island of Lewis, off the coast of Scotland, he said.

About the Mystery Trip.

When questioned about the mysterious trip to Massillon, O., which has caused much speculation in the inquiry, Mr. Deneen said:

"I think when the court completes its investigation it will find that neither Bain nor any of his associates made such a trip. I think you will find nothing."

"Are you sure, senator?" asked the judge.

"Well, you asked my opinion of it," said the witness. "Of course, I know nothing myself about it."

Q.—Do you know of any effort on the part of John Bain to realize on any of his securities? A.—I know he began with a great deal of zeal to realize on his securities and interests in order to pay the depositors.

Wealth Set at $4,200,000.

Q.—Has he any means? A.—I don't know. He told me he'd turn over all his property to his creditors. I take it he meant what he said. He made the statement to a bank 18 months or two years ago that he was worth $4,200,000.

Judge Feinberg then began reading from the list of securities found in the famous "brown package," asking Mr. Deneen if he owned any of the securities mentioned. The witness' replies were "I never heard of it" or "I know nothing about it." At this point Attorney Lippincott stepped up and offered to produce certain securities from the brown package which Judge Feinberg had declared were missing.

"Where'd you get them?" demanded Judge Feinberg.

"They were in the safe when it was examined by Robert Bain," said Attorney Lippincott. "We've had them all the time, but didn't have a chance to tell your honor. You were always questioning us about something else."

"You're willing to turn them over?" asked the judge.

"Our position is the same as it has always been," objected the lawyer. "There are other creditors of John Bain who have a right to them, too."

By this time, however, one of the attorney's assistants had handed the judge bonds valued at $900 in the Englewood Commandery temple.

"Impound these," ordered the judge.

FESS TURNS DOWN WADSWORTH'S IDEA FOR DRY LAW VOTE

Geneseo, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The statement that he would use his influence "to prevent the party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for the repeal of the 18th amendment" was contained in a letter received from United States Senator Simeon D. Fess and made public today by former United States Senator James W. Wadsworth.

The letter from the chairman of the Republican national committee was written in response to a letter from Mr. Wadsworth in which the former senator urged the Republican party to advocate a referendum on the prohibition question. The Fess letter follows:

"I have received your letter of Nov. 12 addressed to me as chairman of the Republican national committee. I assume that this letter is written in good faith, although it has the element of propaganda, which is carried out by the fact that it was given to the press before it was received by me.

"In reply to your specific recommendation that the Republican party recommend the repeal of the 18th amendment I am stating to you that I shall use my influence to prevent the party from committing a fatal blunder in asking for the repeal of the 18th amendment."

In a statement to the Associated Press Senator Wadsworth said:

"The senator seems not to understand the proposal contained in my letter to him. I did not urge upon him that the Republican party recommend the repeal of the 18th amendment. I urged that the Republican party employ the constitutional machinery which would give to the people of the states an opportunity to vote yes or no on the question. Let the people decide."

CENSUS FIGURES GIVE PICTURE OF MELTING POT IN COOK COUNTY

Cook county has 1,198,154 citizens born in this country of white American parents, a classification of 1930 census figures shows. The figures were made public yesterday by the Association of Commerce. The percentage of citizens with one or more generations of American ancestry behind them increased from 28.8 in 1920 to 36.93 in 1930.

The classification of the 3,982,123 Cook county residents listed in the census, according to the native countries of their parents, was as follows:

United States [White]	1,198,154
Germany	458,937
Poland	436,220
United States [Negro]	246,992
Ireland	200,592
Italy	208,356
Russia	177,976
Czecho-Slovakia	173,527
Sweden	161,521
England	132,657
Canada	80,998
Lithuania	72,146
Austria	62,429
Norway	60,517
Jugo-Slavia	56,569

Greece	29,101
Rumania	21,497
Mexico	21,067
France	17,028

All other	56,233

The county, once the hunting grounds of several tribes of Indians, today contains only 246 persons of redskin ancestry, the census takers found.

The lawyer shrugged his shoulders. Similarly other securities were impounded by the court. The total thus seized, which will be available to the depositors, was approximately $21,000.

Former Director of Bank.

Former Senator Deneen, resuming the witness stand at the beginning of the afternoon session, stated in answer to a question from Judge Feinberg that he had been a director of the Stony Island bank of the Bain chain, but had refused reelection in January, 1930, because his work in Washington as a United States senator had prevented him from attending directors' meetings.

Q.—What had you to do with the Drexel-Western Investment company? [This company was taken over by John Bain, Inc.] A.—I do not recall how many shares I had in that company. My recollection is that I purchased some shares before the war.

Q.—Some short time ago Mr. Bain issued a statement in which he said he was sure that he could pay off the depositors 100 per cent. Did you help him make that statement? A.—He came into my office with that statement. I advised him not to make it. I made certain changes, limited phrases. I did not help him make it.

Q.—Did he tell you how he expected to pay them off? A.—He expected the directors to organize companies to take over the securities. He expected the Continental Illinois bank to help him. He believed that he had more than enough assets to meet the demands of the depositors. Then all this publicity came up. It caused a shrinkage in value of the assets and prevented his friends from helping him.

Q.—Why, you know of no value attached to the bank stocks, do you? A.—That depends. Of course, if the assets are not sold advantageously the owners of the bank stocks will have to pay.

John L. Raddatz, a bank clerk, formerly employed by the Foreman bank whose name had been used in the transfer of 700 shares of Foreman bank stock by Bain, was summoned as another witness. Questioning revealed that he knew nothing about the transaction except that his name had been used. Two of his superiors, James S. Rody and V. G. McCloud, will be subpoenaed, the judge announced. The purpose of the stock transfer was not disclosed.

"Did you observe an item of 24 shares transferred to John Factor?" he asked. The witness said he had not and the subject was dropped. The judge did not say whether he referred to "Jake the Barber" Factor now fighting in the federal court to prevent his extradition to England on charges of defrauding British investors of millions of dollars.

8 MILLIONS OF INN OWNER GO TO DESTITUTE

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The estate of Edward Roche, former owner of Roche's beach, in Far Rockaway, was estimated today at more than $8,000,000, all of which will make up a trust fund for the relief of destitute men and women. When the will was filed on Jan. 12, 1931, the estate was valued only at "more than $1,000,000."

The will was admitted to probate after an inquest before Surrogate John Hetherington in Jamaica, Queens. The move had been deferred because of objections to the will filed by cousins of Mr. Roche, Mrs. Anna B. Wild and Mrs. Mary J. Parry of Brooklyn. Their withdrawal from the case enabled the inquest to proceed.

Bandit Is Slain, Grocer Wounded in Gun Battle

A Negro gunman walked into the grocery of Louis King, 39 years old, 2702 Block avenue, Indiana Harbor, last night and demanded cash. King, with hands upraised, walked to his till in the rear, seized his pistol from the drawer, and began firing, simultaneously with the Negro. The Negro fell dead with a bullet in his heart and King staggered out the door with wounds in the shoulder, thigh, and knee. Physicians said he would recover.

Mystery Shot Hits Girl on I. C. Suburban Train

Miss Ruth Hammerlund, 25 years old, 2953 East 81st street, a clerk for the Illinois Bell Telephone company, was riding home on an Illinois Central suburban train last night when a rifle bullet pierced the window beside her and struck her right cheek. The girl made no outcry, but continued homewards, and later called a physician. Police believed that a mischievous boy had fired the shot, which struck the girl as the train passed the 35th street station.

HUNT BAIN BANK OFFICIALS FOR GRAND JURY QUIZ

$40,000 Loan Charged to Director Unpaid.

Detectives from the state's attorney's office were seeking officers and directors of the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, one of the closed Bain chain, last night, to subpoena them to appear before the grand jury tomorrow at an inquiry into the bank's loans.

At the same time Assistant State's Attorney Henry E. Ayers, bank expert of the state's attorney's staff, announced several corrections on the auditor's report, issued on Monday and showing loans of $4,511,383 obtained from the Bain banks by 100 officers and directors.

$40,000 Loan Repaid.

J. F. Jensen, 6316 South Ashland avenue, a director of the West Englewood bank, charged with a $40,000 debt to that institution, has entirely repaid the loan. Moreover, Jensen said, he contracted the loan, not for his personal benefit, but at the suggestion of the bank officers to bolster up the credit of the bank.

Jensen exhibited a letter from Irwin T. Gilruth, receiver of the Bain banks, confirming his version of the loan and complimenting him for his "sacrifice in supporting the institution of which you are a director."

Another of the Bain associates, George T. Murphy, director of the Ridge State bank, who was listed as owing $60,147, actually owes $1,143, an investigation of the record reveals. Murphy's debt, Mr. Ayers said, was confused with that of Dr. George H. Mundt, director of the Stony Island Trust and Savings bank, who owes that institution $65,503.

Owes Nothing to Bank.

Through another error, Valentine Herrmann, director of the Armitage State bank, was named as owing $36,-800. Investigation showed that Herrman owed the bank nothing and that the debt attributed to him should be charged to Hugo S. Hertel, director of the West Englewood bank.

Dr. W. H. Buhlig, John Bain's physician, who borrowed $369,680 from the banks, and who has appeared before the grand jury, refused to make a statement.

"I don't care to be interviewed and I don't care to comment," said Dr. Buhlig. Roy Massena, a law partner of Charles S. Deneen, declined to comment on his loan of $35,755, shown by the Bain bank records.

The only witness before the grand jury yesterday was Charles H. Meecham, secretary of John Bain, Inc., and assistant to John Bain as president of the banks. He gave the jurors "valuable information," Mr. Ayers said. He was reported to have assisted the jurors in tracing poor securities which were substituted for good ones in the banks.

DRUGGAN GETS DELAY IN DEBT TO CLOSED BANK

Terry Druggan, public enemy and gangster, who borrowed $17,000 in unsecured loans from the West Central State bank, now closed, was unable to make a second payment of $2,500 in cash yesterday morning when his case was called by Judge Feinberg. Druggan's attorney, Peter Sissman, was present but Druggan did not appear.

"My client told me that he would be unable to pay today," said Mr. Sissman. "Perhaps he can arrange a payment in a few days." The judge granted a continuance of the case until Friday.

Judge Feinberg accepted as security for an unpaid balance of $167 on an unsecured loan, $200 in board of education scrip offered him by William Shaps, another West Central bank debtor.

WOMAN 'TAKEN FOR RIDE'; BOD THROWN IN DIT

Letters Bare Motive Roadside Tragedy.

As elderly, gray haired woman taken for a ride and slain last n[ight]. Her body, apparently thrown fr[om] car after her skull had been cru[shed] was found in the ditch along [a] street, a little traveled gravel [road] bisecting Worth township. The s[cene] is a dreary waste one-half mile [west] of Cicero avenue.

Early this morning Police Serg[eant] Charles Reynolds of the coroner's [office] found a purse at the scene. [The] purse contained two letters, which [have] apparently established the woman's [identity] and supplied a motive for [the] murder. The letters were directed [to] Mrs. Louise Sulk, one addressed [to] 3014 West Adams street and the [other] to 1723 Wilmot avenue.

The first letter, written by [the] woman's son, Carl Sulk, 1137 [Fifth] street, Green Bay, Wis., upbraided [her] for her persistent demands for m[oney] and for giving the money to [her] friends so they can play big sh[ots]. It was dated last Friday, Nov. 13.

Second Letter Gives Clew.

The second letter, mailed in Chi[cago] at 9 p. m., Monday, signed "Pat [Mother]," and presumably delivered [Tuesday], was addressed to Mrs. [Sulk] at 1723 Wilmot avenue. Although [the] writing was illiterate and almost [illegible], Sergt. Reynolds pieced toget[her] the message which was brief and to [the] point. The message:

"I am disappointed with all [your] excuses. I like woman who is [a] good. If they have money, I like [them]; no money, I don't like."

The body was discovered by [Albert] Gebert, a farmer of Oak Lawn. He [was] at 115th street at 11:30 p. m. [and] noticed the bulky bundle in the [ditch] stopped and approached the [body] which lay face downward.

Fix Time of Crime.

Gebert then notified the Oak [Lawn] constable and the Willow Springs [station] of the county highway police. Patrolmen Charles Zack and Will [Cogle], who had passed the [same] scene at 10 p. m. without seeing [anything] suspicious, were assigned to [the] case.

The woman was wearing a [brown] figured dress, a black leatherette [jacket], gray cotton stockings and [brown] tan oxford. She wore earrings [and] carried a purple parasol.

Although the evidence of [murder] seemed strong, the highway police decided to await the coming of daylight before searching the vicinity for [the] missing shoe and other clews. [Sergt.] Reynolds decided to start the [search] immediately, and came upon the [body] 100 feet from where the body lay.

Seek Disgruntled Suitor.

Besides the letters there were [several] telephone numbers, which police [are] checking in hope of picking up the [trail] of the supposed disgruntled suitor, [Mrs.] Sergt. Reynolds said the [letters] rather cast considerable light on the [woman's] habits. Excerpts from the [letter follow]:

"Dear Mother: It seems the [only] time we ever hear from you is [when] you want money. You wrote [us] letters saying you had nothing to [eat] and it was always lies. You expect [us] to leave my family out in the street [so] your boy friends can play big shot.

"You told me you were going [to] have money from the house in Mo[line]. You don't have to pay a [cent] for eats and you know it. You [are] saying your boy friend to keep [company]. I should think a woman [and] mother the age you are would [know] better than to let those fellows [make] a monkey out of you. Have you [no] respect?

"When I pay you the little I [owe] you I don't want to get another letter with money mentioned in it. Tell [me] how much I owe you and I will send [it] all. CARL."

Following discovery of the letter, Arthur Wendt, Oak Lawn undertaker was called to take charge of the body. It was moved to the county morgue. The inquest was set for 10 o'clock this morning.

WOMAN 'TAKEN FOR RIDE'; BODY THROWN IN DITCH

Letters Bare Motive for Roadside Tragedy.

An elderly, gray haired woman was taken for a ride and slain last night, her body, apparently thrown from a car after her skull had been crushed, was found in the ditch along 115th street, a little traveled gravel road in Worth township. The spot is a dreary waste one-half mile west of Cicero avenue.

Early this morning Police Sergeant Clarence Reynolds of the coroner's office found a purse at the scene. The purse contained two letters, which apparently established the woman's identity and supplied a motive for her murder. The letters were directed to Mrs. Louise Sulk, one addressed to 1138 West Adams street and the other to 1138 Wilmot avenue.

The first letter, written by the woman's son, Carl Sulk, 1137 Pine street, Green Bay, Wis., upbraided her for her persistent demands for money and for giving the money to "boy friends so they can play big shots." It was dated last Friday, Nov. 13.

Second Letter Gives Clew.

The second letter, mailed in Chicago at 9 p. m. Monday, signed "Pat Ferris" and presumably delivered yesterday, was addressed to Mrs. Sulk at 1138 Wilmot avenue. Although the writer was illiterate and almost illegible, Sergeant Reynolds pieced together a message which was brief and to the point. The message:

"I am disappointed with all you mean. I like woman who is some good. If they have money, I like. If not so much, I don't like."

The body was discovered by Arthur Hunt, a farmer of Oak Lawn. Driving on 115th street at 11:30 p. m., he noticed the bulky bundle in the ditch, stopped and approached the body, slide by then downward.

Fix Time of Crime.

Hunt then notified the Oak Lawn constable and the Willow Springs station of the county highway police. Patrolmen Charles Lack and William Wright, who had passed the murder spot at 9 p. m. without seeing anything suspicious, were assigned to the case.

The woman was wearing a brown, tweed coat, a black leatherette rain hat, gray cotton stockings and one red mitten. She wore earrings and carried a purple parasol.

Although the evidence of murder seemed clear, the highway police decided to await the coming of daylight before searching the vicinity for the missing shoe and other clews. Sergt. Reynolds failed to start the search immediately and came upon the purse by the time he found where the body lay.

Ask Disgruntled Suitor.

Aside the letters there were several telephone numbers, which police were starting in hope of picking up the trail of the supposed disgruntled suitor, Ferris. Sergt. Reynolds said the son's letter cast considerable light on the woman's habits. Excerpts from the letter follow:

"Dear Mother: It seems the only time we ever hear from you is when you want money. You wrote many times saying you had nothing to eat and it was always lies. You expect me to have my family out in the street so you boy friends can play big shots.

"You told me you were going to save money from the house in Moundsville. You don't have to pay a dime for rent and you know it. You are giving your boy friend to keep you anyway. I should think a woman at your age would be better than to let those fellows make a monkey out of you. Have you no self respect?

"When I pay you the little I owe you I don't want to get another letter with money mentioned in it. Tell me how much I owe you and I will send it to you.

CARL."

Following discovery of the letters Arthur Wendt, Oak Lawn undertaker, was called to take charge of the body. It was moved to the county morgue. The funeral was set for 10 o'clock this morning.

WORKMAN'S SNAPSHOT OF HIS GIRL WINS HIM $16,500

POISON FOUND IN CHILD'S BODY; TO QUIZ MOTHER

Delavan, Ill., Has a Death Mystery.

Pekin, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A new poison mystery plot turned up here tonight when Coroner A. E. Allen of Tazewell county was notified that a deadly quantity of arsenic had been found in the body of Mildred Mason, 12-year-old girl of Delavan, Ill., near here, who died last August.

Coroner Allen announced he would order the immediate arrest of the girl's mother, who is to be questioned concerning her daughter's death. The coroner said he was also investigating the mysterious illness of Mrs. Mason's son, Henry, 16 years old, and the death of the woman's husband a year ago in Enden, Logan county.

Both Victims Insured.

Both the dead and the father had been insured, with Mrs. Mason as the beneficiary, for $1,000 each, and the insurance money has been collected, Dr. Allen said.

Dr. William V. McNally, Chicago toxicologist, who examined the vital organs of the child, made the report of the finding of the poison.

The child's body was exhumed two weeks ago after neighbors of the Mason family had acquainted the coroner with their suspicions that she had not died a natural death. During the girl's illness the mother refused to allow Dr. Barringer, local physician at Delavan, to have a thorough examination made, the coroner said.

"At that time Dr. Ballinger had no suspicion of foul play," Dr. Allen said, "and he issued a death certificate giving the cause of death as general peritonitis."

Girl's Brother Ailing.

Harry Mason, the only other child remaining with the mother, who had moved her family to Delavan following the father's death at Enden, has been suffering recently with abdominal pains, Dr. Allen learned. He will have the boy tested for arsenic poisoning.

COUPLE BURNED BY ALCOHOL.

Joseph Faliksha, 45 years old, and his wife, Julia, 40 years old, were severely burned last night when a can of alcohol was ignited in the kitchen of their home at 4637 South Wood street.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—A young English textile worker, Charles Powell, of East Didsbury, Manchester, was awarded here today the grand prize of $10,000 in the world international amateur photographic competition, in which there were over 3,000,000 entries. Powell's picture, which had already won the British national grand prize of $5,000 and the British class award of $500, is a snapshot of his fiancée on a cliff of the Isle of Man at a moment when the setting sun was hidden by a cloud bank. The picture also received a class award of $1,000, bringing Powell's total winnings on the single snapshot to $16,500. The jury consists of representatives of eight nationalities.

RUSSIAN POLICE RAID FOOD SHOPS; GRAFT REVEALED

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Nov. 17.—Raids on co-operative food shops in Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Kharkov and other Russian cities by the gaypayou, or secret police, have revealed widespread graft in the sale of foodstuffs to holders of ration cards, according to the Moscow Pravda. The newspaper states that more than 400 officials have been arrested and that fifteen have thus far been executed.

An investigation of the soviet government's bureaucratic marketing system began a month ago. Daily disclosures of corruption have been published by the Pravda and other newspapers.

The raids followed disorders of factory workers, who protested against the government opening 700 stores permitting the free sale of food and clothing to all, including those not permitted to buy at co-operatives. The prices were 10 to 20 per cent higher, and it was discovered that many co-operatives were secretly sending their supplies to private shops.

Officials said the board would meet here about Nov. 20. On that date Fall becomes eligible for parole. A large number of cases are before the board, but it was said the action might be expected shortly.

STARTS SECOND 6 MONTH TERM IN ALIMONY ROW

Otto Roubal, 5439 West 24th street, Cicero, a salesman, began his second term of six months in the county jail for nonpayment of alimony yesterday. He was released on Sept. 22 after serving a similar sentence.

Yesterday Roubal was arraigned before Judge Joseph Sabath on the motion of Mrs. Helen Roubal, who has won separate maintenance. She charged that he owed her $500.

"I'd rather you sent me back to jail," Roubal told the court. "I just spent one term there because I'd rather go there than pay her. You might just as well give me another."

"I'm an obliging person," Judge Sabath said. "I'll enter the order."

Asks Tokio to Explain 'Certain Treaty Rights.'

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—It was a case of the doctors disagreeing when the league of nations council's hearings on the undeclared war in Manchuria were resumed today, and the best that can be said is that up to a late hour tonight the patient—world peace—was still ailing and its condition stationary.

What the council disagreed on is a long story. It is easier to tell what it agreed on. This was simply that it is impossible to continue discussing compromise formulas or any effective negotiations until the Japanese state just which treaty rights they consider essential to their security in Manchuria. This is the fundamental point of the whole dispute, but it has never been clearly stated in the eight weeks during which the dispute has been going on.

Briand Submits Ultimatum.

The Japanese have been insisting all along that recognition of "certain treaty rights," is the very essence of the security problem. The council today decided it is time to find out just what treaties the Japanese are referring to, and at a secret session this morning, from which both the Chinese and Japanese delegates were barred, it authorized Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, to demand elucidations from the Japanese.

In accordance with this mandate, Briand summoned Kenkichi Yoshizawa, Japanese representative to the Quai d'prsay this evening and delivered an ultimatum. It is understood that after an hour of thrust and parry between east and west, Yoshizawa promised he would cable his government tonight for a clear statement.

Also on the credit side of the day's activities was a report that Ambassador Dawes, American observer at the council's meetings, and Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, are contemplating invoking the nine power pact signed at the Washington conference in 1922, to force a settlement of the imbroglio.

Wrangle Over Secrecy.

The rest was deep gloom. One of the principal causes of dissension among the negotiators is the star chamber methods adopted by the "big five." Several nations, including the Chinese, are protesting against the secrecy and demanding that the controversy be threshed out in public.

A majority is against this, however. One of the principal negotiators explained that it is useless to set a date for a public meeting until an agreement has been reached. The negotiators are crippled, he said, when they are held answerable for their words by public opinion back home, thereby rendering a compromise impossible.

"We will never make any progress as long as there is verbal warfare among the peacemakers," he declared.

Quarrel Over Other Points.

This was not the only hint thrown out today of disagreements among the empires. The council members are supposed to be absolutely impartial when arbitrating a neighbor's disputes, but many hints are being dropped that they are finding this particularly difficult in this case because all the big powers have personal interests in China.

It was reported tonight that Gen. Dawes, who previously had seemed impressed with the Japanese claim that they are merely protecting their interests in Manchuria, got a very different light on the trouble today from Dr. Alfred Sze, Chinese representative. Dawes had a busy day today and he seemed tired and ruffled tonight.

The negotiations still are swinging around two centers—Briand and Dawes. Each received visits from Dr. Sze, and each then proceeded to work on the Japanese, Gen. Dawes trying to swing the opinions of his friend, Ambassador Matsudaira, and Briand talking turkey to his pal, Yoshizawa. Gen. Dawes tonight also held a conference with Rene Massigli, French expert.

The Chinese delegation today received a cabled resolution from the Kuomintang congress at Nanking declaring in favor of war on Japan in case the league fails down.

PICTURES JAPAN AS STARTING ROW SHE CAN'T FINISH

Dr. Moulton Sees Hazards in Manchuria.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

DR. MOULTON. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

This is the way Dr. Harold G. Moulton, president of the Brookings institute and former professor of economics at the University of Chicago, looks at the present crisis in Manchuria.

Dr. Moulton, who has spent two years in an investigation of Japan's economic and financial position at the request of the Japanese minister of finance, spoke yesterday before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations at a luncheon at the Palmer house.

Population Increase Is Burden.

From 1920 to 1929, he said, Japan had a period of extraordinary expansion and was able to absorb and support her population in a rising standard of living. The population is about 65,000,000, and the increase has been a million a year for the last decade. With the end of economic expansion the population problems became one of acute concern. Under the present situation 500,000 new workers must be given employment each year in Japan. The population increase is one each 15 seconds, or faster than the entire merchant marine could carry them away if given this task.

Dr. Moulton then took up Japan's colonial history. He showed that both Formosa and Corea had not proved an outlet for population and that they were an economic burden.

"What of Manchuria?" he asked. "They have had twenty years of development there. It has not proved a population outlet. There are only 200,000 Japanese there out of a population of thirty million.

"Manchuria is like our middle and northwestern states, largely a wheat growing country. Japan lives largely on rice. There is coal in Manchuria, but the Japanese have sufficient.

Sees Disadvantage in Seizure.

"My conclusion is that the possession by Japan of Manchuria is of secondary economic importance. Japan would be at permanent disadvantage through seizure and permanent occupation.

"The Japanese people cannot migrate. They cannot compete with Chinese and Corean labor. Their great problem is to find employment for their people at home. This cannot be in agriculture. It is only possible in an increase in manufactures. Her outlets for manufactured goods are in Asia, in China and India. Her only opportunity is to manufacture finished products by skilled labor for sale abroad.

Action of Military Group.

"This is recognized by most of the members of the parlimentary government. Any possible gain in Manchuria would be more than offset by losses in trade with the rest of China. The Chinese boycott is a very serious thing.

"Despite all this we have the existing situation. Japan is in Manchuria. What is the explanation? Japan does not have parliamentary government in our sense of the term. All power finally centers in the emperor. The military took this action."

WINS $109,269 SUIT

JUANITA C. HANSEN.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Juanita C. Hansen, an actress, today won a verdict of $109,269 against the Hotel Lincoln of New York City by a decision of the Court of Appeals. Miss Hansen brought suit against the hotel on the ground that a defect in the plumbing caused her to be scalded while taking a shower bath and so ruined her career.

The action was first brought in the Supreme court in Westchester county, where a jury returned a verdict of $167,000. The Supreme court set the verdict aside, however. A decision by the Appelate division reduced the award to $100,000 with interest.

MAN DEPOSED BY JAPAN TELLS HIS SIDE OF DISPUTE

Chang Says Tokio Aims at Control of Manchuria.

Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian war lord, member of an old ruling family and successor in his late father as governor of Manchuria, has written this article giving his version of the trouble in Manchuria. Chang was deposed by Japan as Manchurian governor at the beginning of the present dispute.

BY CHANG HSUEH-LIANG.

(Chinese governor of Manchuria.)

[Copyright: 1931: By the Associated Press.]

PEIPING, China, Nov. 17.—(AP)—I was convalescing from typhoid fever at the Rockefeller hospital here when the Japanese launched the invasion of Manchuria.

The Tokio government has declared it is dealing with local incidents and has no intention of encroaching on the territorial and administrative integrity of Manchuria, but they have overthrown the national government administration in the regions they are occupying.

A Japanese spokesman has emphasized that Japan is particularly determined that I shall not go back to Manchuria. This hatred is based solely on the fact that it was I who elevated Manchurian matters from a purely local to a national plane, compelling Japan to deal with the central government instead of, as heretofore, with local officials.

Claims He Is Still Governor.

The effect of this change must be obvious. It is indicated by attempts to set up puppet governments at various centers where such efforts hitherto have ended in failure.

The recent attempt to smuggle the former Manchu emperor into Manchuria and to pretend that it is the popular wish that the Manchu dynasty be restored can be described only as an insult to the world's intelligence.

My relations with the national government have not changed. Peiping is my headquarters as vice commander in chief and here I am carrying out the duties of that office and directing affairs in Manchuria, although all negotiations concerning the present crisis are and will be conducted by the Nanking government.

Holds Japan Responsible.

The banditry now rampant in Manchuria developed under Japanese instigation and if bandits attack their troops they themselves are responsible.

The Japanese have said they have a force of less than 14,000 to oppose 300,000 fully equipped Chinese, and that this warranted extension of their occupation.

But when the league decided that Japanese troops must be withdrawn into the railway zone, the Japanese said it could not be done because there was not an adequate Chinese force to take over. One is justified in asking what became of the 300,000 Chinese regulars so persistently talked about.

There are, in fact, not more than 80,000 armed Chinese troops in the whole of Manchuria and these are not on war footing, for the Japanese seized arsenal depots as well as the funds of Chinese banks and means of transportation.

SEIZE 2 ON LOAN SHARK CHARGES IN OFFICE RAID

Police from the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office yesterday raided the offices of the Leonard Finance company, 111 West Jackson boulevard, and arrested two men on a charge of violation of the state small loan law. The raid was made on the complaint of Lieut. Edward Ennis of the New York Central railroad police.

Those arrested were Harry Leonard, 444 Roslyn place, a partner in the concern, and Raymond Ashbacher, 2223 Clifton avenue, an employé. Both were released on bail of $200 each. They will be arraigned this morning before Judge Donald McKinlay in Municipal court.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald Thompson, who questioned the men, said Leonard asserted that his receipts and records were sent to a partner in Atlanta, Ga., whom he refused to name. Prosecutor Thompson pointed out that in many loan shark raids it has been discovered that the leading partner maintained offices in Atlanta.

Lieut. Ennis said he had borrowed $25 last April for which he signed a wage assignment agreement for $27.50 to cover a two weeks' period, making an interest rate of 240 per cent a year.

SHOOTS KIN BY ACCIDENT.

Loren Scoville, 715 Grace street, was shot in the left leg last night when a revolver was accidentally discharged in the hands of Leroy Hunt, 3047 West Congress street, his brother-in-law, while they were in the basement of the Hunt home.

WARDEN OF JAIL PRESENTS PLEA TO SAVE BELL

Warden David Moneypenny of the county jail yesterday presented his plea for executive clemency in behalf of Frank Bell, convicted murderer, to Gov. Emmerson and W. C. Jones, chairman of the board of pardons and paroles. Clemency is asked for Bell because he exposed a jail break plot. It was announced that the governor would give his decision later. Assistant State's Attorneys Walker Butler and Ross Lee Laird appeared at the meeting to oppose any change in Bell's sentence. Bell was sentenced to death for the murder of Chris Patras, a restaurant proprietor. His accomplice, Richard Sullivan, was executed some time ago. The jail warden based his plea on the contention that if Bell's life was not saved it would have a tendency to prevent jail inmates in the future from exposing attempted jail breaks.

DISCOVER STOLEN ART TREASURES IN BURIED TIN CANS

MOSCOW, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Costly art treasures were restored to the world today following the discovery of five noted paintings buried in tin cans in two places in Moscow.

The pictures were stolen from the Moscow Art gallery in 1927. They are the picture of Christ by Rembrandt; the "Ecce Homo," by Titian; the "Holy Family," by Correggio; "St. John, the Evangelist," by Carlo Dolci, and "The Scourging of Christ," by Pizzaro.

The tins were found sealed and the pictures were covered with a special composition to protect them from damage. The Titian was damaged slightly from damp, but it is to be restored by experts. Several persons have been arrested, including a painter named Kokorev.

JAPANESE OPEN DRIVE; ARTILLERY LAYS BARRAGE

Aim Blow at Main Lines of Chinese.

Gen. Chang Hai-peng, Chinese rebel leader, who is supported by the Japanese as the next ruler of Heilungkiang province, shall not interfere with the operation of the Taonan-Anganchi railway.

Reserves Right to Send Troops.

Gen. Ma, in his reply, reserves the right to send troops south of the Chinese Eastern railway, which is owned jointly by Russia and China, along the Taonan-Anganchi railway in event bandits create disorders.

Considerable uncertainty exists here regarding the interpretation of the Japanese ultimatum. It is believed here that the Japanese meant that Gen. Ma's troops must be withdrawn from Tsitsihar.

Meanwhile, winter today closed in on the battle front. A heavy snow fell in the Nonni river district and a bitter cold wind swept down from the Siberian plains. The Nonni front is a particularly bleak section, with no protection for the soldiers.

Nanking Repudiates Boy King.

NANKING, China, Nov. 18.—[Wednesday.]—(AP)—China will regard any Manchurian government headed by Huan Tung, the former boy emperor, as a "seditious institution," and will repudiate all its acts, the Nanking government declared today in a note to the league of nations.

The note was sent after reports had been received that the former emperor, who has been living in Tientsin as Mr. Henry Pu-yi, had been taken to Mukden, Manchuria, where he was to be enthroned.

"Since Japan's forcible occupation of various places in Manchuria, the Japanese military authorities have frequently instigated or utilized rebels and other undesirable characters to disturb peace and order thereabouts, as well as organizing illegal bodies to usurp administrative powers under the protection or duress of Japanese troops," the note said.

"It has been lately reported that during the recent disturbances in Manchuria, created by rioters who made use of the Japanese concession as their base of operations, the deposed emperor, Henry Pu-yi of the defunct Manchu dynasty, was kidnaped and escorted by the Japanese from the concession to Mukden for the establishment of a puppet government there with him as emperor.

"The national government has already declared through the league of nations that the governments of friendly powers and the Chinese government and people will not recognize any such illegitimate institution so established in Chinese territory.

"In the event of the establishment of Pu-yi at Mukden the Chinese government will regard it as a seditious institution and as an unfriendly organization of the Japanese government.

"All actions of such a government will be repudiated by the national government and the entire responsibility for such actions will be laid on the shoulders of Japan."

BOARD ANOTHER DAIRYMAN IN WAR OVER MILK

Predict Arrests in Quiz on Cattle Burning.

arrests were reported yesterday to be imminent in the investigation of the incendiary fire which last Friday destroyed the dairy herd of Isaac Lantz on his farm near Plainfield in Will county. Lantz had withdrawn from the Pure Milk association and was selling his milk as an independent.

State's Attorney Hialmar Rehn of Will county questioned five farmers, neighbors of Lantz. Mr. Rehn announced that he had acquired several important clews and expressed belief that the vandals responsible for the burning of Lantz' 43 cows, two horses, and a mule might soon be in custody.

Another Asks Protection.

Meanwhile Sheriff Oliver Flint of Kane was called upon to give protection to another independent Will county dairyman, Jay R. Butler of Day Lawn. Butler, who has developed a retail milk route in Ridgewood, a Joliet suburb, as Lantz had in Plainfield, told the sheriff he had heard similar threats within the last two days that, unless he abandoned his milk route, his herd would suffer the same fate that Lantz's did.

Persons already questioned by Deputy Rehn are James H. Stewart, John Harvey, Alex Harvey, and Robert Thompson, all of Kendall county, which adjoins Will county on the west, and Frank Patterson of Plainfield, Will county. Mr. Rehn declared that all five were "friendly" witnesses, in no way suspected of responsibility for the fire.

Other witnesses will be taken to Joliet for questioning today. Deputy State Fire Marshal P. E. Bertram spent the afternoon driving through the countryside serving subpoenas.

Hub Mare Arson Evidence.

Further evidence supporting the clew provided by the Lantz cat, Hannibal, which turned up with its fur drenched with coal oil on Monday, was obtained yesterday when Deputy Bertram investigated the ruins of the fire. Among the debris in the stable he found a glass jug, apparently the container of the combustible fluid spread by the incendiary.

In the milk house, where fire broke out while a bucket brigade was trying to save the barn, the deputy found a quantity of a blue crystallized substance, apparently a corrosive or combustible. The jug and crystallized fragments were to be subjected to chemical analysis.

Following a directors' meeting of the Aurora local of the Pure Milk association at Aurora, Joseph R. Lies, brother of the local, of which Lantz and his brother formerly were members, issued a statement "resenting" insinuations that differences between Lantz and the association were at the bottom of the arson plot. Lies posted $500 reward, subject to the approval of Prosecutor Rehn, for information leading to the arrest of the barn burners.

Meanwhile Will county authorities intimated that the scope of the investigation might be broadened to include the entire Pure Milk association, the organization of 13,400 farmers which holds a monopoly on supplying milk in Chicago and sixteen cities of the metropolitan area.

The authorities are said to be interested in learning how the Pure Milk association, with the dealers' associations, have been able to maintain a price of 13 cents a quart in Chicago and Aurora in contrast with such prices as 10 cents a quart in Milwaukee, 11 cents in St. Louis, 7 cents in Manitowoc, Wis., and 6 cents in Waukesha, Wis.

It was reported that W. C. McQueen, president of the association, and Don C. Geyer, $12,000 a year general manager, may be summoned for questioning.

LONDON POLICE CRACK HEADS OF JOBLESS THRONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Police, using their batons, charged a crowd of 500 unemployed demonstrators in Shoreditch, a poor district in London's east end today. The marchers were on their way to the town hall to protest against the cut in dole payments. Several were treated at hospitals for head injuries. The jobless total on Nov. 9 totaled 2,682,924, or a drop of 27,020 from the previous week and a decrease for the sixth consecutive week.

LEAVES ESTATE TO HER FRIEND, JUDGE JARECKI

Mrs. Anna Dzinkowski, 80 years old, 1816 Armitage avenue, who died on July 7, 1930, left her estate of $4,000 to her "good friend," County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, it was disclosed yesterday. The woman's will was admitted to probate by Assistant Probate Judge George P. Weiss. Her property consisted chiefly of the home where she had resided for 20 years. Judge Jarecki had befriended Mrs. Dzinkowski for years, it was learned, having acted as her adviser after she came before him in a case in the county court.

WALSH BECOMES CORONER AFTER BUNDESEN QUITS

Indorsed by Democrats for Next Campaign.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Frank J. Walsh was elected coroner by the county board yesterday afternoon following the resignation of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, city health commissioner, who has held both positions since April but has taken only one salary, that of the coronership.

The 13 Democratic commissioners voted unanimously for Mr. Walsh, the only negative votes being cast by William Busse and George A. Miller, the two country town Republican members. The new coroner was inducted into office immediately, after a brief speech.

"I shall continue the existing policies of the office," Mr. Walsh said. "The people elected Dr. Bundesen and it is only fair in serving out the unexpired part of his term to retain intact the scientific methods of crime detection he has established, including ballistics and the staff of medical experts. If they are as good as claimed they ought to be made permanent anyway."

Few Changes in Personnel.

"As to the personnel there will probably be few changes, but wherever they are made I shall accept what recommendations are made by the organization so long as the efficiency of the department is not impaired."

Coroner Walsh is one of the young old timers in the Democratic organization. He has just turned 50 and he used to be a wheel horse in the days of Roger Sullivan and George Brennan. He served eight years as criminal court clerk and during the Wilson presidential regime he was naval officer of the port of Chicago.

For more than 20 years he has been committeeman of the 17th ward. In addition Mr. Walsh is the only cow puncher among the Democratic committeemen. He has a 300 acre cattle ranch in South Dakota.

Indorsed for Next Campaign.

An hour before the county board met, the Democratic committee held a full house meeting at the Hotel Sherman, at which Mr. Walsh was indorsed as the unanimous choice for the one year vacancy created by the Bundesen resignation, and also for the nomination next April for the full term.

The brethren blew off considerable steam about the Democratic chances next year, and it was decided to open the campaign officially Saturday, Jan. 9, with a Jackson day luncheon at a dollar a plate. Senator James Hamilton Lewis is to be chief orator.

LEGION PLEA FOR DRY REFERENDUM TO GO DIRECT TO CONGRESS

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The American Legion's resolution favoring a referendum on the prohibition question will go to the national congress, under a decision reached here today, without specifying whether it favors a vote on repeal of the 18th amendment or on modification of the Volstead law.

The national executive committee of the legion so decided at the closing session of a two-day meeting here upon recommendation of a subcommittee on legislation. The subcommittee's recommendation was that the form of the referendum be left to the congress if it was received favorably.

The legion's executive committee, after a heated discussion, passed the question of American adherence to the world court on to the standing committee on foreign relations and declined to act on it.

ATTACK VERBAL WILL OF DYING AUTO VICTIM

A verbal will made by a dying man a few minutes after an automobile accident in which he was fatally injured was contested before Oscar S. Caplan, assistant to the probate judge, yesterday. The auto victim was Edward Harz, 28 years old, of Palatine, who died on Sept. 9 after bequeathing his $15,000 estate to his fiancée, Miss Cecile Zeiser, 1635 Greenleaf avenue, a teacher in a Wheeling, Ill., school.

The contestants were Harz's parents, Edward and Martha, and his sister and brother, Cecelia and Elmer, who asserted that he was affected by an anesthetic and was not in full possession of his faculties when he made the will.

Yesterday several witnesses testified that Harz had said: "Cecile, I don't believe I'm going to recover. I want you to have my car and everything I have." Judge Caplan continued the hearing until Dec. 1.

HACKETT LOOKS AT 3 SUSPECTS IN KIDNAPING CASE

James Hackett, Blue Island gambler who was kidnaped last year and paid a large ransom to gangsters for his release, viewed three suspected kidnapers yesterday at the state's attorney's office. The men, Michael Trant, 2312 Hillock avenue, and Michael and Frank Sullivan, brothers, of 2907 Eleanor street, were arrested on Monday by Lieut. William Cusack.

Hackett appeared especially interested in Trant, who has served a federal penitentiary term for counterfeiting. He did not make a positive identification, but said that he would return today with Mrs. Hackett. He thought she might be able to identify Trant as one of the men to whom she paid the ransom.

Efforts were made during the day to have John J. Lynch, part owner of a racing news service, who was kidnaped in August, view the three prisoners. He did not appear.

Trace Reports Former King of Greece Seeks Divorce

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Reports published abroad that former King George of Greece planned to seek a divorce from his wife, the former Princess Elisabeth of Rumania, lacked confirmation here today. Rumanian circles professed to have no knowledge of any such intention on the part of the former Greek king.

GRANDI'S VISIT REVIVES DEBT REVISION TALK

Starts Parleys Today with Hoover.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Ways and means of facilitating the preliminaries to the approaching Geneva arms limitation conference will be discussed at length tomorrow when President Hoover and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, get together at the White House to discuss world-wide economic conditions and mutually important problems.

The impression gained in many quarters today was that as a result of the Hoover-Grandi conversations the ground work may be laid for turning next year's arms reduction conference at Geneva into a general world parley at which all questions bearing on world peace and prosperity would be opened up for discussion. Economic and financial topics would be on such a program. One view expressed was that an attempt will be made to have revision of the Versailles treaty included as a topic.

Debt Note Sent to Paris.

A new factor was injected into the situation with the revelation that the state department had sent a dispatch tonight to the American embassy in Paris, clarifying the attitude of the United States government toward the question of revising inter-governmental debts and reparations.

It was explained that French officials and the German ambassador to Paris, Leopold von Hoesch, were approaching an agreement concerning reparations and desired more information concerning the American attitude. It was said that since the joint statement of President Hoover and Premier Laval, in which it was stipulated that any movement for revision must be initiated in Europe, a score of messages attempting to make clear the American position have been forwarded to Paris.

State department officials maintained that officially the American government cannot recognize an interdependence between reparations and debts, and declared that this attitude has been upheld in the messages going abroad.

Talks with Hoover Today.

Signor Grandi and the President were to have begun their conversations today, but the meeting was deferred until tomorrow, when the White House learned of previous engagements made for the Italian visitor by the state department.

During conversations today with Secretary Stimson and in an interview with newspaper men Sig. Grandi took occasion to call attention to current moves toward disarmament and to express his belief that arms cuts constitute today's most important world problem.

At his press conference Sig. Grandi took the position that the league promoted armaments building truce already is in effect despite the fact that not all the interested nations have signified their intention of entering into a holiday. He asserted that "the practical results of the truce, above all in the moral field," have been achieved.

"We think in Italy," he said, "that the question of disarmament is the most important question existing now in the relations between countries, and that it is high time for everybody to reach some practical result.

The Arms Truce.

"It is for this that during the last assembly of the league of nations I proposed a truce in armaments as a beginning, as a demonstration of good will by everybody. Of course, the proposals so made by the Italian government were more drastic, more specific, but we might say that the practical results of the truce, above all in the moral field, have been achieved.

"And if some result has been achieved, we cannot forget that we attained it because all nations—first of all the United States—supported, strongly supported, this idea. Therefore, I may say that the truce is really an American-Italian idea."

The reference to the building holiday as an American-Italian move aroused considerable speculation, in view of the fact that the Hammond vindication board which investigated the Navy league's startling charges against President Hoover stated flatly that this government had not suggested to Italy that that government suggest the truce to the league.

Encouraged by this statement, newspaper men asked Sig. Grandi for his views on war debts and reparations.

In reply Grandi called attention to a speech made by Mussolini in 1922, when Il Duce stated that war debts and reparations were dependent upon each other and should be scaled down.

HAS A BUSY DAY

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Italy's bearded foreign minister, Dino Grandi, chatted today with America's bearded Chief Justice Hughes; gave his Fascist salute over the Unknown Soldier's tomb; rejoiced that his youngsters, in Italy, piped a loving "hello" over the trans-Atlantic telephone; drank tea with the press, and ate Vermont turkey for the second time in two days with Secretary of State Stimson in the Spanish patio of the Pan-American building.

He climbed the stairs to his guest room at Woodley, the Stimson estate, late tonight, declaring that he very much liked this versatile America.

America, in her turn, seemed very much pleased with this versatile Italian.

If the anti-Fascists were not pleased today, at least they were placid. There were no hostile demonstrations; not even one catcall. Scores of police, huddled here and there for the guest's protection, found their task the easy job of telling the curious "That's him, the one with the beard," so that the curious might applaud.

Grandi Smile Everywhere.

So Signor Grandi smiled wherever he went. Smiled and was disposed to talk. While his dark-eyed wife, Signora Antoinetta Grandi, smiled and was silent. Conversationally, she keeps the traditional twelve paces in the rear of her more vocal husband. This is partly because Italian women do not go in much for publicity; largely because this particular Italian woman is supersilent.

While Sig. Grandi was meeting the press his wife was out sightseeing with Mrs. Stimson. Signora Grandi had not accompanied her husband to Arlington earlier in the morning, but had slept late. Then she had telephoned back home to talk to their six year old son, Franco, and to their four year old daughter, Simonetta. During her morning's motoring she went shopping and bought several presents for the children.

The Grandis' day rounded out this evening with the formal dinner which the Stimsons gave to forty-six at the Pan-American Union building.

FEARS HIGH TAX BURDEN PERILS RELIEF PROJECT

Ald. Clark Doubts Citizens Can Meet Bills.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Ald. John S. Clark [30th], chairman of the council finance committee, pointed out yesterday a disadvantage in the tax program of Gov. Emmerson's revenue conference, which he deems so serious that he fears it may wreck the plan.

ALD. CLARK.

"Briefly, the conference," said Mr. Clark, "has overestimated the ability of real estate owners to pay taxes in 1932 and 1933, unless there is a quick return to prosperity.

"This year Cook county real estate has paid $141,000,000 in taxes and is still short of paying its assessment by $61,000,000. In the face of that the revenue conference program, as I interpret it, demands that real estate pay $253,000,000 next year and between $242,000,000 and $284,000,000 in 1933. Those are my own rough estimates. I shall have the staff of the finance committee to do some reckoning and shall submit their estimates to the revenue conference."

Ability to Pay Is Issue.

"The purpose of the governor's conference is to reestablish the credit of the local governments," said Ald. Clark. "That requires the payment of taxes, and the big question is how much can the people pay."

Ald. Clark estimated taxes against real estate for 1930 at $225,000,000, because of the increase in tax rates and valuations. The revenue conference plan calls for the payment of 1930 taxes for the state, schools, bonds, and interest on March 1 next. This is estimated by Harris S. Keeler, director of the bureau of public efficiency as 55 per cent of the total taxes. The remaining 45 per cent is to be paid in five annual installments with 6 per cent interest. The first installment of the remainder is to be paid Feb. 1, 1933.

Gives Estimates on Bills.

The last session of the general assembly provided for the payment of general taxes in two installments, and fixed the dates. Under that schedule the first half of the 1931 taxes will be delinquent Sept. 1, 1932, the second half on Feb. 1, 1933. The first half of the 1932 taxes will be delinquent July 1, 1932, and the second half on Dec. 1, 1933.

"With that ground work," said Ald. Clark, "this is the way the plan will work out: Fifty-five per cent of the estimated $225,000,000 real estate tax for 1930 is $123,000,000. That is to be paid March 1. Mr. Keeler estimates that 40 per cent of the remainder will not take advantage of the installment plan for 1930 taxes. That is another $40,000,000, or a total of $163,000,000 on March 1.

"The 1931 valuations on real estate will be decreased. Assume they are cut 25 per cent, but the tax rate at the same time will go up five per cent. Then the net reduction from the 1930 taxes will be 20 per cent, or $45,000,000. Cook county real estate will be called upon to pay $180,000,000, on that basis. One half of that amount, or $90,000,000, is due Sept. 1 next. This added to the $163,000,000 due March 1 next, will require real estate to pay $253,000,000 next year, which is $100,000,000 more than real estate has paid this year.

Predicts Burden for 1933.

"Now consider the burden on real estate in 1933. The last half of the 1931 taxes, or $90,000,000 is due Feb. 1 that year, also one-fifth of the unpaid 1930 taxes, which adds another $12,000,000. On July 1 the first half of the 1932 taxes is due. That is, let us assume, $90,000,000 more. Then the second half, or another $90,000,000, of the 1932 taxes, is due Dec. 1. There is a total of $284,000,000 that real estate of the county will be called upon to pay in 10 months of 1933, minus deductions which may be made in the new, income, tobacco and truck taxes. This offset is estimated by Douglas Sutherland, secretary of the revenue conference at 15 per cent, or $40,000,000.

"Therefore, real estate will have $242,000,000 to pay in taxes during 1933, if the offset taxes are collected."

ALDERMEN HOLD UP EFFICIENCY EXPERT'S REQUEST FOR $30,000

J. L. Jacobs, efficiency expert, was blocked temporarily by action of the city council finance committee yesterday from obtaining $30,000 for his survey of the city hall. After learning that the sum sought is an addition to the $50,000 voted recently for this purpose the aldermen postponed action.

The money was to be provided through a transaction common in city hall financial practices at the end of each year. This is a transfer of money from one appropriation to another. The money for Jacobs was to have been taken from the appropriation for interest on tax warrants and placed in the mayor's and controller's contingency fund.

In discussing a transfer of $8,000 between funds in the police department to pay for the services of Bruce Smith, police expert, two members of the committee criticised the portion of the police reorganization plan which provides for the appointment of inspectors.

"It is folly to place policemen in the inspectorships," said Ald. James B. Bowler [25th]. "I'll vote to put civilians in those jobs but not any one now connected with the department."

"I'm against the division of power created by the inspectorship system," commented Ald. John Toman [23d]. "It will be easy then to pass the buck."

The committee agreed to lease free of charge to the federal government a site at the airport on which the government intends to erect a hangar at an estimated cost of $35,000.

Bedraggled 'Yellow Kid' Wins Freedom in Court

HOLD UP OFFICE IN MICHIGAN AV.; FLEE WITH $3,000

Three armed Negroes entered the offices of the DeLaurence company, mail order merchants at 179 North Michigan avenue, late yesterday afternoon and after terrorizing the owner, his wife and two employes escaped with $500 and jewelry valued at $2,500.

The robbers compelled Harold Hackney, colored delivery boy, to lead them from the first floor to the offices, which are on the fourth. There the owner, Lauran DeLaurence, Mrs. DeLaurence and Josephine Janesek, a stenographer, were counting the day's receipts.

DeLaurence gave up the $500, of which $300 was in foreign currency, and a diamond stud and a ring. From his wife $15 and jewelery valued at $500 were taken. The robbers tied the victims with wire before leaving.

"A woman's life is simplified by this housekeeping soap," says

Mrs. Robert E. Peacock

Whether you merely "speak to the maid" or do the work with your own hands, housekeeping is a master profession. Specialists in this business—Chicago's society women, with budgets in the thousands of dollars—are frankly telling their clever methods with soap. This is what Mrs. Peacock says:

"I entertain so frequently that my house must constantly radiate freshness from woodwork to curtains. My linens must be always spotless; my china and glassware always sparkling.

"One general order—'Use nothing but American Family Flakes in my home'—saves me hours of household supervision; keeps everything shipshape for every occasion.

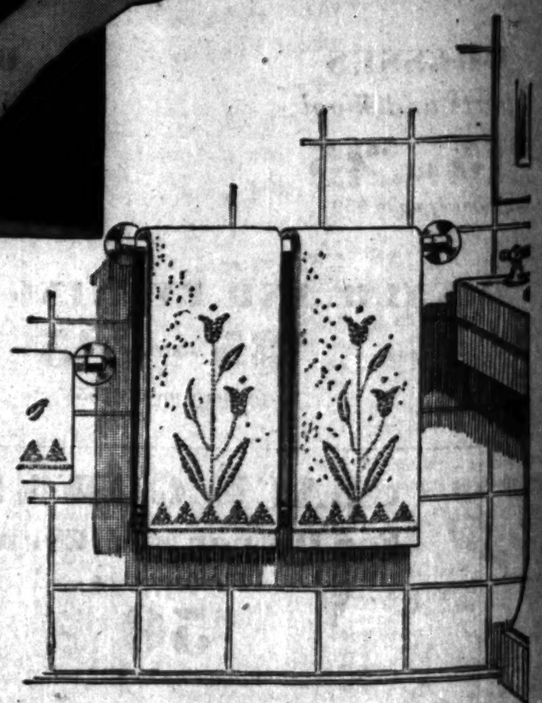
"If I were a bride on the smallest budget, I couldn't be more concerned about the wear and beauty of my things. Soap can be their worst enemy. The least impurity or harshness—and away goes color, luster, beauty and all.

"Even my sheerest chiffon stockings wear endlessly when laundered in American Family Flakes. I wouldn't think of trusting my costliest things to any but this all-pure soap."

Simplify your housekeeping—save dollars in the extra wear and beauty of your washables—keep your entire house looking its brightest and freshest with the least possible effort—and spare your hands the drying effect of harsh soaps—by using only pure double-sudsing American Family Flakes. Use it in laundering, in dishwashing, in every household-cleaning task. It's the double-suds that makes the difference. Your first boxful will show you why.

Mrs. Robert E. Peacock

—wife of the president of C. D. Peacock & Co., jewelers; world traveler, opera patron, Service Club charter member, Drama League officer, prominent society hostess, and the proudest of grandmothers, though you'd never, never guess it to look at her. Mrs. Peacock's exquisite apartment overlooking Lincoln Park is filled with objets d'art and gorgeous fabrics picked up in the romantic places of the world. To care for these priceless things she says: "American Family Flakes is the only household soap permitted in our kitchen and laundry, because we know we can safely trust it with our costliest things."



The Flakes—double-sudsing—the only soap trusted with the costly laundry of 4 out of 5 Gold Coast women.

The Cake Soap—double-sudsing—for 90 years used by more Chicago women than all other laundry soaps combined.

Two years ago a group of motor and plane engineers set o flivver airplane. They designed a ially new motor and then built they consider the ideal plane ar the motor. Now, they say, the fl airplane is perfected.

Exhaustive tests on both the n and the plane have been comp and they are being assembled in small factory of the Herren nautical corporation, 200 James s in Barrington. Maj. R. W. Schro who has supervised the building o flivver plane, says he believes it put flying within the means of average man.

Weighs 475 Pounds Empty.

The flivver plane is not a pou glider, or even in the light airp class. Although it will weigh o only 475 pounds, and 950 pounds loaded, the builders say it is str to perform all the maneuvers manded of much heavier planes sell for $4,000 and more. The fl originally will sell for $1,650, b even as it is placed on a produ basis it is expected that the pric be lowered to about $1,000.

Further, Major Schroeder says flivver will fly on common autom gasoline, which costs only ha much as aviation gasoline. It' speed is put at 100 miles an hou it will cruise at 85 miles an hou 340 miles on one load of fuel, s gallons.

The secret of the flivver plan cording to the builders, lies in motor, which embodies all of developments in combination w considerable reduction in the ber of moving parts.

The motor was perfected by liam R. Beckman, vice presid the Herren company in charge engineering.

Beckman was assisted by H. Kay Steele, his associate in the son Outboard Motor and Duese companies, who is secretary-trea of the Herren company, and W Herren, president of the com Trent Fry is test pilot for the pany. Claire Lirated, former flyer, designed the plans.

Air Cooled Motor.

The new motor is described four cylinder radial air cooled It differs mainly from convent radial motors by having no v The pistons perform the work o valves, letting the gas in and pu the exhaust out. Also, each stro the pistons results in an explo contrary to the usual four method of explosions every strokes.

"This four cylinder motor," Md. Schroeder, "is the equivale an eight cylinder motor. It will als with no more noise than a board speedboat's motor."

The flivver is a two place, ta open biplane with a 24 foot spread and 19 feet 8 inches ov length. Herren said it would be for demonstration in ten days a Harbor. Within two and on months it is expected that prod will be on a two-a-day basis a Barrington factory.

NEW MOTOR

Front (above) and three-quarter views of the new type motor developed for the flivver plane by the Herren Aeronautical corporation in Barrington. This motor, with only four cylinders, is said to have the smoothness of an eight-cylinder motor—because of a propeller gear—and high power, because of a supercharger. It is expected to revolutionize the field of small pleasure aircraft. It is only 25 inches, or the size of a steering wheel, in diameter.

CLAIMS HE DID NOT KNOW HE HIT PEDESTRIAN

Motorist Is Arrested in Damaged Auto.

A south park motorcycle policeman saw a sedan strike a man at the outer drive and 56th street at dusk yesterday. The car did not stop, but Policeman W. P. Conners overtook the driver at 51st street.

The side of the car was dented, the window beside the driver was shattered, and the motorist himself was bleeding from a gash on his hard inflicted by a glass splinter, according to the policeman.

"Why didn't you stop after you hit that man back there?" Conners asked.

"What man, officer? I didn't know that I struck any one. I didn't know a thing about it," the driver replied.

Take Victim to Hospital.

The driver identified himself as A. H. Weinstein, 5746 Harper avenue. Returning to the scene of the accident, the policeman and his prisoner took the victim to the Illinois Central hospital. Unconscious from a skull fracture, the man was partially identified from papers found in his pockets as Byron McManus, 40 years old. Weinsteth's wound was dressed and he was placed in a cell at the Hyde Park police station.

Ernest Kuester, 30 years old, of Arlington Heights, a farmer, was instantly killed yesterday when his truck skidded on the wet pavement under a railway viaduct at 39th and Halsted streets and crashed into a street car. He was thrown against one of the pillars. Half a dozen passengers on the street car were shaken up.

This death and three others yesterday raised the toll for Cook county since Jan. 1, to 1,120. The victims:

Fred Morris, 46 years old, 1642 North Clark street, a salesman. Died in the Alexian Brothers hospital of injuries suffered earlier when his automobile collided with another at Wellington avenue and Paulina street. The other driver was Herman Plattner, 2903 North Hoyne avenue.

George Zoulek, 26 years old, 4749 South Paulina street. Crushed while uncoupling a trailer from a truck in the yards of the Brighton Park Lumber and Materials company, 3722 South Maplewood avenue. He died in St. Anthony's hospital.

George Fletcher, 40 years old, Negro of 3603 Indiana avenue. Killed when he stepped from a safety island at 63d and State streets, brushed against a moving truck, and was crushed beneath the wheels. The driver was Nick Dlujko of Loganaport, Ind.

Claire McGee, 41 years old, owner of the Dahlia Gardens, a nursery on Green Bay road, three miles north of Waukegan, was seriously injured yesterday when another machine crashed into his automobile near his home. Four school children, who also were passengers in the car, escaped with bruises. The other driver was Benold Ross, 1641 Bloomingdale road.

Two steps to reduce auto deaths were taken by the city council traffic committee yesterday. The committee decided to draft an ordinance requiring the periodic inspection of all automobiles in the city and recommend it to the city council for passage. The committee also voted to expand the police traffic division to give it city-wide supervision. Traffic outside the loop is now handled by the district captains. Ald John A. Massen [48th], is chairman of the committee.

30 Face License Charge.

Fifty Chicago motorists will be arraigned before Municipal Judge Frank M. Padden in the Traffic court tomorrow on charges of using license plates of other states on their cars to evade the purchase of Illinois licenses and Chicago vehicle tags.

The motorists were rounded up by Fred Fischman, city superintendent of licenses.

In the case of Abraham Niedelson, 4109 West 13th street, who was charged with using an Indiana plate, Judge Padden yesterday assessed a fine of $25. Niedelson also was ordered to appear in court again on Dec. 3 and show a receipt for an Illinois state license.

Railroad Man Wins $700 Damages Against Navarro

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Moving pictures which Ramon Novarro, film star, caused to be taken of Harold E. Wisdom, railroad man, playing baseball and riding horseback, resulted in a jury granting Wisdom a judgment for $700 damages to his automobile instead of $50,500 damages to himself, as Wisdom had asked in a suit growing out of a collision with Novarro's car. Wisdom had testified he received spine injuries which unfitted him from playing baseball and horseback riding.

DIES OF FALL INJURIES.

Harry Bells, 54 years old, Loyola hotel, 59 South Des Plaines street, who fractured his skull when he fell at Halsted and Madison streets on Nov. 17, died in the county hospital yesterday.

STATE INCOME TAX ADVOCATES STEAL A MARCH

Two-Thirds Majority Clause Dropped.

duction by John M. Peffers, Republican of Aurora, of 93 bills, each of which would reduce an existing tax rate by 20 per cent or one-fifth.

Other new measures introduced were a 2 per cent general sales tax bill, which its author, Sol P. Roderick, Chicago Republican, said would produce $100,000,000 annually and pay 74 per cent of the cost of the public schools of the state, and three bills by Benjamin Adamowski, Chicago Democrat, to authorize insurance companies to buy tax anticipation warrants.

The speakers at the afternoon hearing were Earl C. Smith and John C. Watson, president and statistician respectively of the Illinois Agricultural association. President Smith is a member of the executive committee of the governor's conference and Watson was the expert who made the studies on the new revenue bills and the bills providing for the distribution of the receipts from the proposed taxes to the school system of the state for the relief of real estate taxpayers.

Among those who joined in the bombardment of questions, which was directed almost entirely at Watson, included Minority Leader Michael L. Igoe, Elmer J. Schnackenberg, John M. Lee, James P. Boyle, Sol P. Roderick, Raymond T. O'Keefe, and Mason S. Sullivan of Chicago, and several downstaters, including Frank W. McClure of Abingdon, F. W. Lewis of Robinson, and Sol Handy of Marshall.

Tobacco Figures Questioned.

In the discussion of Watson's estimate that the tobacco tax of 20 per cent would produce an annual revenue of $16,000,000, Representative Lewis produced figures showing that ten tobacco tax states, with a combined population of 16,000,000, collect only $8,543,000 in this form of revenue. Watson said that some of these states tax only certain forms of tobacco, and that his estimates were made on figures from states where all forms of the weed are taxed, as is proposed in the pending bill.

Representative Sullivan protested that if the bill passed the purchaser of a package of cigarets now selling for 15 cents would pay 18 cents for it and that of that amount 9 cents would be for taxes, 6 cents levied by the federal government and 3 cents by the state.

Representative Handy wanted to know why the conference had not proposed a tax on chewing gum and said that tomorrow he will introduce a bill providing for such a tax.

About Corporation Taxes.

Schnackenberg broached the more serious question of the omission of corporations from the income tax bill. Watson said it was done because a tax on corporations would constitute double taxation, since both the corporation and the stockholder who receives its dividends might be taxed on the same money and since corporations already pay a state franchise tax.

Roderick wanted to know what would prevent a man with a large income from establishing a merely legal residence in another state, thereby evading the tax. McClure asked why the bill does not provide for the taxation of incomes beyond the $25,000 point.

"We don't want to drive the recipients of big incomes out of the state," replied Watson.

Louis Alterie, Ex-Chicago Gangster, Wins Acquittal

Glenwood Springs, Col., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Louis [Diamond Jack] Alterie, one time head of the Janitors' Union of Chicago and henchman of Dion O'Banion, was acquitted by a jury today of a charge of assault with intent to kill. The state brought the charge in connection with allegation that he had fired three shots at a trio of men fishing in Sweetwater lake last spring.

$48,668 NATIONAL BANK EMBEZZLER GETS 18 MONTHS

Bertram W. Sporieder, 4337 North Springfield avenue, 27 years old, one time auditor and bookkeeper of the Terminal National bank, was sentenced to 18 months in the government reformatory at Chillicothe by Federal Judge John P. Barnes yesterday for stealing $48,668 from the bank. He pleaded guilty to misapplication of bank funds and making false entries on the books.

The money was taken between April 17, 1930, and Oct. 13, 1930. Evidence was presented by Assistant United States District Attorney Owen A. West to show that Sporieder operated his scheme by discounting fictitious notes, using the money to buy stock and then putting up the stock as collateral. Quick sale of the collateral by bank officials after they discovered the theft reduced the bank's loss to $25,000.

Prosecutor West called the attention of the court to a charge of embezzlement against Sporieder in 1922. This was an alleged theft of $1,800 from the Fidelity Trust and Savings bank, for which the defendant was never prosecuted.

Lloyd Hamilton "Shows" Himself Back in Hospital

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17.—(AP)—For several weeks Lloyd Hamilton, film comedian, was in a Hollywood hospital, his left leg broken as the result of a traffic mishap. He was released a few days ago to hobble about on crutches.

Last night he visited his actor friend, Rex Lease, and, on departing, undertook to demonstrate to Lease how he could walk. He started for his automobile. The crutches collapsed and the actor fell, breaking his right leg.

He was returned to the hospital.

SENATORS TALK ECONOMIES, BUT SHY AT PAY CUT

Show Little Liking for Job Ahead.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Aversion to the job ahead of it characterized the senate's attitude today, when it settled down to the first serious work of the special revenue session.

HAROLD KESSINGER.

"Economy" was the word most frequently used in the three hour meeting, but when it was put to the members in a way that hurt — through a bill that would cut their salaries 40 per cent—they shied away and talked of other things. Thus, they were unwilling to advance the bill to second reading and speed its passage, preferring to refer it to the revenue committee, where all financial measures, including the tax conference program, now rest.

Senator Harold C. Kessinger [Rep., Aurora] was author of the bill that cut so deep. In order to be consistent, he said, he also introduced a bill to cut the salaries of elected state officers,—governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, and others—by 25 per cent, and wants the senate to find a way to cut the wages of all state employés by 10 per cent.

"You didn't always have this $3,500 compensation," Kessinger reminded his colleagues. "You increased your pay 25 per cent during the gilded era, in 1927, when times were good. You are paid more now than any other legislators in the 48 states. When a government finds itself unable to pay governmental expenses, then that government must cut and why shouldn't you take your share of it?

"Let me quote from the letter of an Illinois taxpayer," continued Kessinger, taking a sheet of paper from his desk. "'The officeholders have not felt the pinch, but the taxpayer does.'

"These salary cuts are not exorbitant. The purchasing power of the dollar has risen as commodity prices declined and even if your state employé received a 10 per cent cut he would still have more for his money than he did three years ago. If you need to be impressed further with the seriousness of this situation let me tell you that the legislatures of ten other states are meeting, right at the moment, to consider economy measures and financial relief."

Not a Gesture, He Says.

Minority Leader Thomas J. Courtney [Dem., Chicago] seconded Kessinger's appeal and moved that the bill be placed on second reading without reference to a committee.

"Why this horse play?" interjected Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago]. "Why all this for a saving of $150,000 a year?"

"Is this a gesture, Senator Kessinger?" inquired Adelbert H. Roberts [Rep., Chicago].

"It is emphatically not a gesture," replied Kessinger. "Why shouldn't we take some reduction ourselves? I'm not definitely committed to the amount specified in my bill; perhaps it should be 25 per cent or 30 per cent. But I am convinced of one thing—none of you senators is going to suggest that the cut be more than I have suggested."

The debate shot back and forth across the chamber for some time, ending when Senator Henry M. Dunlap [Rep., Savoy] moved to lay Courtney's motion on the table and refer the bills to the revenue committee.

This motion carried.

The revenue committee, rather than the committee of the whole, as is customary, will consider all financial bills, the senate decided. This came about through a resolution written by Roy C Woods [Rep., Chicago] to increase the membership of the revenue committee to include all senators. It passed without a dissenting vote, and tomorrow was set for the period in which Douglas Sutherland, secretary of the Civic federation of Chicago, and also of the governor's tax conference, will explain the Chicago bills in the program to the senate.

That there is no one in the state's house of lords willing to be a spirited champion of the program seemed evident this morning when Minority Leader Courtney took pot shots at it in a resolution and also in remarks supporting the resolution, without being challenged.

Wants Rejected Suggestions.

The document, which was placed on Lieut. Gov. Sterling's desk until tomorrow, praised the industry of the conference members, but requested that they transmit to the senate all "information, remedies, and suggestions for tax relief made to them during their deliberations, together with their reasons and conclusions for not inclosing such proposals."

"All of us should be convinced," said Courtney, after the clerk had read the resolution, "that in its 33 sessions over a period of four months a number of suggestions must have been presented to the conference.

No senator rose to defend the program and Courtney's resolution will be considered tomorrow.

Another resolution which was debated at length came from Senator Earl B. Searcy [Rep., Springfield], who wished a joint committee to confer with the Supreme court upon the constitutionality of the proposed income tax.

Searcy also introduced a bill seeking to establish a fixed tax of 50 cents per $1,000, face value, of all intangibles owned by Illinois citizens. This tax would be paid annually and would be receipted before intangibles could be sold or transferred to another party.

MALONE ASSAILS GRAFT AS CAUSE OF FINANCE ILLS

"Reckless squandering" by tax spending bodies was attacked by William H. Malone, candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, in a speech last night at the Richard street Methodist church in Joliet. Addressing a meeting of business men, the former chairman of the state tax commission declared "the graft ridden taxing system is responsible for reducing the state to financial chaos."

"Illinois, with one-sixteenth of the population, pays one-tenth of all the taxes in the United States," said Mr. Malone.

"Where does our tax money go? Illinois tax bills for all purposes in 1930 were over $300,000,000, and the 1931 bill will be even higher. Of this amount nearly $250,000,000 is levied by the federal government, $105,000,000 by the state, and $425,000,000 is collected by local taxing bodies.

"Money spent in government is nonproductive. It is to be expected that business of all kinds would suffer from this constant drain. Until this leakage is stopped by a reduction of taxes, the recovery of business is bound to be retarded. Reckless squandering, combined with an unequal, unjust, and graft ridden system of taxation has resulted in the breakdown of the finances of the tax spending bodies. I regard economy in public administration as a vital factor in restoring prosperity."

BUTLER DOOMS G. O. P. IF MISSING POPULAR APPEAL

Suggests 14 Life Savers for 1932 Platform.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Speaking at the National Republican club tonight Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university, predicted the doom of the Republican party, unless it adopts at its national convention next year a sound and definite national program of wide popular appeal.

He presented fourteen points as a guide for the platform builders. Foremost, he urged repeal of the eighteenth amendment and a downward revision of the tariff.

Dr. Butler declared there has never, in reality, been in existence a Republican national organization since 1912, the year of the Bull Moose exodus.

"No United Party Now."

"A situation has therefore come to pass," Dr. Butler said, "in which there are millions of Republican voters, and while the name Republican is a word to conjure with in many sections and localities, there is no dominant and unified Republican party.

"The Republican party seems now to be where the Whig party was in 1852-'56. It has a fine tradition, has a splendid constituency, but just now it appears to lack both unity, capacity and courage to deal with the grave problems of the moment. The Whig party failed and the Republican party was born of its failure. Let us ponder well the lesson of what happenings has to teach.

"The first task of the Republican national convention of 1932 should be to make possible and to invite a liberal forward-facing, unified, national wide Republican party that will offer to the people a program so sane that there will be tens of thousands of those who at present call themselves Republicans, leave the party ranks, there will be ten of thousands of those who are not now Republicans who will come in to take their places.

Offers Some Plans.

Among recommendations with regard to Republican platform declarations, Dr. Butler offered the following:

"Unconditional repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return to the

Dr. Butler declared there has not, since there has been in existence a Republican national organization since 1912, been a year of the Bull Moose exodus.

"To Unite Party Now."

"The task which lies therefore closest to us now," Dr. Butler said, "in which, while there are millions of Republican voters, and while the name Republican is a word to conjure with in many sections and localities, there is no coherent and unified Republican party.

"The Republican party seems to be in the position where the Whig party was in 1852. The Whig party failed and the Republican party was born of its failure. Let us ponder well the lesson that history has to teach.

"The first task of the Republican national convention of 1932 should be to make possible and to invite a broad forward-facing, unified, nation-wide Republican party. That will depend on the people's program. If a sound one, there will be tens of thousands of those who at present call themselves Republicans, leave the party ranks; there will be ten of thousands of those who are not now Republicans who will come in to take their place."

Offers Seven Plans.

Following recommendations with regard to Republican platform declarations, Dr. Butler offered the following:

"Constitutional repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return to the states of the police power involved in the handling of the liquor problem.

"Reconstruction and downward revision of tariff schedules.

"Balancing of the federal budget, first, through rigorous economy in making appropriations, and, second, through the imposition of such taxes primarily upon the accumulated wealth of the country, as may be required to meet the necessary expenses of government year by year.

"Constant and wholehearted cooperation on the part of the American government with agencies and institutions, such as the league of nations, the permanent court of international justice at The Hague, and the bank for international settlements at Basle.

World Problems.

"Examination in international conference of the whole question of reparations and intergovernmental debts.

"Immediate steps to disarmament, to translate into practice of civilized nations, the professed view of the governments under pressure of public opinion.

"Establishment in the several states of a system of social insurance, primarily at the instance of industry and with state supervision if that be needed, to safeguard men and women against the risks of modern industry, including unemployment and against deprivations attendant upon illness or dependent old age."

"Believe me," Dr. Butler said, "the year of 1932 will not be a very good year for shirking issues, for sonorous platitudes, or for what is called pussyfooting. He who carries water on both shoulders may end by finding no water has been entrusted to him to carry."

"Judge, I [illegible]d. I have nothing. Please [illegible] to jail. I will be sure of [illegible] shelter—and it will be warm [illegible]."

Said Nellie Kennedy, 50, in court for the sixty-third time on a charge of intoxication:

"Judge, I know you're going to send me to jail. While I'm away, let this poor old lady stay in my home."

Said Magistrate Sabbatino:

"Mary Brecken, take charge of Nellie Kennedy's home. And take care, too, of Nellie Kennedy."

PAYS PROFESSOR WAGE; LIBERTY UNION DROPS SUIT

Baton Rouge, La., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The American Civil Liberties union today announced it had dropped its proposed suit against Louisiana State university to recover the year's salary of Dr. John Earle Uhler, dismissed by the university as professor of English for writing the novel "Cane Juice."

A statement issued by the union, which took up Dr. Uhler's case several weeks ago, said the university had "evaded" the legal action by complying with all requests on which the action would have been based.

The salary which the university agreed to pay, representing Dr. Uhler's services until the end of the college year next June, was announced as approximately $4,000.

Uhler was dismissed from the L. S. U. faculty when the board of supervisors decided that "Cane Juice," the plot of which was laid on the university campus, was an unfair reflection on the institution.

'WET' NOMINATED FOR VACANT SEAT OF 'DRY' IN N. JERSEY PRIMARY

Elizabeth, N. J., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Donald H. McLean, Elizabeth lawyer and subscriber to the anti-prohibition principles of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow, won the Republican nomination to succeed the late Representative Ernest R. Ackerman, a dry, in today's primary in Union and Morris counties. McLean led Kenneth G. Hand, who, alone of the four candidates, campaigned as a dry, by a 2,000 plurality.

Percy H. Stewart, unopposed candidate for the Democratic nomination, also has expressed himself as favoring a change in the 18th amendment.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Six men who underwent a two day trial today won acquittal of criminally libeling the memory of the late E. L. Doheny Jr. and Doheny's secretary, Theodore Plunkett. The men operated a peep show and among their exhibits were photographs of young Doheny and Plunkett, who were shot to death here two years ago. A coroner's verdict found Plunkett shot Doheny and himself while the secretary was mentally ill.

The court's decision means that Crowley will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison for the murder of Frederick S. Hirsch, Nassau county policeman, unless Gov. Roosevelt exercises executive clemency.

CONGRESS WILL SIFT CHARGES OF WASTE BY CO-OPS

Secret Loans by Farm Board Under Fire.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The impending congressional investigation of the federal farm board and the disposition of the 500 million dollar revolving fund for farm relief will include, it was learned today, an examination of the expenditures and other financial operations of the Farmers' National Grain corporation of Chicago and other coöperative marketing associations which have received loans of government money.

Western senators and congressmen have received numerous circumstantial accounts of extravagance and waste in expenditure of government funds by various coöperatives. According to these stories numerous notorious farm relief racketeers are on the pay rolls of the coöperatives at ridiculously large salaries, while others have been able to sell elevators and other marketing facilities to the coöperatives at fictitious valuations.

Charges Repeatedly Denied.

Other charges concern alleged manipulation of grain purchases by the Farmers' National and the Grain Stabilization corporation whereby insiders are said to have profited to the extent of the difference between the actual purchase price and a higher price at which the grain was credited to government account. The truth of these charges has been repeatedly denied by the officers of these corporations.

Because of the secrecy with which the farm board and the coöperatives have shrouded their disposition of Uncle Sam's 500 million dollar fund it will take a congressional investigation to establish the truth or falsity of the stories of corruption, extravagance and waste in revolving fund expenditures which have gained circulation.

Chairman James C. Stone of the farm board says that the board welcomes investigation and will be able to satisfy any and all doubters that the agricultural marketing act has been honestly and economically administered.

Welcomes Investigation.

The board makes its vast disbursements from the revolving fund subject virtually to no outside check. President Hoover touched upon this circumstance when he said in appointing the board that he invested it "with responsibility, authority, and resources such as has never before conferred by our government in assistance to any industry."

The act provides that vouchers for expenditures from the revolving fund approved by the chairman of the board "shall be final and conclusive upon all officers of the goverment," except that the controller general, who is directed to audit the board's accounts, is authorized to report to the board and to congress any loan in violation of the law together with such recommendations as he deems advisable.

No Violation of Law.

The controller has audited the board's books, but has reported no violations of the law. According to the general accounting office only minor questionable practices in the board's financial operations have been discovered and in each case the board has ordered reforms in conformity with the controller's recommendations.

The accounts of the coöperatives to which loans are made from the revolving fund are audited by the board to determine whether the prospective borrower is a safe risk and to keep a check on the value of collateral after a loan is made.

MOTOR CLUB OFFERS FREE SAFETY TESTS TO ALL MOTORISTS

As part of the civic campaign for accident prevention, motorists are to be given an opportunity next week to have their machines tested free. The testing lane will be operated, beginning next Monday, by the Chicago Motor club in the east and west boulevard just north of Soldiers' field in Grant park.

Commission of Police Allman recently expressed the belief that more than one-half of the cars in Cook county have defective brakes.

"In an effort to help correct this dangerous situation," said Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club, "we are inviting every motorist to visit the safety lane. Windshield 'O. K.' stickers will be issued to machines found safe to drive.

"Drivers of cars which fail to pass the tests will be given cards showing the exact condition of the various safety appliances. Experience has shown that many motorists who receive these cards have the defects rectified and return to the lane for a second test to acquire the 'O. K.' sticker."

3 TEACHERS AND 5 BOYS MISSING IN BOAT ARE SAFE

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The search of Delaware bay, in which more than 20 vessels have been engaged for nearly two days, ended today with the discovery of the three teachers and five boys from the Millville, N. J., High school who had been missing since they started off on a boating trip on Sunday.

The coast guard patrol boat 107 found the boating party at 14 foot bank light, which is in the main ship channel in the lower part of the bay. They had taken refuge there on being caught in a heavy fog Sunday evening and had been well fed and cared for by the lighthouse keeper.

The eight were Miss Isabelle McCaughey, 25 years old, of Philadelphia; Miss Alma Moyer, 26, of Kulmont, Pa., and Miss Hannah Ewan, 21, of Millville, and Harper Chance, 16; Irwin Ewan, Miss Ewan's brother, both Millville boys, and the brothers Marshall, Harwood, and Kenneth Roe of Dorchester, 18, 17, and 15 years old, respectively.

FLETCHER RESIGNS AS HEAD OF TARIFF COMMISSION NOV. 30

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—President Hoover today announced that he had accepted the resignation of Henry P. Fletcher as chairman of the federal tariff commission to take effect on Nov. 30. Mr. Fletcher some time ago indicated his wish to resign, but at the President's request remained in office. He had served since the commission's organization, 14 month ago. His successor remains to be selected.

In submitting his resignation Mr. Fletcher appended a report of the commission's work, showing that by Nov. 30 its docket would be cleared of all applications and senate requests for information. By Nov. 30, and since the reorganization of the commission, Mr. Fletcher stated, 92 will have been disposed of.

15 Year Old Bandit Is Captured by Druggist

Charles Blonder, 15 years old, 2637 Potomac avenue, was captured early yesterday by Harry M. Goldstein when the boy tried to hold him up in his drug store at 3621 Beach avenue. As Goldstein drew a revolver, Blonder fired and missed. Goldstein fired two shots in the air and Blonder dropped to the floor begging for mercy. Goldstein's 13 year old son, Julian, helped to guard the prisoner while awaiting the police. Blonder was freed from the juvenile home less than a month ago after being found guilty of several robberies.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Stanley Platt and William Richiky, burglary, sentenced to 2 years each in Pontiac reformatory; Willie Turner, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; Charles H. Appel, embezzlement, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell, and Alex Chechia, murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Rudolph Desort.

A jury was completed yesterday to hear evidence against F. Guy Sprague, former broker and reputedly a millionaire before the market crash, who is charged with murdering Patrolman Patrick J. Gallagher last April.

Patrolman Gallagher was killed by a bullet fired through the door of Sprague's apartment at 913 Wilson avenue, when he called for the third time to quiet a party there. Attorney Barratt O'Hara for the defense indicated the nature of the defense by asking each venire man if he would hold it against a man if he took a drink now and then. Most of them confessed to "taking a drink now and then" themselves. O'Hara also indicated Sprague's plea might be that he resented an intrusion on his home.

Judge George Fred Rush of the Criminal court is presiding at the trial. Testimony will begin this morning. Sprague formerly was president of the Grain Traders company, 29 West Adams street. His wife sat in the courtroom yesterday.

WHY
do more and more smokers say:

"I've changed to Chesterfield"

BECAUSE . . .

THEY'RE MILDER. It's the tobaccos! The best tobaccos—the smoothest and mildest that money can buy—go into Chesterfield. Ripened and sweetened in the sunshine . . . cured by the farmer . . . then aged for two years in wooden hogsheads. No wonder you say, "They're so much milder!"

THEY TASTE BETTER. These mild smooth tobaccos are put together exactly right. That's Chesterfield's secret—but millions of smokers agree that the job couldn't be improved! Rich aroma of Turkish and mellow sweetness of Domestic, blended and cross-blended to Chesterfield's own BETTER TASTE.

THEY'RE PURE. Cleanliness and purity, always! Everything that goes into Chesterfield is tested by expert chemists . . . tested thoroughly. The purest cigarette paper made, burning without taste or odor. Sanitary manufacture . . . no hands touch your Chesterfields. They're as pure as the water you drink!

THEY SATISFY. You break open a clean, tight-sealed package. You light up a well-filled cigarette. Yes, sir . . . you're going to like this cigarette—you know that with your very first puff. And right there's where many a smoker changes to Chesterfield. They Satisfy!

Attention: Mr. V. V. Dawson, Vice President

Dear Mr. Dawson:

I take pleasure in handing you herewith signed contract for 142-51S Norge Refrigerators for delivery to the Lansing Hotel.

At the same time, I wish to take this opportunity of thanking you and your associates for the manner in which you have cooperated with all of us in connection with the intensive investigation we conducted to determine the best type of refrigeration to install.

As the matter of noise was also a most important factor, especially in our one room apartments, our selection was narrowed down considerably. We had a number of sample refrigerators installed in some of the apartments. We visited dozens of hotels checking up on the various brands under consideration. Three refrigerators, including the Norge, were finally installed in one apartment where we could watch the quiet operation and performance constantly.

We also studied the various types of refrigerator equipment available, and the Norge Rollator impressed our Committee and officials as being correct, well made, efficient and economical.

You have, therefore, been awarded this contract as a result of this investigation, because of the performance of your unit, the financial and manufacturing background of your factory, as well as the splendid design and refined style of your Cabinet.

Yours very truly,

LANSING HOTEL CORPORATION

J. M. Lansinger.

President

The letters reproduced on this page accompanied orders from two large users of electric refrigeration....

Their choice was Norge Rollator Refrigeration, manufactured by Norge Corporation, a division of Borg Warner Corporation. Every step of each phase of their tests and investigations proved that Norge would meet every major and minor requirement for the apartments for which they were bought. Exactly the same powerful, simple Rollator is used in every Norge. The Norge you buy for your home will give the same satisfactory refrigeration that can be equalled only with the Rollator.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

WHAT IS THE NAVAL POLICY OF THE PRESENT GOVERNMENT?

Several days have passed since there appeared in the American press an interview ascribed to Admiral Pratt in which that official is reported to have asserted that the government never intended that the navy should be built up to treaty strength during the life of the London treaty.

We expected that statement to be repudiated by Admiral Pratt as soon as its publication became known to him. It has not been up to this time. In the absence of such action by Admiral Pratt we have expected that an emphatic denial would be made by the secretary of the navy or by the President himself. Neither has spoken. Is the nation to understand that Admiral Pratt has spoken with authority? No other inference is possible while his declaration stands. Admiral Pratt is no irresponsible subaltern. He is the chief of the highest division of the navy department, that of naval operations. He is known to be one of the officers closest to the President. He was the leading professional adviser of the United States delegation at the London conference which brought forth the treaty which he is now reported, without denial, to assert our government had no intention of effectuating. His statement must therefore be accepted as an authoritative statement of Mr. Hoover's naval policy unless or until Admiral Pratt or his superior repudiates it. Certainly it will be so interpreted by every foreign government. Certainly the congress of the United States cannot ignore it. Certainly the people of the United States cannot afford to shirk its full implications.

If Admiral Pratt has spoken with authority the great diplomatic victory on which the administration of Mr. Hoover purported to plume itself is a fraud. That victory was supposed to be the agreement between the United States and Great Britain for naval parity. The United States fleet was not on a parity with the British fleet. It is not now. It cannot be on a parity unless we build up to the London treaty terms. If Admiral Pratt has spoken for the government there was and is no intention to realize parity. If Admiral Pratt has spoken for the government the delegation of the United States was shadow boxing at London. It was making terms with a great show of diplomatic energy and finesse which had no meaning in American intention or policy. When the London treaty was completed and presented to the senate and people of the United States it represented, so far as the agreement upon naval building, and actual naval ratios was concerned, nothing but the right to do something the government had and still has no intention of doing. We had that right without going to London for it.

We shall not discuss at this time the extraordinary implications and possibilities of this declaration of our government's intentions as to naval policy. If it is an authoritative declaration of intention it calls for the instant consideration of the American people. The American people, we are confident, have not looked upon the London treaty as an agreement with Great Britain merely restraining the limits of its naval superiority over the United States. The American people have not taken the principle of parity as a diplomatic fiction. They have not taken the London treaty as a sham so far as the naval policy of the United States is concerned. If this is the view of the government the common opinion has been deceived. It is high time the American people learned what the intention of their government is.

FAIR HARVARD GOES FASCIST.

William Bingham, director of athletics at Harvard, has announced that Ted Husing, a radio announcer of the Columbia Broadcasting company, will not be allowed to describe games in the future in the Harvard stadium. Harvard alumni, listening in for the Dartmouth-Harvard game, took exception to Husing's criticism of the Harvard team, and of Capt. Barry Wood in particular. He called Wood's play "putrid." The Harvard captain has an admiring following which is mad as probably only the college alumnus can get mad in November.

It is related that Mr. Husing, before the Harvard-Army game, asked Eddie Casey, the Harvard coach, for the Harvard plays, presumably that he might give a better description of them as they were run off. Casey refused and Husing's description of the game with the Army was a bit acid on the Harvard side. In the Dartmouth game it was worse, and Harvard has locked the gate on him.

A football audience isn't the easiest thing a radio announcer handles. Sometimes it takes offense at an inflection of the voice or a touch of enthusiasm. The intellectuals die hard when they are vicariously heroic. When an announcer can be well suspected of an actual prejudice the lion's cage is ready for him. But what Harvard has done is to clap on a censorship. A show producer bars a critic because he does not like his reviews and criticisms. The first instinct following resentment of criticism is to suppress the critic.

Harvard was provoked with cause, but the offense had its natural remedy. A national broadcasting company is not in business to offend large numbers of the people it undertakes to serve and the protests which would have come to Columbia would have been effective if it were apparent that the announcer was prejudiced. A university ought to be willing to take it on the chin when the question is one of criticism.

THE AUDITING OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS.

Two of the bills prepared by the governor's tax conference are intended to prevent the waste of public funds through contract graft. One bill sets up a Cook county commission of three members appointed by the County judge, to be called the budget supervisory board. It is to lay down uniform rules of accounting to be followed by Cook county municipalities and contractors working for them. If the accounts of any contractor "are found erroneous, incomplete, or false, the commission may order the compensation of the contractor withheld until corrections are made and proper accounts are filed," as the summary of the bill explains its operation. If the commission finds that all is not as it should be, "the municipality is obliged to bring suit to recover the funds involved. Likewise the state's attorney is required to start criminal action when the facts warrant.

A somewhat similar commission, appointed by the governor, is to perform much the same service for downstate governments.

An able commission which could resist political pressure might prove extremely useful in preventing such abuses as were disclosed in the experts' fees case. The insistence upon a public accounting might of itself go a long way toward preventing the worst abuses. It would have added value in providing the engineers in the public service with an index to fair market prices for various kinds of work. At present the public authorities, even when their intentions are of the best, are frequently at a disadvantage because they do not know what an honest price for a particular piece of work is. The records of the proposed supervisory board could often fill the need.

There are, of course, certain disadvantages inherent in the plan. The commission of three would have to have a considerable staff of clerks, accountants, and investigators to be paid from the public treasury, and the cost of maintaining such a staff might balance the savings to be expected from it. The bill recognizes the danger of dishonest political control of the commission through the provision that no commissioner may hold any other office during his term or for four years afterward. This arrangement is not without merit, but it has its limitations. A party or faction determined to raid the treasury could still control the commission if it had control of a compliant County judge. A commission lacking in independence could even be used by political hijackers to terrorize contractors into grafting practices.

Probably, on balance, the proposed budget supervisory commission offers more advantages than disadvantages. The device seems worthy of a trial, although it would be a mistake to expect too much of it. Probably the most valuable feature of the scheme is the provision for full publicity of accounts, both of the municipalities and the contractors doing business with them. That provision offers at least an opening wedge for investigation when misuse of funds is suspected and to that extent might serve to check, if not to eliminate, such gross abuses as have taken place in local governments in Cook county under recent administrations.

THE GLORIFICATION OF THE PETTICOATED.

The number of army officers on duty in Washington is to be decreased from 550 to 450 on orders of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff. Proportional reductions are to be made at the various corps headquarters. The men released from office work are to be assigned to active duty where needed.

In the days before there was a general staff, the swivel chairs of Washington exerted no such magnetic pull on the best men in the army as they exert today. That was because it was commonly recognized that there was no distinction to be won in the bureaus of the adjutant general and the quartermaster general. The officers on duty in Washington had a relatively easy time of it, but precisely bepause there were no hardships and no fatigues in their work they were regarded by their brother officers as petticoated. Advancement and prestige came from service with troops.

Today advancement and prestige are won through staff appointments. All the merit that once attached to active practice of the soldier's profession is now won through desk work. All the loss of prestige which formerly went with service in the Washington bureaus is now attached to service with troops. No doubt many of the officers relieved of duty in Washington will feel aggrieved. That is a fair measure of the change which has taken place in the army's thinking. It is difficult to believe that the change is wholly for the better.

Editorial of the Day

THE JOHNSON LIGHTNING ROD.

[Sioux City Journal.]

Every day in every way it looks as though Senator Hiram Johnson of California is manfully trying to put up a lightning rod for himself for 1932. He has issued repeated blasts in the general direction of President Hoover in the hope that he may be able to attract support to himself as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination.

The news comes from Chicago that Senator Johnson is feeling out Republican sentiment in Illinois at this time. He soon will arrive in Chicago to inquire just how Illinois Republicans would look upon his candidacy.

If Senator Johnson receives a favorable reply from leaders he is expected to enter the presidential preference primary to be held in Illinois in April. Republican delegates to the national convention will be selected at that time.

In the past, Illinois Republicans have treated Senator Johnson kindly. In 1912 they were for him as vice presidential nominee of the Bull Moose ticket, and again in 1920 they were not at all unfriendly toward him, although Frank O. Lowden was one of the big three in that memorable deadlock. There is a considerable amount of anti-Hooverism in the state among Republicans, which accounts for the Californian looking toward Illinois in the hope that at least in one commonwealth the lightning may strike him.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the gods fall where they may.

OH, BUT NEW YORK IS MAD! Signor Grandi was snaked out of his steamer and landed in New Jersey and whisked off to Washington without being allowed even to touch his shoes on the soil of New York. The government said it was all because the anti-Fascists would give Signor Grandi the raz if he came ashore at New York, but the highly indignant New York officials say it was dirty, mean spite work on the part of the brass hats and bigwigs from Washington. They say that Mr. Stimson got peevish during M. Laval's greeting by Jimmie Walker in New York. He was given a seat too far back, or somebody sat on his hat or something. Anyhow, New York says our great secretary of state got sore and wouldn't give New York a chance to rain pages out of the city directory and miles of ticker tape from the windows of the skyscrapers as the distinguished foreign visitor passed by, a famous old New York custom. Also a representative of the government at Washington is reported by a New York city hall official as saying, "When you visit a gentleman's home you don't shake hands with the chauffeur, do you?" Oh, mercy! One right straight in the shoot for Jimmie Walker. Just for this New York may withdraw from the Union. It's out now as far as the eighteenth amendment is concerned. Now they may go the whole distance.

FRAGMENT.

Where swing the lamps of Beauty and the golden song
And you shall pause remembering, yea you shall wonder long
At many days that Time devoured most surely.
(Time, a scarlet ant traversing stones of grey)
Of dances, kisses, jonquils, and blue rhythms—

RICHARD DUFFEY.

THEODORE DREISER, John Dos Passos, and eight of their followers who went down to set things right in Kentucky have been indicted by a grand jury for criminal syndicalism. Which shows that Dreiser and Dos Passos are pretty smart after all. The best they could have done in New York would be to get run up an alley and booked for communism, which is old stuff. But criminal syndicalism—well, that's something different and it makes the first page all over the country.

WHAT ABOUT THE CHILDREN of this machine age? Or the kiddies, as the word has become in the American language. Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis fell into line with us the other night on the homeward march up the Boul. Mich and he wondered, too, and he told us about his little granddaughter, who spent the vacation up on the judge's farm in northern Michigan. She was looking in wonder at a cow and the beastie suddenly emitted a loud, plaintive "moo." "Oh, mother," exclaimed the little girl excitedly, "the cow is honking its horns." "I ask you," said the judge solemnly, "isn't it pathetic?"

GREAT BRITAIN, the champion diehard free trade nation of the world, promises to slap a hundred per cent tariff duty on all sorts of imports before this week is ended. And the European countries are jacking up their tariffs every few days. Who are we going to sell our stuff to? We'll have to go west and trade with the Indians again. Wonder how England and the rest of those fellows found out what a soft snap the tariff is anyhow?

IT SEEMS REMARKABLE! What seems remarkable? Wait, we are coming to that. What we were going to say is that with all this slashing of pay rolls, annual incomes, family budgets, navy, army, and a lot of things like that, the Linebook of 1931 soon to come bounding around the corner will still have 64 dam pages; 64—see 'em—count 'em; just the same number of pages it had in the flying high years gone by. We could have cut the Linebook down 10 per cent and got away with it; everybody's doing it; but, no, the Linebook has always had 64—you know—pages and it always shall. Gentulmunly ushers will soon pass among you, ladees and gentulmun, giving you the opportunity of possessing one of these encyclopeedeeahs of wit and wisdom—64 pa-ges, all for the price of ten cents, one thin dime, the tenth part of a dol-lah, or by mail 12 cents. We thank you.

DEAR AFTERLOVE.

I wish that I could love you, dear,
As once I loved with fervor great;
I'm sorry that you had to cross
My path of life, at this late date.
I wish that I had left to give
To you, communion most profound;
But just a shell of me remains,
For clocks and hearts run down.

If you should fade from life tomorrow
I'd go on living—missing you,
And wishing you long afterlife,
In memories of friends you knew.
I would not die if fate decreed
That nevermore you'd be around—
Oh, can't you somehow see, my dear,
That clocks and hearts run down?

EILEEN QUINLAN.

THE ENGLISH VISCOUNT who wanted to be known as plain "Mr. Hare" and who pledged all he possessed to a society for helping the poor has become the Earl of Listowel and inherited all his father's wealth. And do you know that since the new earl has come into the title and his father's coin they can't find "Neighbors, Limited," with a fine tooth comb? Which must just about break the earl's heart, for he was going to give them all his money. No matter what happens to us, we humans are always in for a lot of trouble.

EVERYTHING may be on the up and up, as the optimists say, but, anyhow, we've noticed that nobody has yet begun counting the days until Christmas.

IRRITATING THE NAILS.

MANY people are interested in white spots on the finger nails. Some people profess to be alarmed by them. This appears to be one condition with which familiarity does not breed contempt, at least not universal contempt.

Dr. Paul L. Singer found that nearly two-thirds of a group of people had white spots on one or more nails at the time he looked for them, and he ventured the opinion that if the other third would keep on the lookout for them for several years they would be able to report one or more. Practically every one has them at some time or other, though some have many more than others. Those who have them vary in their degree of indulgence. Some have but few, and those small and inconspicuous; others indulge in large blotches or long streaks. When the condition appears in the twentieth century twisted toenails it may occupy much as half the nail.

Some months ago we reported the opinion of a physician who attributed the condition to too much manicuring. He is right, for no other cause approaches that one in importance. Anything that irritates and very mildly inflames the nail bed, the edge of the nail, and especially the root region, may act as a cause. Pushing back the cuticle, trimming away the skin around the nail, and polishing and painting the nails far outweigh all other causes. Women have white spots on the nails much more frequently than men, and they likewise pay far more attention to beautifying the nails.

There are other causes and these should not be overlooked. Among them are: Exposure of the nail beds to chemicals such as soaps, ointments, greases, dyes, photograph chemical, and other substances that might irritate slightly. Among the causes are fevers, goiter, exposure to X-rays, and arsenic poisoning. Various forms of disease may cause it. Infection with ringworm is prominent as a cause of the manifestation on the toe nails.

Dr. Singer's investigation showed just what happened that caused the area to appear white. The nail is composed of skin cells that have been changed chemically as well as physically. As these skin cells lose their vitality and are pushed away from the field of active multiplying cells they undergo a chemical change that is called keratinization.

If the cells in a given area are unduly irritated, this process of keratinization is delayed and otherwise interfered with. In these changed cells there are granules which refract the light so as to make it appear white. What has happened is that the changed cells make it impossible to look through the transparent nail and see the pink of the tissues below it. That is the explanation of the white spot and that is all there is to it. A better name would be opaque spots.

TRENCH MOUTH.

J. M. J. writes: I have had trench mouth for nine months. I used sodium perborate for eight weeks. It did no good. I then used neoarsphenamine locally and by injections. It did no good. My physician next applied a local remedy. He would paint with iodine, wait five minutes, and then apply the other remedy. This failed also. I had a tooth pulled, but that did no good.

Of the several treatments, the perborate was best, but it did not cure. My teeth are in fine condition. I have always been careful with my mouth, having my teeth cleaned twice yearly. The discomfort is very bad. What can I do? How did I get this?

REPLY.

Have your dentist use the Hardgrove treatment. It consists of first applying a solution of chromic acid and following with peroxide. Trench mouth is contagious. It is often transmitted by kissing.

STRAY DOGS.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—We seem to be overrun with stray dogs, none of which wears a muzzle. I have two girls under school age and these dogs are constantly interfering with their play. Is there any action that can be taken to force the owners of dogs to keep them at home? If so, would appreciate knowing how to proceed?

W. H. T.

An officer was assigned to investigate and he reports that he failed to find any dogs running at large at the time of his visits, but has issued summons to all owners of dogs found to be without license or properly muzzled. He will give this location and other places in this district attention: 425 dog licenses have been secured by owners of dogs since Aug. 1, 1931, which is the direct result of police action.

Commissioner of Police.

BARRED BY STATUTE.

Lusarne, Mich., Nov. 10.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—After forty years' continuous residence in Wisconsin, A died last May. He willed $5,000 each to his two estranged brothers, B and C, naming C, the elder, as executor. Twenty-four years ago A loaned B, living in Illinois, $300, taking no security or note. B moved to Wisconsin and lost his money. Finally B visited A in Wisconsin in 1930. B believed that A forgave him the debt as A had not inquired about it in more than 22 years, and left no known record of it. Now C threatens to revive the debt and attach B's legacy to the extent of $2,500 for the original $800. 1. Is the debt outlawed? If not, can the legacy be taken in pay, and how much of it? H. M. A.

CHICAGO.—The Bollinger baby is dead. Nature, left to itself, righted its mistake at the German-American hospital. Science withheld the scalpel that might have given life to the cripple, even while a woman hovered near the bedside hoping for a chance to kidnap the baby and have some surgeon perform an operation. In the meantime the world wagged its tongue over two questions: Is Dr. Harry J. Haiselden guilty of criminal negligence? Has a doctor the right to withhold the divine gift of life from any human being, no matter how malformed? At midnight a secret autopsy was performed at the hospital by Dr. H. G. W. Reinhardt, chief coroner's physician. Dr. Reinhardt stated: "I cannot say positively that the child would have been a mental defective, but my examination shows that the probabilities are strongly in this direction. One thing is certain. The baby, if it had lived, would have been a paralytic and a cripple all its life. It had no right ear and the skin of its right shoulder was attached directly to the right side of the head. The head was abnormally large and set close to the shoulders. Apparently there was no neck. There was a marked curvature of the spine in the dorsal region. The really fatal thing, however, was that the descending colon had a blind end. There was a slight hemorrhage in the left half of the brain, which caused paralysis of the right side." Miss Catherine J. V. Walsh was the woman who attempted to kidnap the baby, her intention being to take the child to another doctor who would perform the operation which would save its life.

LONDON.—Confirmation has been received at Saloniki of the report that the Bulgarians have entered Prilep after a junction with the Bulgar army coming from Tetovo, according to an Athens dispatch. The Serbians forced back by the Bulgar advance have retreated to Ochrida. The population of Monastir is reported to be panic stricken and preparations are being made to evacuate the town.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—This, the fourth, has been the most exciting day thus far in the trial of Guiteau for the murder of President Garfield, and the proceedings were replete with impudent outbursts from Guiteau. He went so far at times as to defy the court, who attempted to quiet him. Assistant Attorney Corkhill made the opening statement for the government to the jury and Secretary of State James G. Blaine was called to the stand. He testified that he was in company with the President at the time the latter was shot on July 2 and went into details of the tragedy. He said that Guiteau had been a persistent applicant for the consul generalship at Paris, but he had never been given the slightest encouragement that he would receive the appointment. Mr. Blaine testified that there had been some dissensions in the Republican party, and was questioned about the trouble in New York over the appointment of Robertson as collector of customs and the ensuing row which resulted in the resignation of Senator Conkling. Attorney George Scoville told the court that the defense considers it important to show that there was a bitter quarrel in the Republican party.

CHICAGO.—The newly organized steamfitters' association met at 192 Washington street and completed the organization by adopting a constitution and bylaws and the name of the "Associated Steamfitters and Helpers of Chicago."

CHICAGO.—A reporter called on the Hon. John Wentworth to see what he had to say about Jonathan Young Scammon's story in reference to the Marine bank, the loss to the Historical society by the bank's failure and the charge that he paid his life membership fee in congressional documents. Mr. Wentworth was in aaything but the best of humor, and when asked if he had read what Mr. Scammon said he replied: "I have, and it is a lie from beginning to end, and he knew it to be so. I paid $300 in cash for the life membership in the Historical society."

COMMUNISM IN A DEMOCRACY.

Chicago, Nov. 8.—I read your editorial on Communism in a Democracy. I very much disagree with you on private enterprise. You stated that any system that didn't permit private enterprise a full swing should not be given any consideration by the American people. Here is where I do not agree with you. I say that any form of government that permits one man to lawfully exploit another is unsound. Legal robbery, I call it.

Where is your heart, Mr. Editor? Have you no respect for humanity? Just sit down and think once, realize that this country is overflowing with wealth and thousands of people are in want, yes, millions of them do not know where their next meal is coming from.

Do you call a system good that permits millions of people to go in want, walking the streets, begging for a five cent piece to get a crust of bread for some half naked child at home who is hanging onto his frantic mother's dress, crying for something to nourish its starved little body? CARL R. O'BRIEN.

FROM A PARENT.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—In THE TRIBUNE of Nov. 12 I read of a disappointed father who blames the university for the suspension of his son who had been one of a group destroying property. He admits giving him a $3,000 car and everything else needed or wanted by the youth of today.

All you have to do is to look up the alumni of any university and you will find the outstanding men and women are not the ones who had $3,000 cars, but more often they worked their way through college and learned the real values in life. The parents who make it too soft for their precious offspring are more to blame than the universities, where an ambitious, hard working student can still make a name for himself in spite of the handicap of students supplied with unlimited money.

MOTHER OF A SUCCESS.

HATS OFF.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Hats off to Judge Wilkerson, not forgetting Judge Michael Feinberg. WILLIAM WALTER SCOTT, Clerk of the Appellate Court.

BECK FOR PRESIDENT.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—After hearing a portion of Mr. Beck's Speech [it deserves a capital S] and reading a portion of it in today's TRIBUNE, I am moved to ask, Why not get behind Mr. Beck for President? W. T. JAMES.

WHO SAID THIS?

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Let Mr. Hochschmidt, who finds little use for the dead languages, remember that "the boy who has never caught the drumbeat of Vergil's marching verses, who has never gone adventuring with wise old Ulysses or heard the shouts of Hector coming down the wind, who has never made love to Lalage, or fought with the Tenth Legion, or marched with the Ten Thousand, or debated with Socrates, may become a useful American citizen, an ornament to society, and a comfort to his dependents, but he has missed something in youth for which no material gain ever can compensate him." R. L. N.

FRACTIONALLY SPEAKING.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—I thoroughly agree with Mr. Impohel that special privilege for the members of the American Legion should cease. We once gave them both the opportunity and the privilege of getting shot; why should we now add the privilege of getting half-shot?

VOX FANATICUS.

THE GENUINE ARTICLE.

Peru, Ind., Nov. 11.—In looking over the list of players used by Notre Dame in their game against Pennsylvania it would seem that K. J. Sinclair has overlooked such "Fighting Irish" as Gorman, Murphy, Leahy, Cronin, Foley, McNamara, Flynn, and last but no means least, "Abie's Irish Rose." Marchmont Schwartz. KATHALEEN O'NEILL.

JUDGES' VACATIONS.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Do all Cook county judges get two months' vacation with pay? If they do, how did this come about? Did they just decide this among themselves? How about the federal judges? Do they also get two months' vacation with pay? TAXPAYER.

JUDGES AT WORK AND [illegible].

Chicago, Nov. 11.—May I [illegible] behalf of many Chicagoans, [illegible] publish regularly the report you publish several months ago showing the number of hours spent by various judges in court over a period of several months. Haven't we a right to know what kind of service we are getting for the thousands of dollars we are paying these men in salaries, even if the judges don't like it?

Append to the report the statement that of course it does not include the hours spent by the judges in thought and study in chambers or elsewhere, as to do justice to whatever time a judge may put in in this way. And if any of the judges are too decrepit to stand the nervous strain of five hours' work a day listening to cases, we ought to know that, too. There is one of the big causes of the endless delays in the administration of justice, and of the contempt of criminals for the law. R. L.

ELEVATED SERVICE.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The service which the public receives from the Chicago elevated lines is positively rotten. The people have to stand together like cattle in a freight car.

Whether there are normal times or a depression the service is the same and the public be damned. During the present depression the elevated lines have taken off a number of trains to keep the people from getting decent accommodations. A. W. BURNS.

ELEVATORS FOR THE ELEVATED.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—I have heard an expenditure of some hundred thousand dollars is contemplated to install elevators in the old jail now used as a home for the homeless. It is indeed a splendid idea to provide every comfort for the unemployed and yet it seems a pity that the many patrons of Orchestra hall have to make the long trek on foot up Mont Everest to the gallery. I have often seen men and women well along in years, ardent devotees of music, compelled to make the long journey with several intervals of rest while we on are viding a comfortable lift for [illegible]. R. S. S.

SOUTHERN AND CONGENIAL.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—The next time Theodore Dreiser goes down in Kentucky wants to go there with a medicine show or a revival meeting, and he will spare himself with those poor natives so you must have something that will cure all ills. You cannot educate the sheep without becoming the goat yourself, especially down south, where they hang a man and give him his trial afterwards. JAMES MCCARTHY.

AN UNFAIR DISTRIBUTION.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Even if the charges against Mr. Dreiser are true [which I doubt], he has already received more publicity than did one of our Presidents, who made a habit of Mr. Dreiser's alleged misconduct. LEO E. KESSLER.

THE NEW GAS.

Chicago, Nov. 10.—Regardless of "heating qualities," "therms," "B. T. U.'s" and whatnot, the cost of natural gas to the gas company per thousand feet is less than that of artificial gas, but the charge to the consumer is more. CITIZEN.

MR. MELLON'S ART PURCHASE.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Today the newspapers printed a small item to the effect the Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury, paid $6,400,000 to some Russia for some paintings. If the greatest secretary of the treasury this country has had since Alexander's Ragtime band had given only one-half of that enormous amount of money to charity, many a hungry family could be kept from want this winter.

O, the blessings of Republican prosperity! M. H. G.

A WAY TO RAISE REVENUE.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—The city of Chicago is short of cash. Well, here is a little suggestion on how to raise it. Reduce a few motor laws. (Give tickets to all motorists violating safety laws. A conservative estimate on such violations would be 20,000 a day. Figuring a $5 fine on each, this would bring in a revenue to the city of about $10,000,000 a year. Of course, the enforcing of these rules might mean the saving of a few lives in the course of a year.

FLORIDA LOS[illegible]
RECALL LURE O[illegible]
BRYAN'S TO[illegible]

Lots He Helped to Sell A[illegible]
Worth Little Now.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Coral Gables, Fla., Nov. 17.—[illegible] vist.]—The voice of the silver tongued orator and moralist, the late William Jennings Bryan, is still being recorded here in figures of red on the financial ledgers of those who invested in the Miami subdivision while spellbound by the reformer.

The amount of losses is just beginning to be appreciated. With recent sales it has become apparent that the sudden deflation of Florida real estate in the summer of 1926 did not remove all the hot air from the inflation, but that it took the stock market crash of the fall of 1929 to complete the deflation.

On the basis of recent sales, it is now estimated that the loss in Coral Gables real estate speculation, which William Jennings Bryan helped to boom, will reach approximately $60,000,000. About 25,000 persons, many from New York, New England and Ohio, shared in this fate.

Realty Men Make Estimate.

The estimate was computed with the assistance of J. Allen Brown, president of the Coral Gables real estate board, and C. S. Robinson, vice president of Coral Gables Inc. They wished to show that the present prices of the suburban property are founded solely on intrinsic values, entirely free of emotionalism such as was established by the famous fundamentalist and grape juice drinker during the boom days.

The assessment figures, as given by Eugene Williams, city manager, show a deflation of $123,842,883 in five years. On a basis of fifty per cent of assessed values the real estate without improvements was evaluated for taxation in 1926 at $90,860,358 and in 1931 at $23,888,806.

Real estate men were reluctant to make public the names and figures of recent sales, saying they must protect the hopes of their clients for resale at a profit. Where names are not mentioned in the account that follows, the figures are probably fairly accurate and where names are given and the realtors are protecting their prospects.

Take Large Losses.

George B. Caster, president of the Coral Gables realty board, told of a property selling for $1,200 in spring which brought $8,000 in 1926, and of two lots which netted $3,000 during the boom having been sold recently for $300.

"That $300 sale is an exceptional one, not a typical transaction," he said. "We have quite a number of distress sales, mainly by folks in the north who are unable to pay their taxes."

Mr. Robinson cited what he believed was a typical transaction, the sale of a 100 foot frontage of preferred residential property for $2,500. This land brought $30,000 when Mr. Bryan was drawing crowds to the lot with his sermons staged by Coral Gables, Inc.

This typical transaction indicates that unimproved Coral Gables property is worth today about one-twelfth of what was paid for it six years ago by those who came here to listen to William Bryan. Mr. Robinson said approximately $100,000,000 of business was transacted. Eleven-twelfths of $100,000,000 or $91,600,000, is a fair estimate of the loss, according to Mr. Brown.

Vacant Lots Hardest Hit.

On recent sales of improved Coral Gables property the deflation has been so spectacular but Mr. Robinson pointed out that the amount of improved property sold during the boom was nominal as compared with speculation in vacant lots. Even in 1931, the assessment on buildings was $3,653,615 as against $23,888,806 on land.

Dr. A. H. Weiland, formerly a constructor at Rush Medical college, recently purchased a house here which reported consideration of $30,000 was built in 1925 and sold to Warr for $84,000.

A house and lot for which Elmer Breakenridge paid $35,000 in 1925 was sold a few months ago to Ollie Stone for a reported $8,500. The Coral Gables, Inc., is advertising to sell a $6,500 a six room house which was sold in July of 1924 to Dan Cupid for $17,500.

Ballyhooed for Promoters.

For years before his death in March of 1925 William Jennings Bryan was teaching a large open air Sunday school in Miami and on week days was attracting crowds of 3,000 to 5,000 at lectures here in Coral Gables. He was recognized as a highly paid artist in the ballyhoo that cost thousands of speculators millions of dollars.

"We took our prospects out to hear Bryan's daily talks," said a former salesman for the subdivision.

FLORIDA LOSERS RECALL LURE OF BRYAN'S TONGUE

Lots He Helped to Sell Are Worth Little Now.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Coral Gables, Fla., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The voice of the silver tongued orator and moralist, the late William Jennings Bryan, is still being recorded here in figures of red on the financial ledgers of those who invested in this coral subdivision while spellbound by the reformer.

The amount of losses is just beginning to be appreciated. With recent sales it has become apparent that the sudden deflation of Florida real estate in the summer of 1926 did not squeeze all the hot air from the bubble, but that it took the stock market crash of the fall of 1929 to complete the deflation.

On the basis of recent sales, it is now estimated that the loss in Coral Gables real estate speculation, which William Jennings Bryan helped to promote, will reach approximately $91,000,000. About 25,000 persons, mainly from New York, New England and Ohio, shared in this fate.

Realty Men Make Estimate.

The estimate was computed with the assistance of J. Allen Brown, vice president of the Coral Gables realty board, and C. S. Robinson, vice president of Coral Gables Inc. They wished to show that the present prices on suburban property are founded not on intrinsic values, entirely void of sentionalism such as was furnished by the famous fundamentalist grape juice drinker during the boom days.

The assessment figures, as given by Frank Williams, city manager, show a reflection of $123,542,855 in five years, on a basis of fifty per cent of actual value the real estate without improvements was evaluated for taxation in 1926 at $90,960,350 and in 1931 at $35,355,505.

Real estate men were reluctant to make public the names and figures on recent sales, saying they must protect the hopes of their clients for a turn at a profit. Where names were not mentioned in the account that follows, the figures are probably more accurate than where names are used and the realtors are protecting resale prospects.

Take Large Losses.

George B. Caster, president of the Coral Gables realty board, told of a property selling for $1,200 last spring which brought $5,000 in 1925 and of two lots which netted $7,000 during the boom having been sold recently for $300.

"That $300 sale is an exceptional and not a typical transaction," he added. "We have quite a number of these down sales, mainly by folks in the north who are unable to pay their tax bill."

Mr. Robinson cited what he believed was a typical transaction, the sale of 50 feet frontage of preferred residential property for $2,500. This same land brought $30,000 when Mr. Bryan was drawing crowds to the lot sales with his pennons staged by Coral Gables, Inc.

This typical transaction indicates that unimproved Coral Gables property is worth today about one-twelfth of what was paid for it six years ago by those who came here to listen to Mr. Bryan. Mr. Robinson said approximately $100,000,000 of business was transacted. Eleven-twelfths of $100,000,000 or $91,000,000, is a fair estimate of the loss, according to Mr. Brown.

Vacant Lots Hardest Hit.

On recent sales of improved Coral Gables property the deflation has not been so spectacular but Mr. Brown pointed out that the amount of improved property sold during the boom was nominal as compared with the speculation in vacant lots. Even in 1931, the assessment on buildings was $21,963,815 as against $28,888,806 on land.

Dr. A. H. Welland, formerly an instructor at Rush Medical college recently purchased a house here for a reported consideration of $20,000. It was built in 1925 and sold to James Dyer for $84,000.

A home and lot for which Elmer R. Bonbonridge paid $25,000 in 1924 was sold a few months ago to Ollo Searles for a reported $8,500. The Coral Gables, Inc., is advertising to sell for $2,500 a six room house which was sold in July of 1924 to Dan T. Bibb for $17,500.

Ballyhoo for Promoters.

For years before his death in July of 1925 William Jennings Bryan was teaching a large open air Sunday school in Miami and on week days was attracting crowds of from 3,000 to 5,000 at lectures here in Coral Gables. He was recognized as a highly paid artist in the ballyhoo that lost thousands of speculators millions of dollars.

"We took our prospects out to hear Bryan's daily talks," said a former salesman for the subdivision promoters. It would hurt his business for his name to be used.

"We would have crowds brought here in conducted parties from all parts of the country, including Chicago.

"He stood on a platform in the center of a large swimming pool. A grand stand was built around the pool. He entered into the spirit of the game, even to wearing a pith helmet, to advertise our warm winters on January days when every one was shivering from a sharp north wind.

Made Prospects Easy Marks.

"He talked of high ideals, of the bountiful gifts of nature, especially generous to southern Florida. He told a couple of jokes, one about his 'platform on pure water' and the other about counting the scales of a mackerel and finding sixteen silver to one gold. The folks who were attracted to these lectures liked his talks. And those who were impressed by his words were easy meat for us salesmen."

Approximately 12,000 of the purchasers during these boom activities are still holding their lots, according to Mr. Robinson, and are still holding the bag for a loss of probably $40,000,000. They are gradually selling out, using red ink in their financial journals. And this is only one small section of countless realty areas sold in Florida boom years.

Shadow of Former Picture.

Coral Gables today has a population of about 5,500. Their homes are clustered in one section of the sixteen square miles of subdivision in which lots were sold during the boom. This built section is about thirty-five per cent of the total area and even in this section about seventy-five per cent of the lots are vacant. There are miles of street pavements, sidewalks and ornamental light posts in districts occupied solely by the ghosts of hopes born at Bryan rallies and killed at the 1926 crash.

Mr. Bryan's daughter, Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, lives in a neighboring suburb, Coconut Grove. She is congresswoman from this district and, according to gossip, contemplates running for the senate. She could not be reached today and it was said she was not in the city.

UNEMPLOYED WAITER LEAPS IN FRONT OF SUBWAY TRAIN; DIES

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—A well dressed, unemployed waiter who tossed his silver topped cane into the path of an oncoming subway train in Times Square station and then leaped after it was killed today, three B. M. T. coaches passing over his body. Traffic was delayed 20 minutes.

The man was identified as David Ecker, 50, of Coney Island. A station porter told police he saw the man leap. Several women on the platform fainted and passengers were jolted to the floor as the motorman vainly tried to stop the cars in time.

HOLDS PRISONER FOR "PLAIN CASE OF EXTORTION"

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Declaring "this seems a plain case of extortion," Municipal Judge Wood today held Ernest von Herringa, 22 years old, under $10,000 bail for Superior court trial. Von Herringa, former friend of Dr. Clifford Loos and his wife, now divorced, is accused of attempting to extort money from the former Mrs. Loos, now Mrs. Anita Johnson, by threatening her. He is accused of making other demands on Loos also. Mrs. Johnson and her aunt both testified Von Herringa appeared at her present home and demanded $5,000, threatening to kill her, and "to have the newspapers full of sensational letters." She phoned Dr. Loos and the latter confronted the defendant with policeman.

Pullman Company Extends Lower Upper Berth Rates

The Pullman company announced yesterday that the low rate for upper berths, which has been in effect on trains operating between Chicago and the twin cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul for the past three months, will be continued until Feb. 28 to enable the company to determine whether the reduced rate warrants adoption of the service. The rates, which have been reduced from $3 to $1.88, are also in effect on certain trains operating between New York and Washington.

SLAIN BY ROBBERS IN FLAT.

Carmelo Tarara, 38 years old, a peddler who lived alone, was found beaten to death yesterday in his basement flat at 2627 Princeton avenue by a meter reader for the gas company. Police said that Tarara apparently was slain by robbers.

RUSSIA ON GUARD AS BRITISH SEND ARMY TO KASHMIR

Afghans Also Alarmed; Ask Turkey's Aid.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The arrival of British troops in the Indian state of Kashmir to help put down a Moslem revolt has created an international incident, it was learned here today. Soviet Russia considers the military movement as a distinct menace to her frontier.

SIR HARI SINGH.

The soviet minister at Kabul, it is reported, has informed the government of Afghanistan in no uncertain terms that the relations existing between Russia and Afghanistan have been changed as the result of the British pushing into Kashmir. The soviets describe the situation as a spearhead pointing to Russia.

Hari Singh Protests.

Alarmed by the warning, Afghanistan immediately informed Sir Hari Singh, the maharajah of Kashmir, who figured as "Mr. A." in a famous blackmail case some years ago. The wealthy potentate replied by protesting against the British taking charge of his country, insisting that he only invited the British to defend him during the revolt, as they are bound to do under existing treaties.

At the same time the Afghan government has applied to Turkey for the services of a military mission to reorganize its army. The government, it is stated, is willing to take the mission's word as law regarding all military affairs. This mission of 140 officers is reported to be on its way to Kabul.

Indian princes are also reported to be rallying around Sir Hari in his effort to assert his independence, hoping thereby that the Russian threat will modify the alleged "hard boiled" attitude of the British recently developed toward native states.

Border Clashes Reported.

According to information from India, clashes between Russian bands and Kashmirians have already occurred on the frontier.

Almost simultaneously with the news that the British troops in Kashmir were causing an "alarming" situation, Mahatma Gandhi, India's nationalist leader, told the federal structures committee of the round-table conference that India must have full control over her own army.

"We will go through fire and storm and distress, and, if it be God's will, through a shower of bullets to obtain our independence," he began. "The nation which has no control over its defense forces is not a responsible nation, and if the British people think it will be a century before we can be trusted with control of the army, then for that century the nationalist congree will wander in the wilderness.

Wants British to Stay.

"If India cannot have control over the army then the army should be disbanded. I will wait until eternity if I cannot get control over the national defenses."

He wound up by explaining that he had no idea of suggesting that the British army, which was needed for the defense of the frontiers, should be withdrawn from India, and that he was only referring to the Indian army.

Waste Revealed in U.S. Army Plan to Slash Expenditures

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—One example of how administration economy in the war department, caused excessive waste was given today by Maj. Gen. John L. De Witt, quartermaster general of the United States army. In his annual report he states that failure to replace obsolete motor equipment with modern material has boosted the maintenance cost of war purchased motor vehicles from $192.56 per unit in 1927 to $266.17 in 1930.

MAJ. GEN. JOHN L. DEWITT. [Acme Photo.]

During the war nearly 275,000 motor vehicles were purchased and the surviving remnants of this hugh vehicle army comprises the war department's army transportation today. During the last thirteen years, according to the De Witt report, but 1,401 vehicles, exclusive of experimental material, have been procured by the quartermaster corps for the regular army. All attempts to obtain new and up to date material have failed.

A Seven Year Program.

A new attempt to obtain a $1,000,000 for financing the first year of a seven year program designed to completely resquip the army with new trucks and other vehicles will be made in congress this winter unless the Hoover administration objects.

The aim of the quartermaster corps is to utilize commercially developed machines to the maximum. The plan is to develop five basic chassis to meet all requirements for the army.

"There have been many complaints from the using services as to unsatisfactory motor vehicle equipment. The war purchased vehicles are now approximately 14 years old, obsolete and generally in bad condition. They are unsatisfactory from operation and training standpoints also require excessive maintenance costs.

"Due to the age and condition of the war purchased motor vehicles the cost for units, parts and supplies used in their maintenance has increased considerably during the last four years."

FAVOR NEW GUNS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Tests are now being made by the war department to determine the practicability of substituting the new standard 75 millimeter pack howitzer for the accompanying artillery in the infantry division. In making this known today Maj. Gen. H. G. Bishop, chief of field artillery, said the new pack howitzer, a development since the war, "has won high praise on all sides."

"During the last year," he said, "the first battalion, 2d field artillery, in Panama, was equipped with the new standard 75 millimeter pack howitzer. It is one of the most efficient weapons developed."

Maj. Gen. Bishop said that tests would begin shortly by the field artillery board to determine the value of a new 155 millimeter gun, 6 inch howitzer carriage equipped with anti-friction bearings and pneumatic tires.

"This carriage is a radical departure from the present accepted types of mobile mounts," Gen. Bishop said. "It is a pedestal type mount equipped with anti-friction bearings, sprung weight in traveling, and pneumatic tires. Increased mobility, increased speed of entry into action, and about 6,000 yards increase in range are secured at a cost of about 4,000 pounds increase in weight."

U. S. PASTOR CALLS UP GANDHI ON ATLANTIC PHONE

LONDON, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi talked across the Atlantic ocean over a telephone for the first time in his life today.

He was hurrying to keep an appointment with Lady Astor when the phone rang and the operator announced that St. Paul, Minn., was calling. The Rev. Fred Fisher, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church at Ann Arbor, Mich., and a former missionary in Calcutta, was on the line and he wanted to invite Gandhi to come to America.

"But God has not yet cleared my way," the Indian leader said. "Besides, I feel that nothing important hangs on my going to America at present. I think it is more important that I return to Bombay to gird India's loins for a new struggle against Brittain for liberty. I will go to America in God's appointed time, but my inner voice tells me that time was not yet arrived. Give my love and blessings to the American people."

Hanging up the receiver, Gandhi exclaimed: "A miracle!" But when he was told that the call had cost about $120, he replied: "Well, a bishop should have better sense than to drop so much good money into the Atlantic ocean."

GRANTS POWERS ORAL HEARING ON CHANGE IN VENUE

Clarksburg, W. Va., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Judge John C. Southern will hear oral testimony at 9 o'clock Saturday morning in support of Harry F. Powers' plea for a change of venue. Attorney J. E. Law will summon witnesses to testify that his client cannot obtain an impartial trial in this county. It is expected that Will E. Morris, prosecutor, will summon witnesses to resist the motion.

Powers was in court for less than three minutes this morning and apparently had regained his calm, that he lost yesterday when hurriedly brought to the courtroom where his attorney filed the motion for change of venue.

According to Powers' father, the slayer is 39 years old today, but he refused to confirm it. Powers was born Nov. 17, 1892, in Holland.

PHYSICIANS-IN-CHIEF OF GREAT HOSPITALS ✝ TELL HOW FRESH YEAST AIDS HEALTH

"Fresh Yeast—eaten three times a day" is the simple prescription these great doctors give. Read what they say about it below!

Now these men are experts. They specialize in making people well.

So listen to them—carefully. They are going to tell you how to treat a very unpleasant trouble . . . just as they advise their patients who pay hundreds of dollars for their advice!

• • •

Here is the famous French stomach specialist, Dr. Alexandre Mazeran . . . founder and head of the celebrated clinic, "Thermalia," where dozens of Americans and many royal personages are treated every year.

"In cases of constipation," he says, "I recommend fresh yeast. It improves digestion and the appetite . . . has a revitalizing effect on the general health."

Next (in the center at the fluoroscope) is Dr. René Gutmann, chef de clinique in the Faculty of Medicine of Paris. He says:—

And Dr. Edmund Maliwa (at the right), physician-in-chief of the famous Sanatorium Esplanade, near Vienna, adds:—

"Fresh yeast has none of the objections of weakening cathartics and laxatives. It moistens intestinal residues . . . stimulates and renews the normal action of the intestines . . . I prefer it to all other means of keeping the intestines clean."

Eaten regularly, three cakes a day—before meals, or between meals and on going to bed—Fleischmann's Yeast actually stimulates and "tones up" sluggish intestines . . . cleanses . . . purifies.

And as a result, "pep" returns! You don't get tired so easily. Your tongue clears, your complexion freshens. Rich new reserves of energy are yours!

Don't put it off! Get 2 or 3 days' supply of Fleischmann's Yeast and start eating it today—just plain or dissolved in a third of a glass of water—before meals, or between meals and before you go to bed.

Important Fleischmann's Yeast for health is sold only in the foil-wrapped cake with the yellow label. It is yeast in its fresh, effective form—the kind famous doctors recommend. At grocers, restaurants, soda fountains. Rich in health-giving vitamins B, G and D.

SHOWS BIG CUTS IN BANK VALUES BY REVIEWERS

Lawyer Charges Evasion of Duty by Officials.

Millions of dollars worth of personal property which was cut from the schedules of loop banks by the board of review during the years from 1925 to 1930 were cited by Attorney Morris Schaeffer yesterday as evidence of systematic neglect of duty by the assessing bodies. The testimony was presented before County Judge Jarecki, who is hearing a test case on the objection of 2,000 taxpayers to the 1928 and 1929 assessments.

In the action, which was brought on behalf of Mrs. Lillian Cisar, an Oak Park widow, who owns a small bungalow, the lawyer charged that the omission of personal property from the assessment rolls had caused the taxes on real estate to become confiscatory. A proper personal property tax would distribute equally the burden of tax revenue, he asserted.

Charges Evasion of Duty.

"It was the blind eyes rather than the short arm of the assessors which caused the assessment of personal property to become nil in Cook county," Attorney Schaeffer declared. "We propose to disclose a perfect system, an accurate system, through which the assessing bodies willfully evaded their duty and thereby created a fraudulent assessment roll.

"It was a game of ten pins. The assessors set the values up and then along came the reviewers and knocked them way down."

All the figures which were introduced into evidence yesterday were taken from the records of the board of assessors and from the final assessment rolls after they had been completed by the board of review, the attorney explained.

The Continental Illinois Bank and Trust company was the first example cited. In 1929 the assessors valued the bank's personal property at $56,-256,000. The reviewers cut this approximately $20,000,000. In 1929 the valuation was set at $45,000,000 by the assessors and cut to $26,000,000 by the board of review.

Comment from Judge.

"Why, these are staggering facts," Judge Jarecki interrupted Attorney Schaeffer, w) was reading from printed tables. "One can hardly comprehend such huge reductions, much less explain them."

The reading continued and the valuations and reductions were shown for other banks including: First National, assessed for 1925 at $13,750,000 and cut to $8,125,000; Central Trust company, assessed for 1926 at $5,250,000 and cut to $2,500,000, for 1928 at $6,-000,000 and cut to $3,000,00; Foreman's National bank, assessed for 1928 at $6,250,000 and cut to $1,550,-000, for 1929 at $4,500,000 and cut to $200,000.

Several of the Bain banks disclosed the following assessments and cuts: Elston State bank, assessed in 1929 at $100,000 and cut to $10,000 by the reviewers; West Englewood State bank, assessed at $630,000 and cut to $330,000; and Bryn Mawr State bank, assessed at $150,000 and reduced to $30,000.

Today the boards of assessors and reviewers have been ordered to produce the sworn personal property schedules of half a dozen of the larger banks. These records will be examined by the court in an effort to find a reason for the sharp reductions in their valuations.

SNIFF IS NOT BEER EVIDENCE, JUDGE RULES

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The sensitive olfactory nerves of federal prohibition agents once more were discredited as gatherers of evidence by the federal courts today when United States District Judge Frank J. Coleman ordered 55,000 gallons of alleged beer and machinery and equipment valued at $60,000 returned forthwith to the owners of an unlicensed brewery in Yonkers.

The brewery was raided on Oct. 13 by federal prohibition agents, who smashed down the doors and arrested George Mayer, an employé. The agents, it was testified, acted without any kind of warrant because, they declared, they "smelled the odor of fermenting malt" issuing from the brewery.

This evidence, Judge Coleman said in his opinion, "may have been sufficient to give rise to a suspicion, but was not enough to justify a raid without a warrant."

LAW LEARNED IN CELL WINS SUIT FOR BEING THERE

Former Convict Awarded $7,500 Damages.

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Benny Sabbatino, transformed by twelve years of prison from a virtual illiterate into a well read man and a student of the law, won his suit today against two former members of the state parole board who, he charges, kept him in jail three years beyond his proper term.

A jury which heard evidence before Supreme Court Justice William Harman Black awarded him $7,500 damages. He had sued for $300,000. George W. Benham and James L. Long are the two men against whom the damages are assessed. A third member of the board, Alexander Konta, was exonerated.

Has Won Other Suits.

It is not the first suit Sabbatino has won as a result of his prison cell studies, in which the law vied with Plato, Kant and Freud for his attention.

In the Supreme court at Rochester in 1928 Edgar S. Jennings, then warden of Auburn prison, was ordered to pay him $1,250 damages and was fined $250 for contempt because he failed to heed a habeas corpus writ his prisoner had obtained.

Sabbatino entered Sing Sing in 1915 to begin a sixteen year sentence on statutory charges. Great Meadow, Auburn and Dannemora barbored him, and, meanwhile, as his attorney said, he "read every law book he could lay his hands upon and today he qualifies as an expert in habeas corpus writs."

Starts Suit for Freedom.

In 1924, primed with his reading, Sabbatino decided that the time had come when he should, legally, be set at liberty because of his allowance of "good conduct time."

He made more than seventy applications for a writ of habeas corpus and, acting as his own attorney, finally took his case to the Court of Appeals, where a release, granted to the prisoner in 1926 by Justice Edward Angells of Glens Falls, was sustained. He was set free in 1927.

His suit against the members of the parole board, which he won today, charged that they refused to release him despite the order of Justice Angells.

FINE HANDBOOK OPERATOR.

Andrew Finneran, 5 West Warren avenue, Calumet City, charged with operating a handbook at 12 State street, Calumet City, was fined $25 in Blue Island yesterday. His place was raided Saturday by state's attorney's police.

PRESENT SHIELD TO PLAYGROUND AT RITES TODAY

Gage park playground will receive the annual supremacy shield at a ceremony preceding the meeting of the south park board today. The shield is for attainment in playground activity among the 20,000 boys and girls who have participated in the south parks program during the year. The presentation will be made by President Edward J. Kelly of the south park commissioners.

The projects for which the award is made include athletics, gymnastics, games, handicrafts, doll making, camera work, more than a hundred in all. Cornell playground won second.

In the west parks, records for attendance at the Garfield park conservatory were broken on Sunday when 29,346 persons visited the chrysanthemum show. More than 300,000 blooms are on exhibit and the show is to continue through this month, according to August Koch, chief gardener. Tomorrow night the Men's Garden club of Aurora region is to visit the show in a body.

FRENCH DEPUTY ASSAILS U. S. FOR IGNORING LEAGUE

Briand Collapses Amid Debate in Chamber.

BY EGBERT SWENSON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Uncle Sam received a verbal lashing in the chamber of deputies today when the debate on France's foreign policy opened. The criticism was launched by Deputy Alfred Margaine, who attacked the American government for its past attitude toward Europe and the league of nations.

"The Americans long treated Europe as an insupportable child and neglected the league of nations," he cried. "Then suddenly the New York financiers saw a chasm opening beneath them and the government began to realize that the United States could not remain isolated."

U. S. Workmen Spendthrifts.

In his denunciation, the deputy assailed the American workman as a senseless spendthrift.

Only once did Premier Laval rise to defend the French policy on foreign affairs.

"At no time during my conversations with President Hoover was the question raised of France lending money to Germany," he said and sat down.

The premier will report on his conference at Washington, D. C., on Friday.

The session turned to drama in the late afternoon when Foreign Minister Aristide Briand virtually collapsed in his place on the government bench alongside Laval and was rushed home. Physicians examined the grizzled foreign chief and declared that he was in a state of overwork.

Worries Over Oriental Conflict.

The burden and worry of attempting to end the Manchurian conflict, which appears to consider as a matter of responsibility, piled on top of personal political cares, the reopening of parliament, and a bone too great physical condition caused Briand's collapse, his friends said.

Arriving twenty minutes late for the opening of the session he presented a curious spectacle from the diplomatic box. He leaned his head upon his hand and fell asleep. From time to time his elbow would slip and he would make an attempt to sit upright. A moment later he would be slumbering again.

After a twenty minute recess, which the speaker later explained he had called for the sake of Briand, the foreign minister returned to his seat, but immediately dozed off again, this time passing out completely amid the worried buzz of conversation among the deputies and the audience in the galleries. He was gently awakened by a colleague and hurried home.

After only a few minutes rest, Briand hurried off to keep an appointment with Ambassador Yoshizawa of Japan in another effort to settle the Manchurian quarrel.

GETS BLACKMAIL THREATS AFTER CLOSING OF BANK

Arthur C. Clemenson, 8009 Kingsley avenue, president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, has received two blackmail letters purporting to come from disgruntled depositors of the closed Cheltenham Trust and Savings bank, of which his father, C. Clemenson, was chairman of the board.

The first letter, according to Mr. Clemenson, was received on Oct. 28. In it was a demand that he put $5,640 in a shoe box and hide it in a pipe in the rear of 7823 Burnham avenue. The matter was turned over to Alexander Jamie of the Secret Six and his operatives placed a dummy box and watched it one night.

Nothing happened. On Saturday another missive arrived. Mr. Clemenson was informed that the "time for joking" had passed and that unless he placed the money as he was told to he would be taken for a ride. Early yesterday morning he took a dummy box to the place named and left it. This time three policemen kept vigil, again without result, and the package was removed at daybreak.

The Cheltenham bank was closed in June. Frank McKey, receiver, paid a dividend of 40 per cent to depositors of the institution on Oct. 26.

AMERICA STUDIES GERMANY'S PLEA ON REPARATIONS

Berlin's Ability to Pay Scrutinized.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Ambassador Frederic M. Sackett and his staff tomorrow will scrutinize a copy of the long memorandum in which the German government will ask the world bank and international powers to investigate her ability to pay her reparations and to help Germany formulate a plan to pay her private debts.

This afternoon the American ambassador and a British representative were informed confidentially of the provisional text of the German letter. Its details are receiving final attention at a conference between Secretary of State Buelow of Germany and Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, in Paris. The Germans hope that the difficulties will be ironed out tomorrow. This will enable them to present their letter at Basel on Thursday, when the world bank is expected to summon the financial experts on Nov. 26.

Short of Foreign Money.

As a showdown of Germany's financial situation is approaching, American and other diplomats are studying with the greatest of care the reports of the Reichsbank which were issued today. It shows that despite a favorable trade balance achieved by Germany in October, the Reichsbank is still short of foreign currency. The covering for currency dropped to 26.7 per cent last week instead of 40 per cent as required by the law before the crash.

Plea's Text Reaches Paris.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Nov. 17.—Obstacles in the path of accord between Germany and France, permitting the Germans to call for a moratorium on reparations under the terms of the Young plan have been removed and a telegraphic text of the German request was received by the French government tonight. Ambassador Leopold von Hoesch of Germany called on Minister of Finance Flandin tonight to discuss the procedure of investigating Germany's financial condition.

PONDER SUIT TO REGAIN $648,444 TAXES FOR CITY

Corporation Counsel Sexton is expected to confer this week with Samuel P. Gurman, special assistant corporation counsel, on the advisability of continuing litigation before the bureau of internal revenue in Washington to collect $648,444 that was paid in federal income taxes by four real estate experts employed by a former city administration.

In Mr. Gurman's opinion, the city's claim to the taxes, plus interest, bringing the total to some $800,000, is not as well founded now as it was before the Illinois Supreme court held that one of the experts, Edward C. Waller Jr., is not liable for the more than $500,000 he got from the city in fees.

Action to recover the taxes was begun in May, 1929 when a brief was drawn by Attorney Gurman and Attorney Jay A. Schiller, now a Municipal judge. The suit contended that the taxes were paid by the experts—Waller, Arthur S. Merigold, Frank H. Mesce, and Ernest H. Lyons—on incomes which were pronounced illegal by Circuit Judge Friend and ordered refunded to the city.

COLDS
Break Up in a Jiffy
This Quick Way

Feel Like a New Man Almost Before You Know It

People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

FINDS BILLBOARD CONCERN ESCAPES SURVEY BY CITY

In questioning employes of the city building department yesterday Ald. Thomas J. O'Grady [14th], chairman of the council judiciary committee, disclosed that it has been the custom of the department to accept without investigation the statement of the Outdoor Advertising company as to the number of its billboards.

Employes of the department said that Frank Doherty, commissioner of buildings under the late Mayor Dever, gave them the order. They admitted that building department inspectors compiled the lists of billboards owned by other companies. The lists are used in charging the companies permit fees.

Patrick F. Sullivan, president of the building trades council, headed a delegation that appeared at the committee meeting. He requested that the billboard fee in the new ordinance which the committee is preparing be made reasonable.

Representatives of the Outdoor Advertising company agreed to negotiate with the city for payment of permit fees on 700 billboards which, according to Ald. O'Grady, were erected without city permission. The number of illegally erected billboards is larger, O'Grady said, but some of the records of the building department have been destroyed and an accurate survey cannot be made.

Two Kidnapers of Aurora Man Sent to Prison

Freeport, Ill., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Cecil Kronk, 29, and Vernon Crouse, 22, of Aurora, Ill., kidnapers of L. E. Hurd of Aurora, were sentenced today by Judge H. L. Heer in Circuit court to serve one year to life after they pleaded guilty to robbery with a gun.

The authorities said the pair compelled Hurd to drive to the vicinity of Galena, robbed and bound him and then threw him into a field. They were arrested after skidding off a road in Hurd's car.

Prisoners' Families Wait in Vain; Jail Leak Halted

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Seven prisoners in the new Lincoln Heights jail were denied their regular jail break last night. Jailors, puzzled for some time as to how the prisoners could be absent from the jail each night yet always be present for morning roll call, found a defective window. Last night the prisoners were tapped on the shoulder as they crawled one by one through the window, and told that their families must await them in vain.

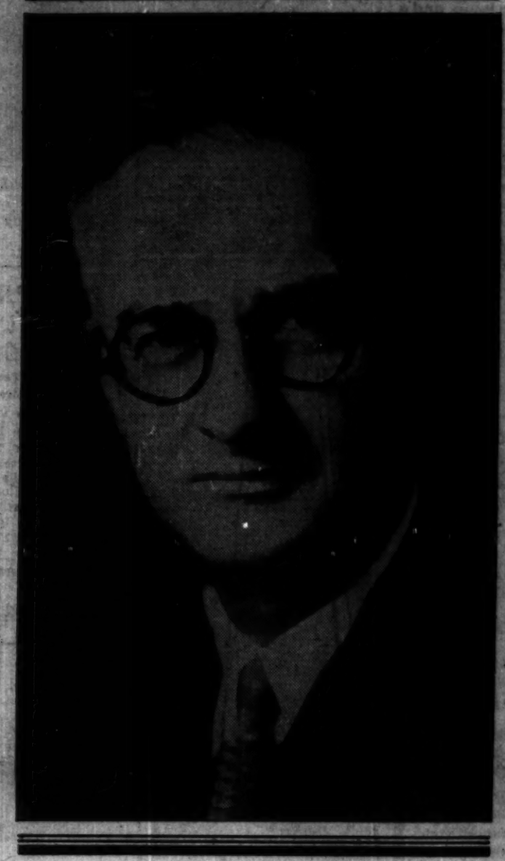
"ALL ADVERTISEMENTS SHOULD MAKE THE READER HUNGRY"
—George Matthew Adams

.... YES, MR. ADAMS, BUT ALL ADVERTISEMENTS SHOULD NOT BE POINTED AT HUNGRY READERS.



George Matthew Adams, author, advertising counselor, president George Matthew Adams service, and a regular contributor to Free Press editorial pages.

But in circulating an advertisement in this much discussed period, the ancient practice of buying alleged "readers" by gobs and batches in a market on the "complete coverage" theory, is no longer being looked upon with favor by Boards of Directors. Too much advertising in the recent "new era" went down the sink as waste, in trying to sell those who have not.

It is now high time to point advertising squarely at those who have, not towards those who may be hungry. Hungry readers are of course unfortunate facts, but they are to be reckoned with by public welfare officials, not by space buyers.

In Detroit, The Free Press most capably meets this new requisite of effective advertising—this need of selling where buyers are. It delivers at lower cost practically all of the homes worth advertising to, and without duplication at the contact-hour.

Free Press circulation has never been inflated. It still is and has always been composed of the more productive elements in the market. It squarely matches the space-buying ideas of Mr. Lee N. Bristol, president of the A. N. A., when he said: "We would like to see circulation on a basis of reader-interest and measurable buying power."

In the Detroit City Districts Where There Are:

89% of all chain drug stores
81% of electric refrigerator sales
78% of all radio receivers
70% of all telephones
67% of all food sales
79% of all automobile sales

. . . the Free Press concentrates 79% of its city circulation and reaches approximately three out of every four homes.

MISSING BRITISH GIRL LOCATED IN LODGING HOUSE

Left Wellesley Home to Hunt Job, She Says.

Springfield, Mass., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Miss Rosemary Pamela Gilding, 17 year old English heiress who disappeared from the home of Professor Hamilton C. MacDougall of Wellesley college last Saturday afternoon, was found in a downtown lodging house here today.

Miss Gilding, who is the daughter of a London banker, told policewomen that she had become unbearably homesick and lonesome and that she had set out to earn enough money to defray her passage home. To this end she filled an application with a local employment agency for a position and it was through this application that she was traced, after an agency employd had recognized her from photographs of the missing student.

Asked why she did not cable her father for her passage money, Miss Gilding declared between sobs:

"Because my father hasn't as much money as people think he has."

The girl said that she had between $10 and $20 when she left Wellesley.

Upon her arrival here she registered at the Clinton hotel, using her right name. She checked out of there yesterday morning and went in search of "less expensive quarters."

'TRAP' SLAYER AT FT. WAYNE GETS 2 TO 21 YEARS

Jury Finally Votes Verdict for Manslaughter.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—George Adams will be sentenced to the Indiana state prison for from two to twenty-one years for shooting to death John L. Wilson of Indianapolis, a federal dry agent, during an entrapment July 25, in which another agent also was killed. Adams was found guilty of voluntary manslaughter today by a jury which had deliberated seventeen hours after hearing evidence in first degree murder.

GEORGE ADAMS. [Acme Photo.] Adams' trial for

Judge Clarence McNabb indicated he would sentence Adams tomorrow. Defense counsel declared itself satisfied with the verdict and announced that a new trial would not be asked.

The sentence Adams will receive is less than one imposed in federal court for violation of liquor laws about two years ago.

May Drop Other Case.

Prosecutor Walter Helmke declared he would recommend to prison trustees that Adams be made to serve at least ten years instead of being released at the expiration of the minimum term.

The state was undecided today what disposition it would make of an indictment against Adams for second degree murder in the death of Walter M. Gilbert of Indianapolis, another dry agent whom Adams shot and killed in the same entrapment. It is thought the case will be dropped in view of the decision today.

Used Jug for a Trap.

Wilson, Gilbert, Oliver J. Gettel, another agent, and Clarence Green, a dry informer, tried to trap Adams with a jug of liquor after Gilbert and Green had posed as liquor dealers and gained Adams' confidence. Gilbert shot Adams in the back of the neck. Adams then killed two of the agents, while the others fled.

The decision was favorably received about the city, which is decidedly anti-prohibition. The federal government has been doubly vigilant since the two officers were slain and there are no open saloons here, although liquor is obtainable at reasonable prices in inconspicuous places.

Woman, Owner of Walton Club, Held on Rum Charge

Selina Tully, 34 years old, owner of the Walton club at 69 East Walton street, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $2,000 by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday on charges of maintaining a nuisance and possessing liquor. John Fields and Charles Barber, bartenders at the club, were also held to the grand jury in bonds of $1,500 each. The place was raided by police and prohibition agents on Oct. 16 and approximately $900 worth of choice liquors confiscated, according to Assistant United States Attorney Alfred W. Bosworth.

NEWBERRY JURORS TOLD HOW U. S. MEN FOUND DISTILLERY

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam's forces scored in the opening round of the celebrated "Ted" Newberry conspiracy case here today when Federal Judge Louis FitzHenry denied a motion to strike out evidence offered by prohibition agents.

TED NEWBERRY.

The initial legal entanglement occurred after James R. Cornett, Danville, a member of the prohibition forces which raided Barbonciffe, Rock Island, in July, 1930, had testified for more than three hours. He was the initial witness called by the government and he told what the squad found at the "slaughter house," distillery, which resulted in the ultimate arrest of "Ted" Newberry and 29 other defendants now facing trial.

He said that the plant was equipped with two large stills, one a first run or beer still, and the other a finishing still with capacity of 1,720 gallons of mash.

He testified they found 922 one-gallon cans containing alcohol in one of the rooms.

TWO OF FACTOR PALS WIN FIGHT AGAINST PRISON

Attorneys for John (Jake the Barber) Factor, who for several months has been fighting extradition to England, where he is wanted for trial in connection with an alleged $7,000,000 stock swindle, announced yesterday that they had received a cablegram from London stating that two of Factor's associates, co-defendants in the case, had won their freedom on appeal.

The two are Frederick Newberry and Burnett L. Elman. They were found guilty recently of participating in the sale of stock issued on African mining properties alleged to be worthless and sentenced to prison. According to Factor's attorneys, the cablegram said the appeals had been won on arguments that the mining properties were not valueless.

United States Commissioner Walker will hand down his ruling in Factor's extradition case on Nov. 30. Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson yesterday took under advisement a motion to dismiss the receivership proceedings instituted by English plaintiffs against the $2,000,000 trust fund established in Chicago by Factor for his wife and son.

Yalowitz and his bookkeeper, Miss Esther Shugan, and two truck drivers were locked in a cellar by the bandits.

It Takes an Unusual Woman to Make this Choice

THE ordinary woman does not wear orchids. They are too costly—their appeal too subtle and elusive. She prefers flowers more boldly flattering . . . roses, violets.

Nor does the ordinary woman use Pebeco Tooth Paste. It is NOT one of those foamy, sweet-tasting preparations designed more to please the palate than benefit the teeth.

Pebeco is really different. It is the MOST EXPENSIVE tooth paste in the world to make, for 40% of every tube is an ingredient not found in any other tooth paste. This ingredient is vital for the clean, refreshed condition in which it leaves your teeth and mouth. Yet ordinary tooth pastes omit it because it is too expensive and because it takes away that sweet, candy-like flavor so important to the masses.

Just think about this: Pebeco is not meant to be a pleasant tasting confection . . . it is a dentifrice. Millions use it regularly not because they prefer the taste, not because they have been influenced by extravagant advertising claims, but because of the way it helps them keep their teeth clean. It is the choice of the unusual. The THINKING person.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

Next time your head stuffs up, eyes water and nose runs, see how quickly you can snap out of a miserable cold just by taking Pape's Cold Compound.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should feel quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

COUNTESS HERE TO TELL ABOUT HUNGARY TODAY

She Finds Prohibition a Bit Bewildering.

Countess Margit Bethlen, whose husband was for ten years prime minister of a kingdom without a king, arrived in Chicago last evening for a series of social events and a lecture on her experiences and those of her country since the war.

The countess was impressed by the "tall houses" and the "many little houses" she saw en route from New York. She is somewhat bewildered by prohibition, but she doesn't mind it personally, for she is a teetotaler.

"In Hungary we couldn't have prohibition," she said, "because we grow so many grapes. What could we do with the grapes if we didn't drink wine? But people don't get drunk in Hungary; it takes so much wine. Sometimes the peasants get drunk on feast days, but nobody in the cities."

"Don't Want Republic."

The Hungarians, she said, are happy with their United party, founded by her husband, Count Stephen Bethlen, in 1920, and their regent, Admiral Horthy.

"We don't want a republic and we would not tolerate communism," said the countess. "We don't know when we shall have a king, but the monarchy will stand."

Hungary, explained the countess, has suffered from the depression like all other countries in Europe. Its money is stable, but it has suffered because of the decline in prices for agricultural products, which Hungary must export.

Will Tell of Revolts.

Countess Bethlen will tell of her experiences during the revolution in 1918, when she "had to run away;" of the republic set up by Count Karolyi; of the communist uprising in 1919, when she "had to run away again;" of the short lived dictatorship of the proletariat and the reestablishment of the kingdom. She will lecture on Saturday at the Palmer house as a feature of the Town hall series.

The countess is vivacious. She has blue eyes and bobbed hair.

WIFE OF FORMER PREMIER HERE

COUNTESS VON BETHLEN.

18 ARE CALLED TO SMOKE WAR HEARING TODAY

The activity of the city's smoke abatement department will center today on a number of organizations and concerns whose stacks have poured soot and smoke into the air. Representatives have been summoned to appear today at the office of Frank A. Chambers, chief city smoke inspector, to explain violations of the smoke abatement ordinance. The notices have been served on the following:

Carpenters' district council, 12 East Erie street.
Whitaker Manufacturing company, 400 South Green street.
Alex Friend & Co., 420 South Green street.
Schoenbrun & Co., 346 West Adams street.
M. Born & Co., 340 South Wells street.
Charles G. Stevens company, 354 West Monroe street.
Fleischim Shoe company, 341 West Adams street.
Ross & Browne, 9 South Clinton street.
Alfred L. Miltenberg & Co., 634 West Adams street.
Butler Brothers, 420 West Randolph street.
Paul F. Beich Candy company, 136 South Green street.
Alex Friend & Co., 551 West Monroe street.
Friedley-Voshardt company, 702 Mather court.
John B. Mallers Jr., 332 South Market street.
Anti-Cruelty society, 153 West Grand avenue.
G. A. R. Laundry company, 3122 Armitage avenue.
Marshall Field & Co., State and Washington streets.
Union Station power house, Harrison and Canal streets.

At the hearing Mr. Chambers will determine what has caused the violation in each case and make recommendations to prevent a further nuisance. If another violation occurs within 30 days after the hearing suit will be started by the city in the Municipal court.

In the last two weeks several hundred violators have been summoned to the hearings. The value of the hearings, according to Mr. Chambers, is that 90 per cent of those attending do not again violate the smoke abatement ordinance.

Miami Seizes Auto Dealer Charged with Fraud Here

Authorities at Miami notified Sheriff Lester Tiffany in Waukegan yesterday that they had arrested Herbert Nevitt, 45 years old, former Highland Park automobile dealer, a fugitive since last October on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. In an indictment voted Oct. 30 by the Lake county grand jury, Nevitt was charged with getting a $9,325 loan from the Highwood State bank at Highwood, by representing himself as the owner of fifteen cars to which he had no claim. Deputy Sheriff Thomas Kenney left for Miami last night to return the prisoner to Waukegan.

"JUNGLE" BURNED, 100 HOBOS WILL RIDE OUT ON RODS

The 150 "householders" of Hoboville, the settlement at Monroe and Sangamon streets, whose shacks were burned Monday by police, were ordered to get out of town yesterday by Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli.

They were led before him in groups of fifty. About a hundred of them promised to start "riding the rods" away from Chicago immediately. The others said that they would leave the ruined colony of huts and seek shelter with relatives or friends elsewhere in the city.

A month ago a number of the huts were destroyed by a fire.

TESTS VIADUCT BOND ISSUE VOTED BY LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The suit of J. E. Burney, taxpayer, contesting validity of the recent $200,000,000 bond issue voted by Los Angeles and associated cities for construction of a Colorado river aqueduct, today was set for trial in Superior court Nov. 27. Burney is an officer of the Long Beach, Cal., Taxpayers' association. He contends that the bond issue is insufficient for its purposes and that the legislative act under which it was voted is unconstitutional.

COFFEE GROWERS UPSET REGIME IN BRAZILIAN STATE

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Coffee growers, allied with the military, peacefully overthrew the state government last Friday in an effort to obtain federal appointment of a provisional governor who would be favorable to their project to burn 18,000,000 sacks of surplus coffee.

Gov. Laudo de Comargo and José M. Whitaker, who resigned as federal minister of finance, were opposed to the project because the coffee was collateral for the last $100,000,000 of a coffee loan floated in the United States.

The growers now propose a ten shilling export tax to finance the burnings and to be substituted for the collateral. It was the fourth government change in fifteen months and disturbed Sao Paulo's recent business revival. It followed a year's fight by growers against De Comargo and Whitaker.

ASKS TAX BOOST ON INCOMES OF $50,000 AND UP

Bacharach Says It Would Raise 750 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Most important, perhaps, because it was the most concrete and because it has been mentioned as the basis from which tax debate may take off, was the program laid down by Representative Isaac Bacharach [Rep., N. J.], member of the house ways and means committee.

Representative Bacharach proposed a measure which would increase the tax rate on incomes of $50,000 and up, and which would levy taxes on luxuries and non-essential commodities. In a sense, his bill would be retroactive, since the increase would be levied on 1931 incomes, rather than on those of next year.

Deficit Put at 2 Billions.

Through such a measure, Mr. Bacharach declared, the government might expect to raise an additional 750 millions with which to meet the estimated deficit of 2 billions next June 30.

In a previously proposed program Representative Bacharach had suggested that income tax increases begin with the $100,000 bracket.

Added interest to Mr. Bacharach's proposal arose from reports from Trenton, N. J., that he would be offered the vacancy in the senate left by the death of Senator Dwight W. Morrow.

Democrats Still Coy.

The Democrats in congress continued to be coy about expressing themselves definitely on the matter of raising increased revenues. It was rumored that Representative John N. Garner [Dem., Tex.], who is slated for speaker if the Democrats control the house, had examined the Bacharach plan and found it agreeable in the main. But Mr. Garner declined to commit himself. Officially, the congressional Democrats will have no announcement of a program until after they caucus on Dec. 5, he said.

Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, ranking Democratic member of the senate finance committee, would speak of tax legislation only in the most general terms.

Those Best Able to Pay.

"If the administration insists on tax revision, the Democrats, in my opinion, will adhere to their principle of imposing taxes on those best able to pay," Senator Harrison asserted. "No one at this time can say with any degree of definiteness what the program will be."

Representative Willis C. Hawley [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the house ways and means committee during the last congress, said that he was reluctant to see an increase in taxes, but admitted that pressure for such an increase was strong. He believed the government might get along with further bond issues until a return of prosperity.

READERS OF TRIBUNE GIVE OVER $23,000 TO FEED CHILDREN

More than $23,000 has been contributed by the readers of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to supply luncheons to poor pupils of the city schools. The contributions have saved thousands of children from going hungry, but the need is growing as the cold weather approaches.

Supt. Bogan estimates that 15,000 children in the schools will need free lunches during the winter. They will lack the necessary nickel or dime to pay for a nourishing meal in the school lunchrooms.

All funds contributed are turned over to the school authorities for use in the regular school lunches. Tickets are given to the teachers, who turn them over to the needy pupils. By using the tickets these pupils are supplied with food with the rest of the children without the embarrassment of receiving open charity.

Following are the contributions received yesterday:

U. S. Court Delays Decision on Jail Contempt Case

Disposition of the contempt of court case against Sheriff Henry Perucca of Grundy county and Anton Rench, former mayor of Stickney, now an inmate of the Grundy county jail at Morris, was continued yesterday to Dec. 1 by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. Perucca is accused of allowing undue liberties to Rench, who is serving a year term for violation of the prohibition law. At the same time Judge Woodward set Dec. 15 for a hearing on similar charges against Henry T. Jones, former sheriff of the same county, and Matt Blazer, Oak Park bootlegger, who was recently released from a six months sentence.

Mother of 6 Spared from Jail on Liquor Charge

The plea that she had six children to care for and was expecting a seventh saved Mrs. Martha Wolovicz, 40 years old, from a jail sentence when she was arraigned before Municipal Judge Francis Borrelli yesterday for the third time on the charge of selling liquor in her husband's grocery at 2958 West 26th street. She was fined $100 and costs.

FINDS "TASTE BLINDNESS" TO BE WIDESPREAD

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 17.—(AP)—Discovery of widespread "taste blindness" among human beings was reported to the National Academy of Sciences at Yale university today.

Another discovery, also reported today, gives promise of taking the poisonous effects out of powerful medicinal drugs, without losing curative properties.

The taste blindness was reported by Dr. Albert F. Blakeslee of the Carnegie institution, Cold Spring Harbor, N. Y., and Dr. Arthur L. Fox of the Du Pont company. It has been identified thus far in confusion about the various sour, bitter, and salty phases of taste. Many tests were given to persons of all ages with a distinctly bitter substance, phenyl thio carbamide.

"A few," said Dr. Blakeslee, "could not detect the bitterness. Some said it was sour; some called it peppery, and others described it as astringent, like alum."

Still more varied was the amount of taste substance required before a flavor could be recognized and named. Some persons detected strong taste in amounts of flavoring substances which to others were merely plain water.

POLICE USE OF RADIO SHOWS INCREASE IN YEAR, REPORT SHOWS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—During the last fiscal year the number of police radio stations in the United States increased from 29 to 53, the radio division of the department of commerce revealed today in its annual report. Construction permits for 10 more such stations have been issued, the report stated.

The radion division now has ten monitoring stations located at various points throughout the country for the purpose of keeping broadcasting stations within their allotted frequencies. These stations, one of which is at Chicago, measured more than 76,447 frequencies during the last fiscal year the report stated. The present allowance of 500 cycles above to 500 cycles below assigned frequencies is to be reduced to 50 cycles on June 23, 1932.

George Williams, Film Actor, Killed by Auto

Santa Monica, Cal., Nov. 17.—(AP)—George Williams, 65, screen character actor, was killed today when he was struck down by an automobile as he started to cross a street in the business section.

RAILWAY SIGNAL LIGHT MYSTERY HALTS INQUEST

An inquest into the death of James Shelldrake, 50 years old, a brakeman was crushed to death early yesterday in a spectacular collision of two freight trains at West 75th street and South Oakley avenue, was continued later in the day to Dec. 2. Shelldrake was the father of ten children and lived at 13815 Lowell street, Harvey.

Deputy Coroner Henry Laffan postponed the inquiry at the Chicago Lawn police station when the engineers of both trains testified that they had gone on because the signal lights were green. Tower operators said that this was impossible.

In the crash were a 90 car Baltimore and Ohio freight train, going north, and an Illinois Central freight train west bound on the Indiana Harbor Belt line tracks.

Shelldrake was killed on the I. C. train. John Crowley, 45 years old, 4947 Forsythe avenue, East Chicago, the head brakeman, and William F. Kendricks, 26 years old, 1434 South California avenue, Homerville, the fireman, on the B. and O. train, were scalded by escaping steam.

TWO HELD AS ROBBERS.

Gabriel Dodaro, 21 years old, 709 North 7th avenue, Melrose Park, and Carl Meyer, 19 years old, 113 South 11th avenue, Maywood, were held to the grand jury yesterday, charged with robbing Frank Hinman, 6801 West North avenue, Oak Park, of $36.

"I could not write a better prescription" says a famous child specialist of this pure vegetable preparation—

A mother was consulting an eminent child specialist not long ago about the little upsets her baby seemed to have with disturbing regularity.

Mother: "I am so careful about my baby's diet. He gets his milk, fruit, vegetables and cereal just as you advise. Everything seems fine for a time, then suddenly he starts fussing, refuses food—and I know he's in for another upset. Why is it?"

Doctor: "It's simply Nature's way of asking for a little help. Very small things cause upsets with a baby. A little too much of one food, not quite enough of another—it requires a delicate balance to keep little organs running smoothly.

"In spite of careful feeding, bowels do need regulative help now and then in carrying off their daily load of waste.

Mother: "Is it perfectly harmless? I am afraid of strong medicines for a baby or young child."

Doctor: "Castoria is perfectly safe. It is a pure vegetable preparation and contains no harsh drugs, no narcotics. It works mildly and gently, yet it is always effective. I could not write a better prescription.

"A safe, sensible thing to do at the first sign of a cold, fever or digestive upset, is to give your baby a first-aid cleansing dose of Castoria."

Follow this simple advice the next time your child seems upset. Genuine Castoria always has the name Chas. H. Fletcher on the package. Be sure you get it.

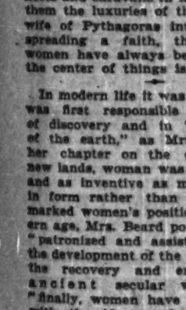
Mary Beard Depicts World's Debt to Women

Makes Them Inventors of Civilizing Arts.

By Fanny Butcher.

"On Understanding Women," Mary R. Beard. [Longmans-Green Published today.

AN extremely important contribution has been made to the understanding of women by Mrs. Beard's volume published today. She has set forth the impossible panorama of woman's place in history and in civilization viewed historically, intellectually and economically. She makes no special plea for feminine rights opposed to masculine accomplishment. She sees, as a matter of fact, woman an opposition as the chief danger of a feminine policy. "On Understanding Women" is not a recital of woman's achievement as a sex, but rather the record of her undeniable, though often misinterpreted, participation in the making of the world.



MARY BEARD.

As woman actually is the mother of man, so she has been the mother of invention, of art, of politics, of science. Mrs. Beard makes that plain.

"We see primitive woman," she says, "as the inventors of the domestic arts—cooking, spinning, weaving, garnering, guarding, doctoring, providing comforts and conveniences, and making beginnings in the decorative arts. They are launching civilization. Under all the social forms and transformations that have existed since primitive times, activities connected with food, clothing and shelter, woman's first interests, have continued, setting commerce in train, spurring invention, establishing systems of economy more amazing. When man acquired responsibility for weaving garments, the manufacture of soap, and the confection of lingerie, women remained workers, designers, arbiters of taste, and beneficiaries of profits. Amusing as it may seem, it is primitive woman's interest that is now the prime concern of civilized man."

"When kings, priests and noble classes were established to engage the attention of historians, women merely dropped out of the pen portraits. They remained in the actuality," Mrs. Beard declares, and gives us illuminating pages of history which prove the actuality.

"Whether it is Aspasia lecturing to Pericles and friends," Mrs. Beard writes, "Sappho 'teaching' Socrates, Roman women participating in senatorial conflicts and battles over the succession to the imperial throne, queens contending for their patrimonies, the daughters of the rich setting fleets and caravans in motion to bring them the luxuries of the east, or the wife of Pythagoras interpreting and spreading a faith, the truth is that women have always been in or near the center of things is illustrated.

In modern life it was a woman who was first responsible for voyages of discovery and in "the conquest of the earth," as Mrs. Beard calls her chapter on the colonization of new lands, woman was as resourceful and as inventive as man. "Change in form rather than in substance marked women's position in the modern age, Mrs. Beard points out. "Women patronized and assisted directly in the development of the new learning, the recovery and enlargement of ancient secular wisdom." "Finally, women have been identified with the ideas and movements of social amelioration from the sixteenth century to the latest hour as thinkers, experimenters, propagandists, administrators."

Mrs. Beard's volume is in no sense a history of the struggle of women kind to achieve a position equal to man's. It is rather the historical statement of woman's position throughout the ages beside man.

"We are primitive women," she says, "at the inventors of the domestic economies, spinning, weaving, sewing, guarding, doctoring, providing comforts and conveniences, and making beginnings in the decorative arts. BY EDWARD MOORE.

THIS is without doubt the greatest love opera ever written. Equally without doubt, last night's performance of it was the finest I have ever heard.

Wagner's music dramas are so monumental that sometimes their very size is considered sufficient to make them a success. This performance, however, proved that spirit is just as good for Wagner as for any other composer. It had the large outlines, to be sure, but it also had pace and glow.

The luminous prose of the first act was eloquent as never before in spite of the fact that it could have been blue-penciled a bit more. When it came to that tremendous love scene of the second act it was ecstatic, it was rhapsodic, it was everything that had ever been said and written on the subject from the beginning of time, all translated into terms of the words and music of Wagner.

This was a cast in whom the Civic Opera company and all of Chicago may well take pride. Moreover, it was a cast full of the idea of outdoing all past performances. Mme. Leider as Isolde was a marvel of lovely singing. Mr. Althouse was singing the part of Tristan for the first time anywhere and doing it with as much poise and aplomb as though it were the fifty-first. Maria Olszewska's Brangaene was just about the top point of a long and interesting series of operatic characters. And for almost the first time I learned that King Marke is capable of something more than gentle remonstrance upon making the discovery of disruption in his family.

The general attitude of nearly every Marke has always been, and I may this without exaggeration, to assume a manner as though saying, "Now let us consider this in a friendly spirit and I will try to prove to you that you have been wrong." Wherefore there was an extra thrill in discovering that Mr. Kipnis made it a matter of intense though dignified tragedy.

Mr. Pollak at the conductor's stand was responsible for the pace, setting it in the finest Wagnerian manner. Each individual of the cast picked it up as he gave it and carried it on with manner and distinction. It is difficult just at this moment to pick out all the musical high spots of the performance. The duet of the two lovers was one. Mr. Nissen's defiant gesture in the first act was another. I was unable to remain for his longer solo in the third. But just at present there is a vivid memory of Mme. Olszewska's song behind the scenes of the moonlit second act. It had magic in it.

Colleges Try to Help Farm Factory Living

So Argue Experts of Land Grant Schools.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The father of science in Illinois agriculture came out of retirement on hi. Michigan farmstead yesterday, and in the maturity of his 75 years, 53 of them as dean of agriculture in Michigan and Illinois, told of how education in his lifetime had been made available to every citizen, be he farmer or factory worker.

Eugene Davenport's address was one of the high spots in yesterday's sessions of presidents and deans of state universities and land grant colleges. Their 45th annual convention being held in the Hotel Stevens closes today.

"The spirit of the land grant college began as an attempt to provide an appropriate literature for the man on the farm and in the workshop," said Dr. Davenport. "It has resulted not only in developing our major industries but also in establishing a research and teaching service as broad as the interests of mankind and the limitation of knowledge—a service in which the student and the individual is always a means to an end and that end an ever advancing civilization."

Dr. Davenport was joined by three other veterans in this educational movement last night in eulogizing the spread of higher learning as well as technical training for professions other than those of medicine, law or theology. These men were President W. J. Kerr of Oregon State college, Dr. E. A. Bryan, president emeritus of Washington State college and Dr. W. O. Thompson, president emeritus of the Ohio State university.

A detailed review of a survey of land grant institutions by the federal office of education, completed almost simultaneously with the report of President Hoover's national committee on education, occupied the day's program. President J. J. Tigert of the University of Florida termed the survey "perhaps as nearly exhaustive as any study of education on a national scale completed up to this time."

"Considerable embarrassment" has been experienced by administrators of the land grant colleges, President Tigert said, as a result of the reorganization of state government.

"Entire administrative responsibilities for the institution should be vested in the governing boards with freedom to handle the funds and develop the educational program.

"The presidency of a state institution of higher learning should be entirely independent of politics and open to any one living anywhere who may possess the desired professional qualifications."

Rockefeller Group Gives $500,000 for the Jobless

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—The foundation, supported by John D. Rockefeller and his son, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., contributed $500,000 outright to New York's emergency unemployment relief today and made a further conditional gift of $250,000. The two Rockefellers recently gave the fund $1,000,000.

The $250,000 gift is conditional upon the rasing of $5,000,000 above $11,000,000 before July 1, 1932. $50,000 to be paid for each million from other sources.

The committee announced it has raised $11,710,903 for the relief of unemployment in New York this winter. The original goal of $12,000,000 has been raised to $18,000,000.

South opened with a bid of two no-trumps, holding a count of 19, which is required when only three suits are stopped. While, generally speaking, an opening bid of two no-trump is far to be preferred to an opening bid of one of a suit when that choice is presented, I believe this hand is the exception to the general rule. With the worthless doubleton in clubs and two strong four card suits, I believe that South took an unnecessary chance. I will, however, give you the bidding as it actually occurred before making further comment.

West passed, North took out with three clubs, East passed, and South bid three no-trump.

The proper result was reached, although the bidding should have been: South, one heart; West, pass; North, two clubs; East, pass; South, three no-trump.

West opened with the ♥ 7, the ♥ Q came from dummy, the ♥ 4 from East, and the ♥ 3 from South. South now finds himself in a difficult situation. He is in the dummy and he can only be sure of getting back there once more. Further, he must establish his club suit to make game unless he wishes to depend on making all three of his possible finesses.

South did not believe he was quite lucky enough to do this, but he did think that he might be fortunate enough to find the ♣ K on his left. If it is and is not guarded more than twice, game is assured to him. He, therefore, led the ♣ 2 from his dummy, East played the 8, South the 6, and West the 5. East then led the ♥ 9, which South took with the A, discarding the ♦ 2 from his dummy. South now led his ♣ 7, taking the finesse, as West failed to play his K. And that was that, so far as the game was concerned. South had but to take in his remaining club tricks, his ♥ K, his ♣ A, and his ♦ A.

Of course, South was fortunate in finding West with the ♣ K. However, there was a 50-50 chance of West having the K, and it was South's only chance of making game. Being a good player, South naturally grasped the only opportunity.

Just two weeks from tomorrow is the night of Golden Card tournament. If you have not already arranged to play at your club or at one of the numerous hotels featuring this greatest of all tournaments, be sure to have at least one table in your own home. By this time all the rules should be familiar to you. But, if they are not, it makes no difference. They will be published again in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE on Dec. 3, and at 8:20 p. m., ten minutes before the start of the tournament, I will tell you over W-G-N exactly what to do. It is all very simple. The one thing you need to do now is to get your table together and send in your contribution of $2 a player for the undernourished children's fund and the governor's unemployment fund.

THE TRIBUNE will immediately send you all of the material needed for the tournament.

PLAY-A-PROBLEM: SOLITAIRE OR PARTNERS

Play this hand tonight at your bridge game. Keep a record of the bid and play in the spaces provided. Numbers in the bidding squares are for successive rounds. Check your results with tomorrow's answer.

To play "Solitaire": Record the bids you think each hand would make in the bidding squares. After the final declaration has been made start the play, leading from the hand at declarer's left. As you play each card cross it off of the diagram and record it in the proper square, as 3, 3, H, K, etc. In the last column indicate the hand which won the round and lead from that hand on the next round.

Chicago Fund for Jobless Over 6 Millions

Drug Store and Bank Employes Boost Total.

Contributions of more than $95,000 to the joint emergency relief fund were announced yesterday, carrying the total to date to $6,312,356.

The largest subscription was made by the Walgreen company and its employés. The corporation donated $20,000 and the workers pledged $15,000 to the fund, the goal of which is $2,800,000.

Other large gifts included those of the employés of the Northern Trust company, $13,936; Great American Insurance company, $2,400; employés of Central Public Service corporation, $2,746; Fred S. James and Western department employés, $1,000; employés of Radio Keith Orpheum corporation, $1,473; employés of Lumberman's Mutual Casualty company, $5,000; employés of National Fire Insurance company of Hartford, $2,500; employés of Peabody Coal company, $5,000; employés of Griffin Wheel company, $2,773; employés of Chicago Carton company, $2,193; Cody Trust company and employés, $2,094, and Chicago Carton company, $1,000.

The benefits division of the fund announced yesterday that every motion picture theater in Chicago, Oak Park, Evanston, and La Grange had agreed to turn over to the fund all money taken in at their doors between 11 a. m. and 1 p. m. on Saturday. Many small theaters which usually open at 1 o'clock will have their first performance beginning at the earlier hour.

Edward L. Ryerson, Jr., president of the relief fund, yesterday urged that donors to the more than 200 welfare agencies in Cook county continue to give to them. The joint emergency fund will go to cover the entire budget of the Salvation Army and the Red Cross and for the entire overload and a large portion of the budgets of the United Charities, the Jewish Charities, and the Catholic Charities.

"This fund," said Mr. Ryerson, "cannot finance all the health, social welfare, protective, settlement and neighborhood work in Chicago. Support of the organizations handling such problems should be continued by those who have been regular donors."

Winners of the essay contest for high school pupils, who wrote on "The Joint Emergency Relief Fund," will be announced Saturday.

THE STAGE

"TONIGHT OR NEVER."

A comedy by Lili Hatvany, adapted by Frederic and Fanny Hatton; given at the Adelphi theater Nov. 17, 1931, with Fritzi Scheff as star, under the management of Chamberlain Brown, by arrangement with the David Belasco estate.

THE CAST.

Emma	Georgia Harvey
Albert von Gremer	Robert Law
The Unknown Gentleman	King Calder
Marchesa Sue Giovanni	Maude Odell

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

So this was the late David Belasco's last bow as impresario, and it ran through a season in New York! Well, well, well!—These ejaculations, no doubt, have an irreverent tone, which I shall probably live to regret. After all, Belasco's last play is a matter of some serious historical interest.

But when one has spent Sunday night with the smirched anecdotes of the "Vanities" and Monday night with the sexly sallies of "The Vinegar Tree," one's character begins to crack. If my approach to "Tonight or Never" seems slightly ribald, it merely means that the American stage has been getting in its deadly work. The atmosphere of our native drama is becoming highly toxic.

This comedy deals with a Hungarian opera singer who wanted to "live," as the saying goes, because her voice needed warmth and her steady paramour was an unfaithful bore. So she hied away in her best Paris evening dress to the headquarters of a handsome gigolo, previously unknown, and there she spent the second act panting at him while he responded with overwhelming vigor.

In the third act she was back at home, sublimely happy, singing better than ever. And the devastating gigolo turned out to be—but I musn't ruin the best trick of the plot. At any rate, he turned out well, and I fear that he made a decent woman out of her—at least to the extent of getting her a contract with the Metropolitan.

"Tonight or Never" was adapted from a mid-European original in a vein that has probably destroyed much of its Viennese or Hungarian flavor. Its dialogue runs along in a vein of upholstered Belascoism, employing every ornate cliché in the old-school ritual of boudoir romance. Here is a typical line, plucked at random out of the great sofa scene:

"You belong to the man whose kisses and passion take you up to the only heaven on earth!"

Fritzi Scheff of the many operettas is making her debut as a "straight" comedienne in the central rôle of this piece as successor to Helen Gahagan. She gives a crisp, alert performance in her usual piquant style, and is as plausible as the play permits. But she is a cool little realist, not completely at home in this plush environment. She is admirably in character, however, when she sings—and the rôle calls for an aria from "Faust" and the ballad, "Amour, Toujours Amour."

The others in the cast are competent, and the stage settings preserve the Belasco tradition for rich décor.

The producer of "The Green Pastures," professionally known as Laurence Rivers, Inc., and privately as Rowland Stebbins, will stage his next play in Chicago. It is called "Mr. Whistler"; it is a romantic comedy with the famous artist as its central character; and it will have a premiére at the Blackstone theater Dec. 27.

Women Crowd Cooking School on West Side

Thousands Brave Rain to Get Lessons.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

BRAVING intermittent downpours of rain, more than 5,000 west side housewives gathered at the entrance of Guyon's Paradise ballroom, 4000 Washington boulevard, yesterday to attend THE TRIBUNE School of Cookery. The crowds began coming early in the morning and because of the rain were admitted hours before the program started at 1:45 p. m., opening the third session of the school.

It was apparent that the fame of the recipes prepared by Mrs. Ida M. Chitwood, conductor of the school, had spread during the last two sessions on the north and south sides of Chicago. Hundreds of women, although they had attended the other sessions, were on hand yesterday to learn how to prepare another group of dishes planned by the nationally known food expert and dietitian.

An hour before the school was to open the 5,000 seats had been taken and ushers were placing more folding chairs near the stage. The balconies were filled. Even the booths surrounding the dance floor were crowded with women eager to see the food expert at work. All doors had been closed. At the side entrances women beat upon the doors in an effort to gain entrance, despite the advice of policemen that all seats inside were occupied.

With the appearance of Phil Maxwell, master of ceremonies, at the microphone, the vast audience broke into a thunder of applause, knowing the program was about to begin. Frank Bennett then led community singing with Mrs. Kathryn Bennett at the piano. This was followed by a stunt by Gayle Hinton, collegiate blues singer, with Lester Podewell and Art McConnell, comedians, of the Chicago conservatory's dramatic art department, and solos by Sylvia Loder Stone, contralto.

The curtains folded back disclosing the cheerful kitchen with the newest of conveniences and furnishings. Mary Meade, TRIBUNE home economics editor, then came on the stage and introduced Mrs. Chitwood.

There was a stir of approval when Mrs. Chitwood, after welcoming the women to the school, told them she was going to make a mixed grill.

"This is a dish that you can make in the oven and will be a whole meal in itself," Mrs. Chitwood told them. "What is more delicious than chops, mushrooms, link sausages, tomato, bacon, and sweet potato, all cooked in the oven? It is a dish your guests will want to go home and make the next day."

Mrs. Chitwood showed how to place the chops [lamb in this case], dusted with salt, pepper, and flour, in a baking sheet like one used for baking biscuits, after brushing the pan with a little fat. Around the chops she placed link sausages which had been cut apart. Then she arranged sliced tomatoes from which the cores had been removed around the sausages. Dip these in crumbs.

"You next take sweet potatoes which have been boiled until tender. The peelings should be removed and the potatoes dropped in a sugar syrup. The sugar will preserve the color. Cut the sweet potatoes in halves, which is a serving for each person. Arrange these around the tomatoes, dot with butter and sugar.

"The mushrooms may be placed about the chops with a half strip of bacon over each cap. Pop into the oven and cook 25 minutes. Just before removing from the oven, or when you turn the chops, grate cheese over the top of the mixed grill. And when the dish is done, it will be really a pleasure to place on the guest's place a lamb chop, mushrooms topped with bacon, two sausages, a slice of sweet potato, and two slices of broiled tomato. Add sprigs of parsley, and the dish will be additionally appetizing."

Other dishes she prepared were cheese sauce, potato puffs, sunset cake, Spanish steak, snowball salad, hot chicken ring, and sunshine special.

During the intermission, preceding the second cooking lecture of the afternoon, the women were entertained by the Cecille Barnett dancing students from the Chicago Musical college, Deice Owan, W-G-N pianist, and Emery Darcy, baritone.

The school will open at 1:45 again this afternoon and will continue through Friday. Prizes are given daily. On the final afternoon grand prizes will be awarded including an electric washing machine, refrigerator, iron, toaster, electric mixer, and vacuum cleaner.

The school of cookery will hold its final session Nov. 23 and 24 at the Coliseum. Programs will be given both afternoon and evening and housewives will be welcomed from all parts of the city.

The entertainment program this afternoon will consist of community singing directed by Carl Craven, assisted at the piano by Mrs. Bennett; a reading by Jeanne de Lee; solos by Esther Goodwin, contralto, of the American Conservatory, and MacKenzie Ward, baritone, of the Bush Conservatory, and dancing numbers from the Ideal Dancing studios.

Annette Livingston, of the Ned Wayburn Dance studios, will be one of the featured artists Friday afternoon at the final session at Guyon's Paradise.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

An item in THE TRIBUNE on Saturday, Nov. 7, incorrectly stated that Joseph Savoir had stolen eight silver foxes from the Skidmore fox farm in Marinette, Wis., and had taken them to a garage in the rear of 1976 North Hermitage avenue. A court in Marinette held that the foxes belonged to Savoir under a partnership agreement, that his arrest was malicious, and ordered John Frydryk of Marinette, the complainant, to pay the costs of the trial.

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

It was Kit Lenoure's twenty-sixth birthday. She'd worked four years as receptionist in a London family hotel and she felt herself in a groove. An East Africa guest offers her a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Boyderet, Kenya.

INSTALLMENT III.

OUT OF THE GROOVE.

"What do you want me for, Mr. Craig?" Kit asked.

"For the reception office, my dear. To take charge. I thought of you as soon as we had got things a bit settled. It would be good money. We can go into that later on. And I think you would enjoy the life. It's very free and friendly, although, of course, there are drawbacks, same as everywhere. But the climate is first class."

"But, Mr. Craig, could I do it? A big hotel? In Africa—a country I don't know a thing about?"

"Of course, you can do it." His shrewd eyes surveyed her confidently. His choice of her was the result of close observation on his former visits. Beneath her undoubted beauty he saw generosity and sweetness of spirit and the distinction of unusual intelligence. A large nature and a calm, capable will, as well as that indescribable quality we call charm. "You would soon fall into African ways. You mustn't think it is a big hotel because it's got such a grand name. It has no more rooms than this, although there is more space. Thirty bedrooms and about ten bathrooms, and one large suite that we keep for a millionaire safari, or some big government guns.

"We particularly want a young lady who has knowledge of London hotels, and one with her head screwed on the right way. We get a number of tourists nowadays, and sometimes, at a moment's notice, a big party going out on safari, people who are used to the best of everything, and want it, wherever they happen to be. My two partners and I agree that we want the London touch of a London girl, and a girl—" He had been going to say—"a girl who can keep her head with men"—but thought better of it and ended up—"A girl like you, Miss Lenoure."

Kit struggled with her confused feelings. There was that one thought that would come uppermost—Theo Sable was in Kenya. Probably he was in Kenya still. She wondered how large Kenya was. How extraordinary that she should get this offer today!

She had really no doubts about her power to fill the job. She knew the work of the reception office inside out, spending her life in it. For the last three weeks, indeed, she had been carrying it on in a particularly busy season, with guests coming and going every day, and doing another girl's work as well.

"The only thing is you must make up your mind at once," Mr. Craig went on. "We should want you out there as soon as possible. What notice would you have to give here?"

"A month."

"That would do. You would get out in November, the beginning of our dry weather, when the tourists come. You would be settled by Christmas. You'd have a bit more on your hands than here, in the social line, I mean. That's a great point out there—getting up dances and concerts and bridge tournaments, and mixing with the guests and seeing that they have a good time generally, particularly in the wet seasons. That's where they've been so handicapped since the Uniackes left. The manager is unmarried, and there's nobody else to do it." He smiled kindly at the girl. "Now, what do you say?"

"O, Mr. Craig, I hardly know—all at once!"

"You'll be well looked after, you know. There are lots of nice women in Soydoret, and plenty of nice young men! And you'd see a bit of the world!"

Yes, she would get out of this groove. She had that queer feeling, as if all her being were stirred up, as if she were being broken into little bits and put together again differently. And there was that thought—Theo Sable is somewhere in Kenya.

What she most wanted in the world! The happiness that she had missed.

And now she had the chance of going out and getting it.

But—there were a thousand buts! Her mother, her brother and sister—it was such a long way—the strangeness, the loneliness . . .

Theo Sable was somewhere in Kenya.

It happened in a second. The confusion of mind, the turmoil of emotion passed. Decision took its place. She was quiet and curiously at peace.

"Thank you, Mr. Craig," she said in a voice as collected as if she had been thinking over the proposal for weeks. "I will accept your offer. I like the idea very much."

Kit Lenoure could hardly believe that she was here, in the great port of Marseilles, glittering in early November sunshine as hot as summer, about to embark on the Messageries boat General Duphot for the port of Kilindini, in East Africa.

Yet here she was, alone, with her first class cabin passage, and the modest outfit in her luggage, that was being taken over by a blue bloused porter to the great liner that lay alongside the quay.

Noise, confusion, heat, strange smells, a mass of people hurrying this way and that, flower and newspaper kiosks, traveling food wagons on rubber tires being pushed along, filled with sandwich rolls, chocolates and nougat, wine and liquor bottles, and huge baskets of fruit; Algerian natives in snowy white robes and red fezes, with brilliant colored rugs and shawls thrown over their shoulders, others with both arms strung with ropes of artificial pearls; dussier men from the desert displaying one or two saddles of the finest Morocco make, to catch the eye of any rich "milor" who was going to play polo in India or Kenya—all the bustle and traffic that attend the going down to the sea in ships.

It had been an uneventful journey from London. Kit had had a sleeping car compartment to herself, the train being unusually empty. She was too dazed by the novelty of everything to take in very definite impressions. Her former trips abroad had been confined to a few days in Paris and a hectic week of winter sports in Grindelwald or Mürren. She had slept like a top, as the train hurtled through the night.

She had only spoken to one person, except railway officials, the whole way, a tall man with a handsome, bronzed, ironical face. She had almost fallen into his arms, as she was battered along the narrow corridor on her way back from the breakfast car that morning. She had dropped her bag and her tickets and papers had fallen out. He had retrieved them with a few polite words, and passed on with a quizzical smile, and, she thought, a look of surprise in his eyes. She had particularly noticed his eyes. They were dark grey and there was a light in them that blazed, although they were quite cold and impersonal. That passing look of his had given her a queer feeling. She would have liked to know who he was.

She gathered, from the number of taxis that transported her fellow travelers away from the quay, that most of them were going to lunch in the town. They were not sailing until late afternoon, she had been told. But she was going on board at once. She had been given a mighty good time in London before she left, and there were trickles of home sickness inside her, that indicated the immediate dispatch of a sheaf of picture postcards to her family and her kind friends.

Food Talk

Tomorrow let's give a thought to beans. I suppose our men folk who were in the war aren't as ready to consider them as we are, who know that there are beans and beans. The kind they had in France were one thing, and beans the way we fix them at home are something else entirely.

Here is one vegetable that's obtainable all the year round, in one form or another. Right now most of our beans come out of cans or in dried form. The next time you decide to serve baked beans, try the little limas for a change from the usual type. Baked baby limas are just enough different so that people who ordinarily aren't too enthusiastic over beans perk up when they see them.

When I cream lima beans and potatoes together, I prefer the regulation size, however, because they are more nearly the size of the potato pieces and make a better appearance.

Beans in cans are low in price now. It would be a good idea to stock up on them. Just because they come in cans alone, though, don't always serve them plain. Today I am giving you a variation on the unadorned bean. It's a good one to dress up yellow wax beans, which aren't exciting in themselves.

WAX BEANS PAYSANNE.

1 No. 2 can cut yellow wax beans
2 strips bacon
1 large onion

Dice the onion coarsely. Cut the bacon into ½ inch squares and boil the two for ten minutes in lightly salted water. Add the beans and simmer for 20 minutes. Use only enough water to keep mixture from burning.

HAM PROVENCE.

1½ inch slice ham
Tablespoon dry mustard
¼ can sweetened canned milk
1 cup hot water

Brown the ham in a skillet over a hot flame. Mix the mustard to a paste with water and spread on the ham. Blend the milk and hot water, and pour over the ham. Bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) till the milk is absorbed and the ham is tender (45-60 minutes)

Movie Gossip as It's Heard in Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Because the foreign film markets have died word has been given that the day of the one million dollar motion picture has passed. In the old days of the silents considerable of the net revenue from production of a film would come in from its foreign exhibition and a producer could afford to spend his million for a spectacular picture. But the sound pictures have little or no foreign market. Even foreign versions of successful American films as made here hardly bring in anything above their actual cost.

This change from the old days when Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer could afford to spend $3,000,000 for "Ben Hur" and over $1,000,000 for "The Big Parade," and Universal could do likewise with "Hunchback of Notre Dame" and "Phantom of the Opera," has been further emphasized by the orders sent out by the Wall street financial interests, which now provide filmdom's monetary sinews, to spend less and make the dollars go farther.

Result is that budgets for pictures are now made on a basis of $100,000 to $250,000, instead of $200,000 to $1,000,000, as they used to be.

Stork showers are being given for Dorothy Dwan [Mrs. Paul N. Boggs Jr.], who has been off the screen for a year since her marriage. Miss Dwan retires to the hospital in a day or two.

Buddy Rogers took nine instruments, one after the other, from members of the orchestra at Coconut Grove last week and played them. Scene was at the Thalian club's dinner party.

No sooner had Louis Mayer, Irving Thalberg, Norma Shearer, Marie Dressler, and the rest of the front rank entertainment corps at M. G. M. studio rolled in the welcome mat than they got word to roll it out again, not for Vice President Curtis and Will Hays, assorted navy and Mexican dignitaries, but for Lady Maureen Stanley, daughter-in-law of the Earl of Derby, who is en route to be house guest of the Thalbergs [Miss Shearer is Mrs. Thalberg].

Paris Designs Frock for the Bridge Player

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Among the many "end of the day" costumes that Paris is grinding out this season are bridge dresses, designed not only for the afternoon but for the evening. These dresses are, almost invariably, supplemented by little wraps which are only intended for indoor wear. A substantial fur coat atop of them, is in order for any foray out of doors.

Paul Poiret makes little fur capelets to accompany the bridge frock. They are tiny, as you can see by referring to the sketch, and are something to throw around the shoulders for decoration or a bit of added warmth indoors. This one is made of black broadtail and is lined with white crêpe marocain. It is fastened by a short strap of broadtail attached under two rhinestone buttons in front. The dress is made of white crêpe marocain, and has a low cut neckline in back, crossed near the shoulders by a knotted band of white crêpe, and the capelet of fur serves to cover this evening décolleté.

The long sleeves of the frock and its simple tailored lines make it quite suitable for afternoon wear, while décolleté gives it an eveninglike air. The tailored belt is buttoned over two rhinestone buttons like those on the fur capelet.

There is a modified 1830 drapery at the back of the skirt, achieved by a fan plaited ruffle just below the waistline in back, and by two circular ruffles placed one below the other from hipline to hem.

The length of this frock, which reaches to the ankles, is equally appropriate to formal afternoon and informal evening.

Breaks in Routine Handled Better by the Older Children

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Don't you find that no matter what rules you may make for the children or yourself, there must always be exceptions? Often the frequency of these exceptions is determined by the age of your children.

There are quite a few ways in which your management of them when they are little should differ from your management of them when they're older. Take this matter of sticking to a decision, for example—of saying no and then of being assailed by doubt as to your wisdom or of being confronted with some other reason for reconsidering.

When the children are little you can't do this too much; you have to be much more invariable than when they're older. You are establishing habits when they're babies or runabouts or beginning school. You are establishing habits of obedience, habits of sleeping, and other phases of physical care and behavior. Regularity and a certain invariability establish a rhythm which is wholesome and steadying.

Breaks in the routine—that is, exceptions—with little children have more effect upon the habit forming process. It is apt to be hard for them and for you if you let them stay up late or skip their naps or make other exceptions unless they are unavoidable ones.

But when the children are older it's quite another story. There comes a time when there develops a certain stability about their habits, and then they can withstand the exceptional and the unusual. They can understand why you will make an exception and won't try to take advantage of it.

Just when this age is can't be put down in figures. You will have to judge yourself when your child's mind is mature enough and his health secure enough. But it is important to recognize that older children can't be treated the same as very young ones.

Society Plans Mystery for Charity Jan. 15

JAN. 15, check the date on your social calendar, for there is to be another big benefit then, but what it is is a deep dark secret which may not be divulged until after the charity ball on Dec. 12.

Mrs. Waller Borden announced the January date at a meeting of the friends of Opera yesterday, asking the cooperation of the members of the organization, but reminding them to work for the charity ball first and then to use their energies for the January benefit, the proceeds of which will go to the unemployed of Chicago.

The ballroom at the Drake, where the meeting was held, was crowded for the affair, and it seemed as if every one in society was there, but that couldn't have been true, for at the same time there was a large gathering of women at Mrs. Potter Palmer's residence at 1301 Astor street for the annual meeting of the Needlework and Textile Guild of the Art Institute. Some lovely pieces of needlework were exhibited at the latter meeting, eliciting ohs and ahs of admiration and envy from those whose handiwork was not on view.

Mrs. C. Morse Ely had contributed a vestibule rug and two bags to the exhibition; Mrs. Charles G. King a needlepoint backgammon board mounted on a table with mirror trimmings and a pair of lovely evening slippers; Mrs. Kent Clow a box to hold 9 packs of cigarets; Mrs. Edmund Andrews a three-fly fire screen; Mrs. George R. Nichols a large frame for a picture of her father, Dr. Frank Billings; Mrs. Philo A. Otis a chair seat; Mrs. Richardson Dunham a sofa pillow; Mrs. Charles A. Schweppe a bag; Mrs. C. W. Scott a chair seat, and Mrs. Moise Dreyfus a padded dressing gown.

Mrs. Barrett Wendell and Miss Eleanor McCormick poured tea after this meeting. The tea table was all in white and silver and it as well as the Palmers' stunning apartment came in for many admiring comments during the afternoon. The board of directors was unanimously elected and includes Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Emily C. Chadbourne, Mrs. John W. Gary, Mrs. King, Miss Elisabeth McCormick, Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Mrs. Schweppe, Mrs. Harry H. Shearson, Mrs. Gustavus F. Swift and Mrs. Wendell.

At the Friends of Opera meeting short addresses were made by Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Herbert Witherspoon and Mrs. Borden, and a musical program was given by Mme. Noel Eadie, M. Jan Kiepura and M. Augusto Beuf. Among those having tea after the program with the artists and the speakers were Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Nevins Johnson, M. and Mme. Formichi, and Mme. Elisabeth Schumann and her husband, Dr. Alwin of Vienna.

Gillette Girls' Debut Plans; Drama League; Persian Art.

Cards are out for the debut tea of the Misses Helen and Marietta Gillette, who will be introduced to Chicago society by their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Shippen Jenks. The tea-dance will be at the Fortnightly on Saturday, the 5th of December.

The Chicago Drama league will have a Sunday evening supper party on Nov. 29, at the Casino, at which Dr. Paul Shorey will speak on "A Digression from Lysistrata." Mrs. Marvin Miner Jr. is president of the league.

The New Orient society has sent out invitations for a dinner for Sir Denison Ross on Wednesday, Dec. 9, at the Palmer house. There Sir Denison will speak on Persian art with particular reference to the recent Persian exhibition held in London. Prof. James H. Breasted will preside at the dinner. Henry Field is chairman of the executive committee, the other members being Daggett Harvey, J. Sanford Otis, and Adlai E. Stevenson.

Mrs. Patrick G. Valentine is opening her residence at 209 Lake Shore drive this afternoon at 3 o'clock for a lecture by Victoria Booth Demarest. Mrs. Demarest, whose maternal grandparents were William and Catherine Booth, founders of the Salvation Army, has preached or conducted missions in the British Isles, in Europe, Newfoundland, Canada, and all sections of the United States. Her subject this afternoon will be "The Challenge of the New."

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan and Mr. and Mrs. Donald M. Forgan are to give a dinner dance for Miss Julia Forgan on Christmas eve at the Casino, instead of on Dec. 30, as previously announced. The Donald Forgans and their daughter, Miss Julia, will spend the Christmas holidays in Chicago.

Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland is chairman of the committee in charge of the tea to be given Friday at the Tavern by the English Speaking union for the maharajah of Burwan, and Mrs. Andrew MacLeish is vice chairman. Assisting them will be Mrs. Ernest Ballard, Mrs. Waller Borden, Miss Helen Gilbert, Mrs. Joseph Jenks, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, Mrs. Maris Rozet, Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mr. and Mrs. Alan C. Dixon, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mr. and Mrs. Eames MacVeagh, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale.

The American Opera society is having its second open meeting of the season at the Fortnightly on Sunday afternoon, Dec. 6. Excerpts from Kastchmidt's opera, "Lady of the Lake," will be given by Edith Mansfield, soprano, William Miller, tenor, and Wilham Rhodes, pianist-narrator. Prof. and Mrs. Schmidt will come from Louisville for the meeting. Mrs. Archibald E. Freer, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. William L. Baum, Mrs. Hayden B. Harris, and Mrs. America

TEN FLYING SCIENTISTS SEE FINE DISPLAY OF THE SHOOTING STARS

BY RANSOME SUTTON.
[Science Correspondent of Los Angeles Times.]

Pasadena, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—"The best display of Leonids since 1866," Dr. Paul W. Merrill of the Mount Wilson observatory remarked as he climbed into the huge three-motored Fokker for the return trip to Pasadena, while dawn was breaking over the great American desert at Las Vegas, Nev., today. An airplane had been utilized to study shooting stars.

The Leonids swarm out of the sky every thirty-three and one-quarter years from the direction of the constellation Leo. They originate, Dr. Merrill says, far this side. Leo is the star-spangled, blue-black background against which is seen the shooting stars.

Sitting in the darkened plane between Salt Lake City and Las Vegas, the ten members of the observation party, representing Mount Wilson observatory and various press associations, watched the meteors streak the sky.

They are meteors, it seems, until they strike the earth's atmosphere; then, if they do not burn up in the air, they hit the surface of the earth and become meteorites.

From his window, Dr. Merrill himself saw 134 shooting stars between 2:45 a. m. and 4:42 a. m., while flying at a height of about two miles. In order to study the fireworks more comprehensively, a landing was made at Las Vegas.

Movie Beauties Portrayed by Society Women

GRETA GARBO, the Marchesa Casati, Miss Baba Beaton, Edith Sitwell, Marion Davies, Ina Claire, Tillie Losch, Lady Diana Cooper, Marlene Dietrich, Lady Lavery, Tallulah Bankhead, the countess of Oxford and Asquith, Anna May Wong, and Mrs. Vernon Castle all were at Orchestra Hall last night, not in person, but impersonated by those women of Chicago society who most nearly resemble those international beauties whom Cecil Beaton has included in "The Book of Beauty." However, as Mr. Beaton gracefully put it in his introductory speech last night, his book is most incomplete, for it was published before he had visited Chicago.

The Chicagoans were posing in tableaux vivants for the benefit of Olivet Institute, which thus is richer by about $10,000. The benefit was engineered and managed ably by Mrs. Howard Linn. Mrs. Linn read Mr. Beaton's descriptions of each beauty before the curtains parted to show the picture in its Victorian frame, and during the entr'acte she read a paper telling about the work of Olivet.

Mrs. Volney Foster and Mrs. Walter Paepcke, who were the first posers; La Garbo, and the lovely Italian Marchesa respectively, were at a disadvantage, for the makeup and lighting effects were not as perfect for their pictures as they were for the others, but they were enthusiastically received nevertheless. Mrs. John Wentworth as Miss Baba Beaton, sister of the artist, was a vision in silver and pearls; Miss Eleanor Holden was a statuesque Edith Sitwell; Mrs. William Mitchell Blair was the lovely Marion Davies, but instead of being a tableau vivant, her impersonation was more of a moving picture; Mrs. Lloyd Laflin made a charming Ina Claire; Mrs. Robert S. Pirie was the mysterious looking Tillie Losch; Mrs. J. Andrews King, the Lady Diana Cooper, as the Madonna in "The Miracle"; Miss Marjorie Horton, Marlene Dietrich, in black tights and a high silk hat like those worn by the lovely German screen actress in "Morocco"; Mrs. Thorne Donnelley was Tallulah Bankhead; Mrs. Chauncey McCormick was the countess of Oxford and Asquith; Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, Anna May Wong; Miss Jane Schuttler, Mrs. Vernon Castle.

Mrs. Laurance H. Armour, Mrs. Frank E. Wilhelm, Mrs. Clifford Rodman, and Mrs. Shreve Badger were the four profiles of Lady Lavery which Mr. Beaton has woven together in his photograph of that noted beauty.

Following the tableaux Ruth St. Denis gave two dances, The White Madonna and Marwari Nautch, and during the entr'acte supper was served in the foyer ballroom by a group of young men dressed as French waiters.

To list the members of the audience would be to make a list of Chicago's "400" and several hundreds more, for literally "every one" was there. Among those who had guests in the boxes were Mrs. Watson Armour, Mrs. Charles G. King, Mrs. Stuart Logan, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. Earle H. Reynolds, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mrs. Charles E. Brown, Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Charles B. Goodspeed, Mrs. Samuel Insull, and Mrs. William H. Clow Jr. Some of those on the main floor were Mr. and Mrs. William J. Chalmers, Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, Mr. and Mrs. Evan Evans, Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase, Mrs. C. Morse Ely, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Miss Alice Roullier, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, Robert Allerton, Mr. and Mrs. Potter Palmer, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Thorne, and Russell Tyson.

Bright Sayings of the Children

"My little cousin, 6 years of age, was told by her mother to help her brother, 7 years her senior, wash the dishes one evening. She went to the task tearfully, and her mother, noticing the situation, turned to the children with a question, whereupon the little girl remarked to her brother, "Well, Jackie, Lincoln didn't free all the slaves." A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.
Asks for Bedding, Rugs.

"My husband, who is not well, hasn't had steady work for the last three years. We have two children and have a hard time getting along. We need bedding and rugs, which we cannot buy, and we'd be thankful for any you could get for us.

To be without sufficient bedding during the chill autumn weather means much discomfort for this needy family. If you have any to spare I hope you will not hesitate to offer it.

Antoinette Predicts Platinum Blond Vogue Will Vane

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

The chances are that the platinum blond won't survive much longer as a vogue. And I don't thing her downfall will be due to the fact that it is an expensive thing to commit the hair to. Nor that it is a hazardous proceeding, inexpertly done.

The thing that will kill the vogue will be the identical thing that took the empress out of the Eugenie chapeaux—the rank commonness to which a fad may be reduced, over night. And you do see some poisonous looking heads as a result of platinum-turning appointments.

Primarily, platinum hair coloring belongs on a creature with more than average claim to exoticism. Her original hair should be light of color so that the skin fits in with the new head tint. Her teeth should be white and perfect, her profile young, her eyes clear and young. Otherwise, the experiment adds age, instead of subtracting. The more lines in the face, the more age lent by the almost white hair with the bluish-lavender tinting. It's not nearly so softening to mature skin and features as natural white or gray hair.

Most of the platinumizing is done with a dye, and it can't be called by any other name than a dye. If the hair is dark to begin with, that means a strong bleach first with extra strong peroxide. Or with a bleach made of peroxide and ammonia and a white paste containing magnesium.

The renewal process is something to be thought about unless you're in the Big Money. A touch up once a week may be needed to keep the dark spots at the roots from showing.

Because of the bleaches necessary to convert dark hair to light, the hair is so badly dried out that oil treatments must become a weekly item of expense. Then, there is the element of risk with a permanent that provides another argument against the lasting popularity of the vogue. But the main thing, however, is that it is a vogue that only the theatrical and spectacular should dare and these types should be little more than voting age. It calls for expensive clothes, a new makeup investment, and flawless skin and teeth.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"My husband and I have been married ten years. We rent a beautiful apartment. I have canaries, love birds, and a dog. For six years of my married life I worked to make the load lighter for my husband.

"At present I am practicing being a housewife. But ever since the day we married I have wanted a baby. I was always pacified with the fact that it would be welcome, later. Now, my husband tells me we cannot afford a baby. My heart aches for what must be the most wonderful thing to own in the world.

"If, after ten years, we can't afford a child, when will we? I am 30 and adore my husband. I hate to harp on the subject too much to him. What do I care for the piano, the birds, the radio, or the dog?

"It isn't that my husband doesn't like children. He plays with them and gets along with them beautifully when they are around, but with him it is all a question of 'can't afford it.'

A MOTHER'S CRY."

There comes a time in the affairs of matrimony when the husband's wishes are not of paramount importance. Especially, when these are based on selfish grounds, when they involve baby cancellation orders. That, in spite of his breadwinning position, is slightly outside his dictation.

The worst thing about postponing the day of an infant's arrival is that tomorrow always seems a less expedient day than today. Each luxury need, satisfied, breeds another luxury want. And in nine cases out of ten, the reward of material satisfaction is just a dry taste in the mouth.

I always wonder why women do not take this matter of child bearing into their own hands. It is their right, quite aside from the question of duty. And the business of converting a husband into parenthood isn't half the job it seems to be, unless the man is abnormal in his antipathy toward children.

Anyway, in this particular instance, it is markedly a question of the woman's right to have the child if she wants it. Six years of co-operative nest lining and four years of active home management entitle a woman to the thing she wants most from marriage. Further postponement would only mean less physical and financial opportunity with each passing year.

Will you wish you had "looked at a HUDSON" later on?

THIS advertisement is as nearly in the public service as it is possible for a commercial message to be. It does not urge nor even ask you to buy a Hudson or an Essex car; it suggests merely that you examine them carefully if you are in the market.

Hudson and Essex high-speed engines are the highest compression power units in use today, operating on standard fuels. The eight-cylinder Hudson "Greater Eight" develops 87 horsepower at 3600 r.p.m.; the Essex "Super Six," 60 horsepower at 3300 r.p.m. So efficient is Hudson and Essex engine design, owners may use ordinary gasoline without annoyance from engine knock

The premise under that suggestion is that Hudson and Essex cars, this year as in former years, embody engineering and structural advantages not found in other cars in comparable price range.

If this is true, and these advantages appeal to you, your examination may possibly save you the chagrin and disappointment later on of wishing you had "looked at a Hudson."

So look at a Hudson or an Essex before you decide what car to buy, and when you look at it, look beneath the superficial body contour and the glittering paint.

Startix, the Automatic Self-Starter—a new safety feature available at slight extra cost—makes Hudson and Essex motors stall-proof. Should you stall your motor on hills or in traffic, Startix restarts it —instantly and automatically. Operated by the ignition lock, Startix starts your motor the moment you turn the switch, and keeps it going as long as the ignition is "on"

Look at the heavy-duty understructure, the massive double-drop frame, the patented splayed wider-and-longer springs, the solid-unit, rattle-proof steel body—vital things like these.

Hudson controls the patents on splayed springs, under which the rear springs of both Hudson and Essex cars are set at an angle with the frame, preventing sideway and greatly increasing comfort. The springs themselves, like the frame and the whole understructure of the car, are heavy-duty built, greatly oversize in comparison with other cars in comparable price range

Look at the clean-lined compact high-speed engines that in the Hudson Eight pour out 87 horsepower at 3600 r.p.m. and in the Essex Super Six, 60 horsepower at 3300 r.p.m.—engines of such efficient high-compression design that you can burn ordinary gas in them and still get premium performance.

The famous Hudson compensated inherently balanced crankshaft is the most accurately balanced crankshaft in use today—so satin-smooth and vibrationless in action that it eliminates the need for cushioning vibration as needed in the case of many other cars

Look at the cars inside and out as exemplars of that pioneering policy at Hudson which has enabled this company to record more than sixty important "first's" in the honor roll of contributions to the present-day automobile building art.

There is no point in talking here of "performance, comfort, economy and value"—the vitality of these words is voided by over-use.

But just drive the cars yourself; give them a real workout and not just an asphalt promenade—then you'll have a real basis for comparison.

Selective Free Wheeling—Hudson and Essex drivers can "select" to free wheel or not, according to the road. On the straightaway and rolling highways you can enjoy the floating speed and gas-economy of free wheeling. Descending steep grades where you need the engine's extra braking power, a convenient control near the clutch lever throws the motor into conventional gear—instantly—without clashing. An optional feature

The Lubricated Cork Cushion Clutch is an exclusive patented feature of Hudson and Essex cars. A clutch is strictly a friction device. Cork is the finest friction material known. Lubrication is absolutely necessary to preserve the durability of any friction surface. Lubricated cork inserts in the Hudson and Essex clutch "cushion" as the clutch engages, giving a soft, velvety shift, without jar or chatter, especially when going from free wheeling into gear

Then you'll see why the wisest minds in the automobile industry itself have learned year after year to say: "Watch Hudson!"

Then you'll see why failing to examine Hudson and Essex carefully before you decide what car to buy is tantamount to spending your good money with your eyes shut! Hudson Motor Car Company, Detroit, Michigan.

SHAMROCKS OVERWHELM BUFFALO SEXTET, 5-0

TROJAN COACH SHIFTS LINE FOR NOTRE DAME GAME

BAKER, GUARD, IS TRANSFERRED TO END POSITION

1,500 Students Cheer Squad at Train.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 17.—Pepped up by two student rallies, one a noon meeting at 11 o'clock this morning, and the other a farewell session at the station, Southern California's football squad of 34 entrained at 6:45 o'clock this evening for the year's big game with Notre Dame.

The Trojan team that goes east this week is a far different team from that of 1930 which played a bewildered, confused, half dazed game at Chicago here to Rockne's champions, 27 to 0.

Team Eager, Fighting, Alert.

This squad carries eagerness, fighting spirit and alertness. Where last year's Trojans were burdened with the feeling that they were good, this year's bunch aren't sure they're good at all. There are some lopsided scores in most conference victories over Stanford, Oregon, Washington State, and Oregon State that might impress one here, but don't, for there is a defeat at hands of St. Mary's and a very good win over California to remind them what happened when they let down even temporarily.

The squad went through a final workout this afternoon and even Coach Howard Jones, cynic that he is about Notre Dame games, bent a little with its boys.

Jones gave some hint of the defense he would be expected to be forced to use at South Bend by shifting to end Aaron Baker, his star running guard, who was singled out last year by John Dowd's players as the best player on the 1930 Trojan squad.

Baker may or may not start the game at end, but if he doesn't he will go in there the first time that Ray Sparling's knee injury makes it easy for Notre Dame around Sparling's left wing.

Rosenberg at Guard.

At Baker's customary left guard station from which he slips back to head interference, Aaron (Rosy) Rosenberg, a sophomore line star, will fill the gap. Rosenberg started the season as tackle, but proved such a fast, hard hitting, smart defensive guard that he has been used interchangeably with Baker in Coach Jones' key line position.

Jones has made another line shift during the last eleven days of secret drill. Figuring that Stevens and Dye, his two sophomore right guards, may crumble before Notre Dame, Jones has spent the last week teaching the right guard signals and trick to Ernie Smith, 210 pound right tackle. With Baker on end, Rosenberg at running guard, and Smith at the other guard, replaced by Bob Erskine, 205 pound sophomore tackle, Jones will be able to confront Notre Dame with a forward wall averaging 195 pounds. It is a line which will take a great deal of whipping down before it can be penetrated by any power plays.

The Trojans' back field undoubtedly will play as it has all season, with Orville Shaver, 190 pound quarter back hands from full back, starting the game with himself, Full Back Jim Musick, Half Back Ernie Pinckert, carrying the ball. When the psychological moment seems to have arrived, Orville Mohler, most elusive broken field runner on the coast, will go to quarter back; Shaver will slip to full back but will continue to call signals; and the back field will aim to get Mohler past the scrimmage line.

Baker Ball Carrier, Too.

Johnny Baker, shifted to left end, showed what he could do as a ball carrier against Montana last week, when Johnny used his speed on a play that cuts him back out of the line at the moment the ball is snapped, and carries it on a reverse. Against Montana, Baker ran 71 yards before he was caught. A similar play, executed with perfect blocking, sent Sparling across the line of the surprised Stanford left wing.

Buffalo, N. Y., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Chicago Shamrocks tonight defeated the Buffalo Majors, 5 to 0, for their second straight victory of the American Hockey league season. It was the worst defeat the Majors have received on the home ice in years.

The Shamrocks scored their first goal after twelve minutes of play, when Brydson took a pass from Johnson and flashed in fast to score over Goalie Stark, who had been knocked down. The Shamrocks' tally in the second period came as Riley, center man, picked up a loose puck near the edge of the cage and shot successfully from close range.

Shamrock Score 3 Goals.

The third period found the Majors tiring fast, and the Shamrocks piled up three tallies in quick order, the first two coming within the first five minutes and the third within twelve minutes.

The Chicagoans played hard the entire game, plainly showing themselves masters of the Majors in all divisions of the game. The latter were hampered by penalties in the first and second periods, while the Shamrocks at one time in the third had three men in the penalty box.

O'Neill, Wiseman, Brydson, Riley, Mackenzie, and Prejesnik starred for Chicago, while Donnelly, Rennie, Deay, and Contant were outstanding for the Majors. Lineup and summary:

BRUINS, 1; FALCONS, 0

Boston, Mass., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins opened their National Hockey league home season before 15,000 here tonight with a 1-0 overtime victory over the Detroit Falcons.

The unexciting conflict appeared headed for a scoreless deadlock, when, after more than 65 minutes of tame, wide open play, George Owen entered a puck from the right of the Falcons' defense zone to Dit Clapper, who jabbed it into the enemy cage with a back hand stroke.

The Falcons were outplayed, especially in the second and overtime sessions, when the Bruins' attack became so determined that Tiny Thompson, Boston goalie, was called upon to make but two stops in each chapter. Lineups and summary:

Pop Warner Goes for a Walk—and Nearly for a Ride

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Glenn [Pop] Warner, Stanford football coach, admitted today that he "walked pretty fast" when he was awakened by yesterday's skirmish between University of California and Stanford university students here and went out to investigate.

"I overheard one of them say 'That's Pop Warner. It would be fun to kidnap him before the big game.'

"I walked away fast while the boys were debating the idea," Warner said.

Stanford plays California here on Saturday. Fifty automobile loads of Berkeley boys appeared on the Stanford campus before dawn yesterday and sought to set fire to the forty foot pile of wood which Stanford had gathered for its homecoming mass meeting bonfire on Friday night.

MAXWELL STREET KNOWS KING'LL PUT UP A FIGHT

And if There's a Knockout Carnera May Be Victim.

[BOXING NOTES ON FOLLOWING PAGE.]

There is one thing the fistic fanatics can feel fairly certain about, and that is if the "Italian Man Mountain" Carnera flattens the Kingfish—our Mr. Levinsky of Chicago's ghetto at the Chicago stadium tomorrow night—it will be on the square.

Your correspondent mingled with a lot of the Kingfish's cronies on Maxwell street and in the near vicinity yesterday. Not many of them think the Kingfish can topple over the "mountain." They are rather sad when they stop and contemplate about the disaster that is likely to befall their hero.

But they will bet you a ten spot against a dime with a hole in it that the Kingfish will go down fighting.

King Won't Dive.

The "Man Mountain" has pushed over many of his foes so easily the fistic folks have become suspicious of everybody that dares square away against him. But around Chicago last night you couldn't find anybody bold enough to say our Mr. Levinsky will "dive" when the "Man Mountain" starts to roll in his direction.

"The king is just about tall enough to sock Primo frequently in the midsection and I don't believe any fighter can be socked many times in the stomach by Levinsky without going down," remarked one of the Levinsky followers. It doesn't seem to be on record, however, that Primo has ever suffered any great agony from a punch in the middle parts. The boys who have worried him have cracked him on the chin.

Odds Favor Carnera.

The Kingfish was rather alarmed yesterday after his workout at Brown's gymnasium when he discovered the odds on the fight were 3 to 1 against him. "Maybe I look that bad," he remarked. "But I've never trained better for a fight. And it isn't the first time I've been asked to whip an odds on shot."

Carnera didn't do much work over at Kid Howard's gym. He did some lifting. He picked up a horse—maybe it was a colt some five or six weeks old—and tossed it around rather handily. At any rate it wasn't a very big horse. Most of the sideliners who are experts on weights thought the horse would scale just about the same as the Kingfish.

Battalino Due Today.

Pat Battalino is coming to town today from Hartford, Conn., to battle Bushy Graham in a special ten round number, which will support the Carnera-Levinsky battle. Battalino's sensational victory over Earl Mastro still is fresh in the memory of most Chicago ring fans and quite a delegation will meet him at the station. His world's featherweight title will not be at stake against Graham.

Carnera and Levinsky will meet before a colorful crowd. Society, financial and political leaders are showing more than usual interest in the fight. And the fish peddlers from Maxwell street will march in a body to the arena to encourage the Kingfish.

ESTELLE GIVEN WEEK TO OBTAIN DEFAULT DECREE

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Time for Estelle Taylor to file a default victory in her California divorce action against Jack Dempsey has been extended for one week from Thursday, when she would have been eligible to claim a California decree. Dempsey already holds an uncontested Reno decree which, his wife's attorney, Joseph Scott of Los Angeles, says is illegal.

Attorneys for the couple still are negotiating a settlement of property in hopes of an agreement prior to Miss Taylor's hearing here. Miss Taylor is in New York at present.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Analysis of the football situation between Notre Dame and Southern California, which fight it out at South Bend Saturday in one of the most important games of the season, indicates that while the physical advantage may rest with Notre Dame, the mental edge is decidedly in favor of the champions of the Pacific coast.

A year ago conditions were just the reverse. Notre Dame, winding up a killing schedule, was battered and bruised by terrific battles with Northwestern and the Army. Southern California, with overwhelming victories over California and Stanford, was touted as the greatest aggregation ever developed out where the sunshine lingers.

The way Knute Rockne, the gridiron's master psychologist, inspired his team to carry on to a 27 to 0 victory is one of the bright pages in football history. But a lot of water has rolled down to the sea since then. Rockne is dead. Carideo, Brill, O'Connor, Conley and some of the other heroes of that game are gone.

Their loss apparently has not affected Notre Dame's gridiron success. You will find plenty of fans ready to argue that the team led by Heartly Anderson this fall is the greatest the school has had. Southern California, for some reason not clear to me, is regarded as a weaker eleven than the hand that fell before the Irish last December. There is nothing in the records to substantiate this appraisal except perhaps the fact that its 1931 victories have been by smaller scores than in 1930.

Such eminent judges of football as my co-workers, Harvey Woodruff and Wilfrid Smith, see no chance of any opponent leveling Notre Dame this season. I hope they are right, but I confess I cannot share their optimism.

The one outstanding factor in the prospect of a Southern California victory this week-end is this score: Notre Dame, 0; Northwestern, 0.

It is an axiom of sport that what has been done once can be done again. Dick Hanley's Wildcats demonstrated that Notre Dame could be stopped. That fact must weigh heavily in the minds of the Trojans, particularly in advance of a battle with an undefeated eleven.

Maybe that was no test of football. Perhaps the rain and the mud hampered Notre Dame more than Northwestern. You can argue that all day without getting anywhere. The fact remains that Northwestern on that particular afternoon was just as good a football team as Notre Dame, if scores mean anything.

There is no getting away from the fine record of the coast squad. They have a strong line and boast class at every position in the back field. Two of the backs—Pinckert and Musick—will be getting their third chance to whip their rivals from South Bend. Since losing to St. Mary's by the margin of a touchdown in their opening game the Trojans have won six straight conference contests.

Notre Dame is facing a game with one of the two or three greatest football teams in the land. It will take a club of national championship caliber to come through victoriously.

There is at least one boxer who still respects Jack Dempsey's sock. When Jack was fighting at Vancouver a few weeks ago the referee, according to custom, called him and his opponent to the center of the ring for final instructions. Then he inquired if either man had any question to ask.

"I ain't got nothing to ask you," said Dempsey's foe to the referee. "But I got something to ask Jack. Go easy, will yuh, kid?"

Jack accommodated him by knocking him out as quickly as possible.

There may be some disappointment over the failure of the Big Ten schedule committee to match Northwestern and Michigan for Chicago's charity game Nov. 28. But there seems to be nothing wrong with Purdue's pulling power. Tug Wilson reports that Northwestern had more than 1,000 applications for tickets to the Purdue game less than 24 hours after the encounter was announced.

A. A. OWNERS TO VOTE ON HICKEY DISMISSAL TODAY

Lou Barbour Out as Sox Road Secretary.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Despite almost a full day of devotion to their perpetually favorite subject, the American association magnates, in annual session at the Congress hotel yesterday, couldn't come to any agreement as to whether they should continue or discontinue the régime of President Thomas Jefferson Hickey.

After hours in secret conference the owners, who annually attempt to make a football of the president's job, reached a conclusion that headway was impossible. So they disposed of the matter until today with every indication that when the break appears in the ranks of the eight voters, it will be in the incumbent's favor.

It was understood that Hickey was solidly supported by Milwaukee, Kansas City, Indianapolis and Toledo. The four other votes moved back and forth between William Clauer, former secretary of the Indianapolis club, and George Belden, now president of the Minneapolis outfit.

Barbour Out at Sox.

While the A. A. fellows were trying to decide about the $10,000 job, the lobby gossips, always prevalent at baseball gatherings, came up with the customary rumors.

One, that Lou Barbour, for years traveling secretary of the White Sox, had been discharged to make room for a relative of Lou Comiskey, the new president, was confirmed, however. Joe Barry, former detective sergeant of the La Salle street bank detail and brother-in-law of the new owner, will assume the duties. Comiskey announced the change last night.

Another report was a confirmation of the yarn that Donie Bush, who quit as Sox manager last October, is to be manager of the Minneapolis club. Bush is said to have been signed a couple of weeks ago. Mike Kelly, present manager, is to be elevated to the presidency and George Belden, the incumbent, is to be dropped.

Adair to Colonels?

Cub affairs were dragged into the day's doings when it became known that as part of the payment for Second Baseman Billy Herman, the Chicago club had turned over an infielder to the Colonels. No identity was revealed, but the popular guess seemed to be Jimmy Adair, the young man purchased by the Cubs from Reading last summer. Bill Jurges also is a possibility.

The fight to separate Hickey from his post is being led by William Knebelkamp, the Louisville owner, aided by the Columbus club, which is a farm of the St. Louis Cardinals. Belden, having a vote, is quite naturally furthering his own candidacy. Knebelkamp's grievance against Hickey is, among other things, the fact that the latter didn't keep the association out of the universal draft a year ago.

The draft didn't injure the Colonels' pocketbook to any extent. Knebelkamp set the high water purchase price of the season in his sale of Herman to the Cubs. Herman brought $50,000 in cash and two Cub players.

Toledo Club Discussed.

The association bosses also gave over some time to a discussion of the Toledo club's affairs. The club is in the hands of a receiver and the park is heavily mortgaged. After being staggered by the amount of the Toledo indebtedness, the owners couldn't even begin to figure a way out. They called over Commissioner Landis to find out whether he had any suggestions. A declaration of bankruptcy may be necessary.

The league also voted to confine the annual little world series with the International league pennant winners to a best four out of seven series, instead of five out of nine.

The A. A. took another step forward when it voted to ban the practice of loaning players inside the league.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

"GREATEST" GAMES.

RECENT comment in The Wake that Northwestern-Minnesota spectators felt they had seen their greatest football game brought a burst of letters from Helpers who had other games to offer as "greatest." Some of these communications will be published from time to time. Here is one from K. H. Kiplinger of Indianapolis, Amherst, '27:

"If the following had been played by Northwestern, Notre Dame, Yale, Harvard, or any other prominent team, it would have won a place on any man's all-time great game selections:

"Scene, Amherst. Time, 1925. Wesleyan kicks off and George Gilmer races 90 yards and scores standing up. No point after touchdown. Amherst receives and gains, but Wesleyan intercepts pass and runs 40 yards for touchdown. Goal kicked. Wesleyan, 7; Amherst, 6.

"A few minutes later, still first period, Wesleyan kicks 35 yard field goal. Three more points. Then almost three quarters of smashing, ripping, tearing equality, with alternate drives down field stopped by defenses which seemed to be inspired at the crucial moments.

"Amherst takes ball on its own 18 yard line with two minutes to play and a 10 to 6 defeat looming. In four plays, two of them long passes, the ball is on Wesleyan's 24 yard line. Timekeeper's gun in his hand. Play starts. It's a pass. The gun is fired, but tall John McBride reaches up out of a cluster of Wesleyan players and catches the ball just over the goal line. Amherst wins, 12 to 10."

Charity Games.

The Wake is rather surprised by the apparent apathy of those with whom we have talked toward the post-season charity games. They are accepted as just another set of football games instead of something vital and important. Perhaps, as game day approaches, this will change under the stimulus of ballyhoo and desire to see favorites in their final appearance of the year.

Football a "Funny Game."

Wake: Football is a funny game and once more Notre Dame will have to prove that it is as good as Northwestern by beating Southern California Saturday. That is because St. Mary's, which lost to California (southern branch), which lost to Northwestern, beat Southern California, which beat Stanford, which beat Minnesota, which lost to Northwestern. Football is a funny game.

Football a "Funny Game."

HTW: Why any argument at all about the relative strength of Notre Dame and Northwestern? The Irish beat Indiana, 25 to 0, and were under wraps at the end. Northwestern acquired a lucky 7 to 6 victory. The Purple was twice lucky—first that Indiana's kick for point after touchdown hit the posts and bounded back, and secondly that Indiana's fumble rolled right into the hands of the alert Fencl. Then the Wildcats scored the winning touchdown they otherwise could not have scored. Notre Dame.

MAN O' WAR SON, FRIGATE BIRD, 1ST IN BOWIE PURSE

Captures Yarrow Brae from Whipper Cracker.

Bowie, Md., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The first get of Man o' War to run on an eastern track in some time got home today when Frigate Bird scored in the featured Yarrow Brae purse. Frigate Bird is a gelded son out of Pantheta and his effort this afternoon was the first since a mile dash at Saratoga, when he finished back of Priory and ahead of Backgammon.

The winner was indifferently backed in a field of six, two of which ran as an entry. Across the board the price returned on the winner was $15.70, $5.10 and $3.10. Second to the wire, a length and a half back of Frigate Bird, finished Mouthpiece, which ran coupled with Royal Ruffian.

Whipper Cracker, which has shown fair form at Pimlico, was third, beaten half a length for the second place. Then in order finished Royal Ruffian, Pari-Mutuel and Boundless Deep. The test was at a mile and a sixteenth and the winner crossed the line in 1:46 2-5. The contention was practically all between Mouthpiece and Frigate Bird.

A hot favorite met defeat in the fourth race after three consecutive victories when Vacillate stopped in the stretch and could get only third. The winner was the inconsistent Pennate.

Word of Honor Is First Winner of Llangollen

Upperville, Va., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Repeating his victory of last Thursday in the $5,000 Prince of Wales cup at Lexington, Ky., Word of Honor, bay gelding owned by Shelby T. Harbison, and ridden by J. Clayburn, this afternoon added another $5,000 steeplechase to his credit. He captured the first running of the Llangollen cup, the great event of the card of the inaugural race meeting of the Piedmont fox hounds held on Llangollen farm, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. John Hay Whitney. The winner carried the minimum weight of 145 pounds, led all the way, and ran the race in 4:11 flat.

Next in importance to the Llangollen cup was the Piedmont gold cup, a steeplechase at about three miles over Aiken fences, the winner of which was Malcolm McGriffin's 6 year old chestnut gelding Stonedale, trained and ridden by Mr. J. E. Ryan.

The number who availed themselves of the invitation of Mr. and Mrs. Whitney and wandered over the 2,000 acres of Llangollen farm was estimated as high as 50,000.

ALLEN, WHITE LEAD POCKET BILLIARD MEET

Bennie Allen leads Walter Franklin, 2 blocks to 1 and 296 points to 264, and Johnny Layton trails Major White, 1 block to 2 and 219 to 279, at the end of three blocks in the special pocket billiard matches at Bensinger's Randolph street billiard room.

Allen defeated Franklin, 100 to 93 in 10 innings, in the third block yesterday, having a high run of 55 to Franklin's 52. White defeated Layton, 100 to 85, in 18 innings, having a best run of 50 to Layton's 28. Allen lost the second block, 100 to 96, despite the aid of a high run of 62. White beat Layton in the second block, 100 to 54.

The fifth and sixth blocks will be played today. The matches will end on Friday night when Layton and Allen will start for Philadelphia, scene of the world championship tournament starting on Nov. 30.

Les Marriner to Meet Bennett at White City Monday

Les Marriner will battle Biff Bennett from Fort Sheridan in the feature bout at White City Monday night. They signed papers with Matchmaker Mique Malloy yesterday. Marriner, a former Illinois football player, has just returned from California. He fought at White City a couple of years ago and beat Nap Dorval, a conqueror of Otto Von Porat. Bennett will have a gathering of soldiers from Fort Sheridan on hand to cheer him.

Seven bouts, three six round encounters and four at four rounds make up Billy Cepak's card tonight at the Knights of Columbus clubhouse, 4711 West Madison street. Billy Gladstone of Ravenswood and Lou Vine of Englewood meet in the feature six round bout at 133 pounds. Bobby Vernon and Jud Jenkins, middleweight boxers, fight four rounds at 165 pounds.

Baxter Calmes, Oklahoma boxer, returned to Chicago from Bayfield, Wis., weighing 180 pounds but he will enter the National Boxing association's light heavyweight tournament which starts at the Chicago stadium on Dec. 11.

Toronto Maple Leafs Invade Blackhawks' Nest Tonight

The Toronto Maple Leafs, who finished second after a hot race in the international division of the National Hockey league last year with a team composed of only twelve men and sometimes, because of injuries, with only ten, will meet the Blackhawks tonight at the Chicago Stadium.

But things will be different tonight, for Manager Connie Smythe has added efficiency to his already powerful squad and he is invading the Hawks' nest with a team of sixteen players, one more than the Blackhawks.

Obtain Three Players.

After the Hawks beat the Leafs last season in the Stanley cup finals, Smythe became convinced that what he required was more man power. When Ottawa and Philadelphia were dropped by the league the Maple Leafs secured Frank Finnigan from the Senators and young Sid Howe from the Quakers. They also acquired Hal Darragh from Boston. All are experienced and are good point makers.

All of the forwards of last season have been retained and will perform on lines a bit changed this year with the exception of the high scoring line made by Charley Conacher, Joe Primeau and Harvey Jackson, who have been held intact.

The first three are the highest point makers on the big time, with Charlie Conacher, left winger, although out of the game for five weeks last season, the leading scorer in the league. His partner, Joe Primeau, led in assists.

The Leafs have a defense which experts claim is the fastest in the league, consisting of Happy Day, Red Horner and King Clancy.

Hawks Change Lineup.

Maj. McLaughlin and Coach Iverson will present a team somewhat changed from the lineups of last Sunday. Doc Romnes, speedy center, will again be linked with his two teammates of last season, Johnny Gottselig and Lolo Couture, while Vic Ripley will be moved into the center of a line consisting of Paul Thompson and Jerry Lowrey.

BLACK HAWKS.		TORONTO MAPLE LEAFS.
Gardiner	G	Chabot
Abel	L. D.	Day

Racing Conflict Looms; Extend Coast Meeting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Bruno, Cal., Nov. 17.—What many believe is the forerunner of a race track war along the Pacific coast broke out here today with the announcement by officials of the Tanforan track here that the meeting now in progress will continue until Jan. 3.

Agua Caliente's meeting is scheduled to open on Thanksgiving day and officials of that course said they would begin their season then regardless of the conflict in dates with Tanforan.

In announcing the extension of the Tanforan meeting Joseph A. Murphy, the general manager, further announced that six additional stake races had been added to the program. Four of them will carry $5,000 in added money and the other two will be worth at least $2,500, he said. This is a far richer program than is offered at Agua Caliente in December and most of the owners will continue to race their horses here rather than ship to Agua Caliente.

In other years the Tanforan track has operated short meetings before the opening at Agua Caliente and in the spring following the close at Agua Caliente. The Tanforan season opened Nov. 6 and the attendance has been larger than at any previous meeting.

Hall won the second block, 50 to 27, in 26 innings, and took the first, 50 to 27 in 42 innings. The fourth and fifth blocks will be played today at Mussey's, 131 South Wabash avenue. Hall's high run yesterday was 6, against Kieckhefer's 4. Play will be at Kieckhefer's tomorrow, at Mussey's on Friday, and conclude at Kieckhefer's Saturday.

DUCKS, CHICKENS, SUNRISE AND FOG PUT ON A SHOW

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Morris, Ill., Nov. 17.—Sunrise on the prairie down here among the ducks and the prairie chickens is a stirring experience, especially for a city dweller who wakens to the racket of noisy automobiles and the clatter of street cars. We have just spent the night in a roomy tent at the edge of a big, open field and at sunrise prairie chickens, instead of snorting motor cars, started the day for us.

We stepped out of the tent and away from the fragrance of sizzling pork sausage and buckwheat cakes just as the sun was trying to shove a heavy fog from the prairie. Right behind the tent the prairie chickens, which still are fairly plentiful in this wild stretch of country, were talking away in great style. A number of them had roosted in a field only a few yards from our tent camp.

Ducks Unreal in Fog.

While the chickens were arguing among themselves regarding their program for the day (it sounded as if there was a division of opinion regarding which field the flock would visit) we could look above the swirling mist into the sky and see small flocks of ducks circling around. Through the fog they looked like unreal, brown moving specks in the sky. From a distance the quack quack of duck decoys could be heard, talking to the early morning flyers winging their way through the mist.

We have slept in many a tent on many a camp site from Florida to Alaska, but this big camp of Frank Collins is the first one that we have ever known to be used by field mice as a toboggan slide. Perhaps our impression of the nocturnal antics of the mice is incorrect because we were half asleep when we listened to them, but lying on our cot last night it seemed to us as if the mice scampered to the ridge pole and then slid down the side of the tent to hit the floor with a thump.

Mice Like New Slide.

Whenever we were awake the spirited running of the field mice could be heard on the canvas as if they enjoyed this new house on the prairie.

It was nearly 7:20 before the mist lifted enough for us to take Jack, our springer spaniel, and move into a duck blind.

Notre Dame Hall Team to Play at Oak Park

The football team of Howard Hall, Notre Dame, will play the Dodger club of River Forest, at Oak Park High school stadium, on Thanksgiving day. The Chicago Foundling's home will receive proceeds from the game. It will be the seventh annual Thanksgiving day contest between the two organizations.

A.A.U. Retains Brundage as Its President

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 17.—(AP)—The Amateur Athletic union adopted a "basis of friendly and active cooperation with the Young Men's Christian association" at the closing session of its 43d annual convention here today.

Hereafter the status of an athlete as established by one of the organizations will be recognized by the other, through the convention's approval of a report submitted by a committee headed by Gustavus Kirby, New York attorney, who is advisor to the I. C. A. A. A.

One exception to Y. M. C. A. rules was made in granting the accord. The A. A. U. declined to waive its rules which disqualifies for amateur competition officials who accept money for their services.

Avery Brundage, Chicago, was re-elected unanimously to his fourth term as president. Daniel J. Ferris, New York, was chosen to his fifth term as secretary-treasurer. Ferris has been connected with the A. A. U. for 25 years. All other nominees of the caucus were elected without opposition. They included: First vice president, Sam Goodman, San Francisco; second vice president, Martin A. Klein, New York, president of the Metropolitan association of the A. A. U.; third vice president, Charles L. Ornstein, New York; fourth vice president, Jack Hafferty, Houston, Tex.

The sessions today saw sanctioned A. A. U. boxing competition limited to three rounds and alteration of rules to permit rounds of less than three minutes.

MALCEWICZ WILL MEET POJELLO ON STADIUM MAT

Karl Pojello of Chicago was signed yesterday to wrestle Joe Malcewicz in the semi-windup bout on the Gus Sonnenberg and Karol Zbyszko card at the Chicago stadium next Tuesday.

Semi-windup matches usually are one fall to a finish, but Malcewicz, who had signed a blank contract with the stadium, demanded a time limit when notified his opponent would be the Chicagoan.

Pojello recently returned from a series of bouts in the east where he broke the 46 match winning streak compiled by Sandor Szabo, Hungarian newcomer, by tossing him in New York.

Three other Chicago wrestlers will appear on the bill. They are Buck Weaver, Nick Lutze, and Fred Meyers. Weaver, former University of Chicago football player, will meet John Maloney. Lutze is matched with Count Zarynoff. No opponent has been found as yet for Meyers, one of the few successful Jewish wrestlers in the country.

BIG NINE TEAMS IDLE.

Carbondale, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—With other football teams in the Big Nine conference idle until Thanksgiving, the Carbondale-West Frankfort game here tomorrow will close the season for both teams.

OGLETHORPE AND HASKELL ARRIVE HERE TOMORROW

The Haskell Indians and Oglethorpe university will arrive tomorrow morning for their charity football game at Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon.

Upon arrival the Indians will go to Dyche stadium in Evanston for a short practice scrimmage with the Northwestern Wildcats. This arrangement was made possible through the cooperation of Coach Dick Hanley, who formerly served as coach of the Indian university.

The Oglethorpe squad will go to Soldiers' field, where it will work out. Reports from the schools say that both teams are in fine condition.

In the Oglethorpe lineup will be four former Chicago high school stars. They are Dan Kenzie, tackle, graduate of De La Salle High school; John Putno, full back; Ray Walker, quarter back, and John Patrich, guard.

The Indian squad will be piloted by Capt. Louis [Little Rabbit] Weller, one of the best back field men in the mid-western states. The late Knute Rockne in a recent article had this to say about Weller: "In Weller, Haskell has one of the greatest backs in the country."

Proceeds of the game will be turned over to the state department of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War to be used for relief work this winter.

2D DARTMOUTH GAME OPPOSED BY YALE OFFICIAL

New York, Nov. 17.—(AP)—Yale official sentiment tonight was against the suggestion that Yale and Dartmouth play off their spectacular 21 to 13 tie as a part of the round robin charity football series in the Yale bowl, Dec. 5. Brown and Holy Cross also will participate in the round robin.

The proposal that Yale and Dartmouth be arbitrarily rematched was advanced at a luncheon today given by Owen D. Young, chairman of the committee on mobilization of relief resources.

John M. Cates, director of athletics at Yale, did not approve the plan.

"There would be little gained by a second game," he said. "Since the contests in the tournament will be only 20 minutes in length, anything might happen. I think the method of determining the opponents by lots is the soundest one."

Harry Heaneage, director of athletics, said any announcement of Dartmouths' position would come from E. K. Hall, chairman of the football rules committee, who has been acting as Dartmouth's spokesman in charity football activities.

FROSH EMULATE BADGERS; SMASH INTO MAROONS

It's Another Arduous Grid Session at Chicago.

No team in the Big Ten has put more honest toil into its effort for improvement than has Chicago this year, and the daily work yesterday was as arduous as any the Maroons have struggled through.

For two hours various versions of the varsity took all the smashing the big freshman team had to offer and with little success. The frosh were using Wisconsin's interpretation of the Warner offense for repeated drives through the varsity wall, and a husky lad dubbed "Schneller" was the fireworks.

Because Coach Stagg must favor the health of Zimmer and his son, Paul, who are mildly ailing, Sahlin, Temple, Mahoney and Sumniers had to bear the brunt of the back field work. Bob Wallace and Gene Buzzell appear to be definitely out of Saturday's game.

In the line a liberal sprinkling of reserves participated in the scrimmage, including Rapp, Shapiro, Zeman, Thompson, Bellstrom, and Jacobsen. Keith Parsons, regular center, turned up in a suit, somewhat pallid from his hospitalization, and took a workout in Bartlett gymnasium.

Seats in the end stand for the Wisconsin game, of which there are 15,000, were placed on sale yesterday at the reduced price of $2. Sideline seats are $3.

BADGERS FORCED INDOORS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Wisconsin today began the real work of preparation for its final game of the regular schedule with Chicago. An all day downpour in which an inch and a quarter of rain fell before practice time, forced Coach Thistlethwaite to take his men indoors for their workout.

Because of the work to be done in revising his offense for the Chicago game, Thistlethwaite for the second time this fall excluded newspaper men from the practice.

Replacements must be found for Goldenberg, Schiller, Strain and Heworth, all of whom are out for the season. Plays which the new men can execute also must be developed. Strain was the best forward passer and Heworth one of the best receivers.

NEW ILLINI GUARD

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Lind Murray, who was used at center and full back before injuries sent him to the side lines, appeared at a guard position with the second team today as the Illini worked against two freshman elevens equipped with Ohio State plays.

Murray's trial at guard was his first active participation in practice since he was hurt while competing for the full back job. He will furnish competition to Ray Nusspickel and Ack Bodman, who were with the first team this afternoon.

For the second consecutive day Coach Zuppke placed Joe Singer at quarter back. Although Bob Horstman and Herman Walser have rejoined the squad, they are not in the best of condition. Singer, a short, stocky Wausegan sophomore, who has played with the reserves all season, may see action against the Buckeyes.

Cliff Hyink and Scott Marriner occupied tackles today, Bill Hedtke was at center, Fred Frink and Ivan Schuster played ends, while Fuzzy Evans, Pat Carson, and Ed Kolfenbach joined Singer in the back field. Bob May, who has been out of the lineup for a week, reappeared today. He has seen service at center and guard, but he was last used at tackle.

Sam Gorenstein donned a suit but watched from the sidelines. He may not be able to play against the Buckeyes.

NEW PURDUE FULL BACKS

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Roland Kurtz and Colby Reed today were being groomed to take the place of the injured Roy Horstman at full back as the Purdue coaches drove the Boilermaker squad at top speed through a driving rain in preparation for the game with Indiana at Bloomington Saturday.

Loss of Horstmann and the probable absence of Doxie Moore, right half back, have forced several shifts in backfield combinations. Richard Rodenbaugh, an inexperienced sophomore, was used in Moore's place this afternoon.

Out of respect for the Hoosier forward wall that stopped the line assaults of both Michigan and Northwestern, Coach Kizer placed emphasis on an aerial attack, introducing several new plays. Purdue scouts reported that Michigan was forced into the air to run up its victory on the Crimson.

FROSH EMULATE BADGERS; SMASH INTO MAROONS

It's Another Arduous Grid Session at Chicago.

No team in the Big Ten has put more honest toil into its effort for self improvement than has Chicago this year, and the daily work yesterday was as arduous as any the Maroons have struggled through.

For two hours various versions of the varsity took all the smashing a scrub freshman team had to offer and with little success. The frosh were using Wisconsin's interpretation of the Warner offense for repeated drives through the varsity wall, and a husky lad dubbed "Schneller" was the fireplug.

Coach Stagg must favor the backs of Zimmer and his son, Fred, who are mildly ailing. Sahlin, Gough, Mahoney and Summers had to bear the brunt of the back field work. Bob Wallace and Gene Buzzell appear to be definitely out of Saturday's game.

In the line a liberal sprinkling of reserves participated in the scrimmage, including Rapp, Shapiro, Zenner, Thompson, Bollstrom, and Jacobsen. Nick Parsons, regular center, turned up in a suit, somewhat pallid from his hospitalization, and took a seat in Bartlett gymnasium.

Seats in the end stand for the Wisconsin game, of which there are 2,000, were placed on sale yesterday at the reduced price of $2. Sideline seats are $3.

BADGERS FORCED INDOORS

Madison, Wis., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Wisconsin today began the final week of preparation for its final game of the regular schedule with Chicago. As all day downpour in with an hour and a quarter of rain with scant practice time, forced Coach Thistlethwaite to take his men indoors for their workout.

Bulk of the work to be done in perfecting his offense for the Chicago game, Thistlethwaite for the second time this fall excluded newspaper men from the practice.

Announcements must be found for Kotal, Schiller, Strain and Haworth, all of whom are out for the season. Plays which the new men will execute must be developed. Kotal was the best forward passer and each one of the best receivers.

NEW ILLINI GUARD

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Art Berry, who was used at center and full back before injuries put him to the side lines, appeared at a guard position with the second team today as the Illini worked against two freshman elevens, aligned with Ohio State plays.

Berry's trial at guard was his first game participation in practice since he was hurt while competing for the full back job. He will furnish competition to Ray Nuspickel and Ack Bodine, who were with the first team this afternoon.

For the second consecutive day, Coach Zuppke placed Joe Singer at quarter back. Although Bob Horsley and Herman Walser have rejoined the squad, they are not in the best of condition. Singer, a short, stocky Waukegan sophomore, who has played with the reserves all season, may see action against the Buckeyes.

Cliff Hynk and Scott Marriner occupied tackles today, Bill Hedtke was center, Fred Frink and Ivan Schustek played ends, while Fuzzy Evans, Paul Quinn, and Ed Kolfenbach joined Capps in the back field. Bob May, who has been out of the lineup for a week, reappeared today. He has seen service at center and guard, but in this last used at tackle.

Sam Gornstein donned a suit but watched from the sidelines. He may not be able to play against the Buckeyes.

NEW PURDUE FULL BACKS

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Roland Kurtz and Colby Reed today were being groomed to take the place of the injured Roy Horstmann at full back as the Purdue coaches drove the Boilermaker squad at top speed through a driving rain in preparation for the game with Indiana at Bloomington Saturday.

Loss of Horstmann and the probable absence of Doxie Moore, right half back, have forced several shifts in backfield combinations. Richard Hollingsworth, an inexperienced sophomore, was used in Moore's place this afternoon.

Out of respect for the Hoosier forward wall that stopped the line assaults of both Michigan and Northwestern, Coach Kiser placed emphasis on an aerial attack, introducing several new plays. Purdue scouts reported that Michigan was forced to take to the air to run up its victory on the Wolverines.

MOON MULLINS—LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

TROJANS' COACH SHIFTS LINEUP FOR NOTRE DAME

Just to make sure that the team won't be left with any unfilled positions at South Bend, Jones has made Bryon Gentry, a guard, over into a third string center, and assigned five quarter backs to make the trip. The team will alight at the Englewood Rock Island station in Chicago at 9 o'clock Friday morning. It will be met there by a delegation of Pacific coast alumni.

Center—Stan Williamson [captain] [200].
Right guard—Mel Stevens [188].
Right end—Garret Arbelbide [180].
Quarter back—Gaius Shaver [190].
Right half back—Ernie Pinckert [185].
Full back—Jim Musick [202].

IRISH SCRIMMAGE AGAIN

Notre Dame, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Maybe Coach Heartly Anderson figures that the more injuries he has, the less chance there will be of his Notre Dame football team being over confident against Southern California Saturday.

At any rate, undaunted by serious injuries to two of his men yesterday, Mike Koken and Bill Pierce, he sent the second team through another scrimmage this afternoon under leaden skies.

George Melinkovich, who received a serious shoulder injury Saturday against Navy, was in uniform this afternoon and there is still hope that he will play Saturday. Examination of Koken's spine injury today showed he too may be able to take the field. Koken, however, was not out for practice.

Second Team Gains.

Their lack of acquaintance with the Howard Jones system of football showed itself, however, when numerous short, bullet-like passes used by the Trojans went for gains. U. S. C. reverses and laterals also worked for several long gains.

Anderson had nine sophomores in with the second team in today's drill. Krause, left tackle; Gorman, center; Pivarnik, right guard; Devore, right end; Murphy, quarter back; Laborne, left half; Millheam and Brancheau, right half, and Leonard, full back, were used. Devore alternated with Mahoney at right end. Paul Host, left end, is a junior and Bernie Leahy, a senior, was used at full back, alternating with Leonard.

The drill was driven into the gym shortly before 5 o'clock when it became too dark to work and a light rain fell. Anderson plans to scrimmage the varsity tomorrow afternoon.

Thursday and Friday will be devoted to last minutes prompting on defensive assignments against the Trojan attack which has piled up 222 points in seven games. Southern California has not been scored on in its last six games and the only two touchdowns scored against it this year were on passes by St. Mary's.

Plans were announced today by the student activities council for a giant pep meeting Friday night.

Maj. Griffith to Address St. Luke's Men's Club

"Overemphasis or is Harvard right" is the topic suggested for Maj. John L. Griffith, commissioner of the Western conference at the annual athletic dinner of the Men's club of Saint Luke's church, Hinman avenue and Lee street, Evanston, tonight.

Ticket Requests Indicate 40,000 Will See N.U.-Purdue

Applications for 2,000 tickets for the Northwestern-Purdue charity game to be played at Soldiers' field, Nov. 28, were received by the Northwestern ticket office yesterday. Each mail brought in a flood of requests. Max Hayford, ticket manager, stated that a crowd in excess of 40,000 is expected for the game.

The tickets, which now are being printed, will be placed on sale tomorrow in Chicago and Evanston. Purdue athletic authorities have requested a block of 5,000 tickets. The Purdue section will be in the east stands. Arrangements have been made for the bands of both schools to attend the game.

Change Lineup for Iowa.

Meanwhile the Wildcat football team continued preparation for the Iowa game at Iowa City Saturday. Despite the rain, reserves went through a brief scrimmage with the freshmen. The regulars were excused from this portion of the workout. Five of the first string players were excused from practice altogether. They were Pug Rentner half back; Jimmie Evans, guard; George Potter, quarter back; Dal Marvil, tackle, and Dick Fencl, end.

A lineup greatly revamped from the one which has started in recent games will start against Iowa Saturday. Several linemen, including Fencl and Evans, bear marks of hard games of the last three weeks and probably will rest Saturday. The personnel of the starting back field likewise remains in doubt. Reb Russell at full back is regarded a certain starter with the other positions undecided.

Save Men for Purdue.

With the Purdue game now in the offing, Coach Hanley will endeavor to conserve resources as much as possible Saturday. The fact that the charity game with the Boilermakers will count in the final standings makes it all the more imperative that the Wildcats have their complete strength available for this game.

IOWA PLANS DEFENSE

Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—An all day rain, which soaked the University of Iowa gridiron, failed to halt Hawkeye players today as they set up a defense for Northwestern.

Yearling backs were given the names and numbers of Wildcat aces Rentner, Russell, Menard, and Potter and stationed in positions corresponding with Northwestern plays. The regulars outcharged the frosh line, but the yearlings completed several passes.

Capt. Oliver Sansen, full back, who suffered a twisted knee in the Purdue game, was absent from drill, but will probably report Wednesday. The first team lineup today was Loufek and Clearman, ends; Samuelson and Foster, tackles; Stutsman and Tompkins, guards; Dolly, center; Laws, quarter back; Hickman and Kriz, half backs, and Schmidt, full back.

SECRET INDIANA DRILL

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—The first secret practice session of the season was ordered here this afternoon as Indiana started putting the finishing touches on its defense for Purdue's end sweeps and passes.

In addition to strengthening their defense for Purdue, the Hoosiers are working on new offensive plays. Hopes were rising that Opasik and Lyons will be sufficiently recovered from injuries to appear in the lineup Saturday. Opasik is a passer of ability, and Lyons has approved adept at catching passes.

Meanwhile Coach Hayes is working with his reserves, trying to find a ball carrier to surprise Purdue as did Babb last Saturday when he ripped off a 50 yard run that led to a touchdown. Vic Dauer, Zeller, and Rascher, Indiana veterans, will play their last collegiate game against Purdue.

GOPHERS CHANGE CENTERS

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 17.—[Special.—Coach Frits Crisler of Minnesota has just about decided that he will start Lloyd Stein, senior, at center against Michigan at Ann Arbor next Saturday in place of Roy Oen, a fast, but light performer. Stein weighs 190 pounds and is more experienced than Oen.

The regulars engaged in a strenous scrimmage against the freshmen, who used Michigan plays. Jack Manders again bruised his side and had to go to the dressing rooms for first aid. My Ubl also had to get assistance at left half when a husky freshman knocked him out.

Through most of the workout, the freshmen gained so much ground that Crisler stopped the session frequently to issue instruction to the varsity.

It was definitely announced today that Kenny MacDougall of Ishpeming, Mich., will be unable to play against his home state rivals. In fact, he is believed to be out of the Ohio State charity game as well.

EXAMS SLOW MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 7.—[Special.]—Midsemester examinations are working havoc with Michigan's practice this week. The classroom problems have been so bothersome these first days that Coach Kippke has decided to have his squad out during the evening instead of in the afternoon on Wednesday. The evening drill will take place in Yost fieldhouse.

Cecil Cantrill, Lexington, Ky., guard, sustained a broken nose just before the close of the Monday workout and will miss the Minnesota game. Cantrill was working in a scrimmage against the freshmen. La Jeunesse and Hozer are in shape for first line duty and Kowalik and Douglas for reserve for Saturday, however.

Kipke gave his squad a passing drill today, using the freshmen on defense. Newman, Hewitt, Renner, and Everhardus tossed the ball. Harry Eastman and Fred Chapman, the latter converted from tackle to end, were the most adept receivers.

OHIO GOES TO WORK

Columbus, O., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Ohio State today started training in earnest for the Illinois game here Saturday. The second stringers played the freshmen while the first eleven studied Illinois plays.

The Illinois game marks the final home appearance of eight Buckeye players, three of them regulars. Those whose loss will be most keenly felt are Stuart Holcomb, half back and captain, and the tackles, Bill Bell and Bob Haubrich.

The remaining five, valuable members of the replacement corps, are: Joe Benis, quarter back; Ken Cochrane, end; Gene Kile, guard; Howard Rabenstein, end, and Russ Zeckhauzer, tackle.

After a long defensive forward pass drill the Buckeyes engaged in an offensive aerial session with Cramer and Hinchman doing most of the hurling.

RODAK REGISTERS 2 VICTORIES IN CATHOLIC BOUTS

LAKE FOREST TO PLAY AUGUSTANA IN CHARITY GAME

Lake Forest college began extensive preparations yesterday for its big homecoming charity game with Augustana Saturday. Augustana is among the leaders in the Little Nineteen conference, with victories over Knox, North Central, Illinois, and Carthage.

Proceeds of the game will be distributed throughout Lake county for unemployment relief by the American Legion which is sponsoring the game. The seating capacity of Farwell field has been increased to 6,000.

PIRATE OWNERS ASK ADJUSTMENT OF INCOME TAX

Washington, D. C., Nov. 17.—(AP)—One of the contests scheduled by the owners of the Pittsburgh Pirates won't be found in the box scores—even though ball players brought it about.

The Pittsburgh Athletic company, owners of the National league club, today arranged it in filing a petition with the board of tax appeals for a redetermination of a $7,392 income tax deficiency assessment for 1928.

CATHOLIC PREP TEAMS PLAY FOR TITLE ON SUNDAY

The championship game of the Chicago Catholic High School Football league will be played on Soldiers' field Sunday afternoon. Brother Sylvester, president of the league, after a meeting with athletic directors and officials, last night announced that St. Philip must play St. Michael to win the north section title and be ready to face Mount Carmel, south division champion, Sunday.

While no announcement of the date of the St. Philip-St. Michael game was made, it probably will be played tomorrow at Mills stadium. This contest originally was scheduled for Oct. 10, but was postponed twice.

St. Philip last Sunday afternoon played to a scoreless tie with St. Mel, with which it was tied for the sectional lead. It was St. Mel's final game, and according to the point system used by the league the teams remained tied, although St. Mel had played two other ties.

St. Philip then claimed the championship as St. Michael had not won a league contest. St. Mel protested that if St. Philip should lose, St. Mel still would be tied for the title.

In the event St. Michael defeats St. Philip, St. Mel will represent the north section in the league game as a coin was tossed last night and St. Mel was the winner. This eliminates the playing of another game if St. Philip loses.

With the City league championship game scheduled for Saturday, and the Catholic league final contest Sunday, the meeting of the champions of both leagues for the joint emergency relief fund probably will be set for Thanksgiving day or Nov. 26.

Nine consecutive victories proved to be too great a record for four of Harrison Tech's football players, Capt. Andy Pliney, half back; Frank Leonetti, full back; George McPherson, guard, and Henry Pojman, center, were ordered off the field by Coach Dougherty after they had failed to attend classes during the day. Coach Dougherty told the quartet not to report until Friday and is undecided as to whether they will participate in the championship game against Schurz at Mill stadium Saturday afternoon.

Oak Park's championship football team practiced in the fieldhouse yesterday as it continued preparations for its game with Thornton, South Suburban league titleholder, Saturday afternoon at Oak Park's field. The proceeds of the game will be turned over to charity. Thornton has not been scored on this season, while piling up 61 points.

PORTSMOUTH IS NEXT CARDINALS' FOE; THEN BEARS

Glasgow Will Get Chance to Beat Former Mates.

Having trounced the league leading Green Bay Packers last Sunday, the Chicago Cardinals will face the runnersup in the National Professional Football league, the Portsmouth Spartans, next Sunday and then meet the third place Bears Thanksgiving morning.

The Cardinals must defeat a versatile team Sunday if they are to increase their consecutive league victories to four. Portsmouth presents two good back fields. The first string consists of Lumpkin, Holm, Presnell, and Alford. Alford, a college ace from Texas Tech, has joined the regulars since Algie Clark, high scorer of the league, suffered injuries that will keep him from remaining games.

Roy [Father] Lumpkin, Georgia Tech star of 1928, has been converted into a half back to make room for Tony Holm, Alabama's all-American line plunger of 1929. Elmer Schwartz of Washington State and Cavosie of Butler are best of the second back field.

Willis Glasgow, the Cardinal open field runner, is anxious to face the Spartans. Last year he wore a Portsmouth uniform and was their leading ground gainer.

SEND NAGURSKI HOME

New York, Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Bronko Nagurski, Chicago Bear full back, was sent back to Chicago today to undergo treatment of a knee injury sustained in Sunday's game with the New York Giants. An effort will be made to have Nagurski in shape for the annual Bear-Cardinal Thanksgiving morning game in the western city.

PLAY MOTORCYCLE POLO.

VIVISECTIONIST GIVES HIS FOES HUMANE LESSON

Council Group Refuses to Curb Experiments.

Prof. Anton Carlson of the University of Chicago gave his anti-vivisection opponents a lesson in the humane treatment of dogs during a hearing before the judiciary committee of the city council yesterday. The anti-cruelty representatives were urging that unclaimed dogs be killed at the city pound instead of being turned over to laboratories for experiments. Ald. Coughlin [1st] asked Mrs. Charlotte Hunt, head of the Humane Education society, how dogs are killed at the pound. Mrs. Hunt replied that carbon monoxide is used.

A More Humane Method.

"Carbon monoxide has irritating qualities," Prof. Carlson told her in kindly tones. "If you used pure coal gas it would be more humane."

Coal gas has ethylene as one of its constituents. It was recalled that the present wide use of ethylene as an anesthetic, developed by Prof. Carlson's colleagues at the University of Chicago, was made possible by preliminary experiments on dogs.

Despite the pleas of the anti-vivisectionists the committee, by an 11 to 2 vote, recommended to the council an ordinance which gives the mayor power to give reputable scientific institutions dogs from the city pound for experimental purposes. At previous hearings Prof. Carlson and other scientists had told the committee that plans to make Chicago the medical center of the world would be defeated if the medical schools of the city are denied a supply of animals for experimental purposes.

Nelson to Continue Fight.

The ordinance approved by the committee was drafted by Ald. Jacob M. Arvey [24th]. In addition to permitting use of dogs for experimental purposes it gives the mayor the power to appoint a veterinarian as keeper of the pound. The anti-vivisectionists have been demanding that the appointment of the veterinarian be made mandatory.

An ordinance proposed by Ald. Nelson [46th] making that appointment mandatory was voted down yesterday by the committee. Nelson said he would continue his fight on the council floor by offering amendments today. He also wishes the city to charge medical schools a fee of $3.50 each for dogs furnished them. He and Ald. William Felgenbutz [45th] voted against the Arvey ordinance in committee.

POSSE HUNTS GIRL BELIEVED HELD BY HER BROTHER

Father Fears for the Child's Safety.

Orleans, Ind., Nov. 17.—[Special.]—Volunteer and official posses searched the hills of Washington, Lawrence and Orange counties today, seeking Cora Hunt, 13, daughter of Otto Hunt of Livonia. She is believed held captive by her brother, William, 28. When last seen the brother and sister were fed at the home of William Barnes, near Lawrenceport. That was last Friday.

"We have nine children," said Hunt, "but we can't spare any one of them. I'll not do much sleeping until I know that Cora is safe. I am afraid that Bill will kill her in one of his wild spells. He would do that if she does not do exactly what he tells her to do."

Cora was enticed from school at Livonia Friday by her brother, who represented to the teacher that the girl's mother was very sick at home and wished her at once. The two were seen shortly after circling to the south of Livonia, through the fields to an old house. Search of the house has failed to reveal the two had been there.

When the two were at the Barnes home they represented themselves as husband and wife from North Carolina. The girl's hair was bobbed, she wore a cap and overalls and, according to Barnes, was reticent about answering any questions.

TWO WOMEN MAY BE VICTIMS OF ROADSIDE GRAVE

Scientists Launch an Inquiry.

An hypothesis that the bones found buried in quicklime in a roadside grave near Crystal Lake on Armistice day were from the bodies of two women, instead of one, was advanced yesterday. It followed a visit to Woodstock of Dr. Clarence Muehlberger, of the Northwestern university crime detection laboratory, and Dr. William D. McNally, former coroner's chemist in Cook county.

Following a minute examination of the bones, Dr. Muehlberger told Sheriff Lester Edinger of McHenry county that he believed they had been in the grave at least six months. Previous estimates had been that the murder took place six weeks or a month ago.

Make Examination of Bones.

Accompanied by the sheriff and his deputies, H. E. Reese and Sidney Corson, the two scientific investigators went to the cemetery vault at Woodstock where the bones were placed following their discovery. They examined the skeleton, and took samples of the bones, the skin of the scalp, the hair and bits of clothing for laboratory analysis. The bones, they discovered, were almost as hard as stone, which indicated, they said, that they had laid in the lime some months.

Dr. Muehlberger said he was convinced that the body, or bodies, had been dismembered by a person with no knowledge of surgery or anatomy. His examination also indicated that the skull had been fractured.

Inquest Is Closed.

The inquest was closed yesterday by Coroner E. H. Cook of McHenry county. The jury returned a verdict of murder by persons unknown.

Pat Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, has been unable to have the laundry mark, found on a portire in which the bones were wrapped, identified. The laundry mark consisted of the letters JUN and a fourth character which could not be deciphered.

UNCLE SAM NO IN SHAPE TO GE BACK LOST GOL

Exports 36 Millio Ahead of Imports

BY O. A. MATHER.

While European nations, particu ly France, were having dreadful s ers over the safety of Ameri finance and hastily withdrawing t gold last month, the United St was going about its internati business. In fact, Uncle Sam sold rest of this fearsome world m goods than in September and as bought somewhat less, the favora balance of trade was about th times as large last month as in t tember.

Viewed in this light, the foreign on the dollar and the flight of from America is a bit humorous. is axiomatic in world trade that nation that does the business will the gold. And so much of the that was withdrawn probably ev ually will be coming back to pay goods or to be used as credit in t ing out business. At all events, either will get gold or foreign goods further lending of good American loans abroad isn't as popular as i upon a time.

Exports Show Gain.

The commerce department gave some interesting data and comm on this situation yesterday. Our ports last month were approxima $365,000,000, compared with $180, 000 in September and $326,596,000 October, 1930, when prices Higher. Imports last month to $169,000,000, compared with $170, 000 in September and $247,367,00 October, last year.

Thus, our foreign trade last mo produced a favorable balance of $ 000,000, compared with a favora balance of $9,503,000 in Septem and an unfavorable balance of al $1,300,000 in August. This rec showed a rather nice improvement our trade, although last month's o balance is far below the $29,000 recorded in October, 1 But perhaps we won't have such l favorable balances in the future, a that Americans are wanting so thing more tangible in pay for go than I. UNCLE SAM NOW IN SHAPE TO GET BACK LOST GOLD

Exports 36 Million Ahead of Imports.

BY O. A. MATHER.

While European nations, particularly France, were having dreadful shivers over the safety of American banks and hastily withdrawing their gold last month, the United States was going about its international business. In fact, Uncle Sam sold the rest of this fearsome world more goods than in September and as he bought somewhat less, the favorable balance of trade was about three times as large last month as in September.

Viewed in this light, the foreign raid on the dollar and the flight of gold from America is a bit humorous. It is axiomatic in world trade that the nation that does the business will get the gold. And so much of the gold that was withdrawn probably eventually will be coming back to pay for goods or to be used as credit in helping to finance business. At all events, we still will get gold or foreign goods, as dollar hoarding of good American dollars abroad isn't as popular as once upon a time.

Reports Show Gain.

The commerce department gave out some interesting data and comment on the situation yesterday. Our exports last month were approximately $151,000,000, compared with $150,231,000 in September and $326,896,000 in October, 1930, when prices were higher. Imports last month totaled $115,000,000, compared with $170,365,000 in September and $247,367,000 in October last year.

Thus our foreign trade last month showed a favorable balance of $36,000,000, compared with a favorable balance of $9,883,000 in September, and an unfavorable balance of about $2,500,000 in August. This record showed a rather nice improvement in our trade, although last month's favorable balance is far below the $79,000,000 recorded in October, 1930. Perhaps we won't have such large favorable balances in the future, now that Americans are wanting something more tangible in pay for goods than I.O. U.'s.

Withdrawals Stopping.

The commerce department finds that gold exports last month were $398,000,000, while imports were only $60,000,000. This reversed an influx that had prevailed for many months previously. But it also is noted that withdrawals of gold virtually have ceased this month and imports are tending to exceed exports.

"It happened that a state of panic suddenly seized upon Europe's financial centers," the department explains, "due apparently to a general misconception concerning the method of operation of the proposed National Credit corporation as well as the extent to which gold withdrawals were affecting the so-called 'free gold' held by the federal reserve banks. This resulted in a 'raid on the dollar,' which led to a highly accelerated gold outflow.

Confidence Is Restored.

"As soon as it became evident that the federal reserve banks were readily meeting all demands without any diminution of the amount of 'free gold' held and without even a suggestion that demands would not continue to be met, confidence in the dollar was restored, with the result that since the beginning of November, earmarking of gold for foreign account has virtually ceased and imports have tended to exceed exports."

One of the main factors in improving our trade last month was increased shipments of cotton, which were approximately $15,500,000 larger than in September.

For the first ten months of 1931, exports totaled $2,046,731,000, compared with $3,279,346,000 in the corresponding period of 1930. Imports were valued at $1,787,657,000, compared with $2,648,673,000. Our favorable trade balance was $259,074,000.

Corn Takes the Lead as Prices of Grain Advance

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

A bull market was on in grains yesterday, with corn in the lead, and both that grain and wheat at the top showed an advance of 5c or more from the inside figures of Saturday.

There was no material pressure on the way up, with some stop loss orders uncovered, but there was not the heavy and persistent buying which was such a characteristic of the trading when the wild bull movement was under way in wheat on the previous advance.

A belief that a downward revision in the estimated Argentine and Australian wheat crops will be made, which is expected to increase the demand for North American grain, was a factor in the wheat market. Several estimates were received during the day suggesting an exportable surplus of 100,000,000 bu wheat from Australia, or 20,000,000 bu less than indicated a week ago, and compared with 163,000,000 bu last year.

Damage reports continue to come from Argentina, but no figures were given. The official government estimate on the yield is expected to be issued late tonight.

Wheat Closes Near Top.

Heavy selling was in evidence around 65c for May wheat early through several commission houses, part of which was attributed to a leading local professional. The offerings were finally absorbed and a bulge to 66⅛c followed, or 2⅛c above the finish of Monday, and the close was at net gains of 1⅝@1¾c, the bulge being checked by selling against offers. December was 61@61⅛c, March 64⅛@64¾c, May 65⅝c, and July 66⅛@66⅝c at the last.

There was some buying of wheat futures here early attributed to foreign account, but the latter showed a pronounced hesitancy about taking cash wheat on the advance, and sales of Manitobas and hard winters in all positions during the day were estimated at only 500,000 bu. Winnipeg noted buying of futures by houses with continental connections and closed 2⅛c higher, with December at 66⅝c in Canadian currency.

Strength in Liverpool.

Persistent strength in the Liverpool wheat market, which closed equal to 1¼@1⅝c per bu higher, with December quoted at 64⅜c on the basis of $3.79 for exchange, had considerable influence in the early trading. Buenos Aires showed strength early, but reacted later, and closed unchanged to ¼c higher, with the December at 51⅞c.

The Chicago cash corn market is materially out of line with prices being paid to farmers in parts of Iowa and Nebraska and as a result very little grain is being shipped this way. Bids at Nebraska points were reported as much as 12c over a Chicago parity, while No. 2 yellow at Minneapolis was quoted at 57@57½c at the last, compared with actual sales of 46@48¾c in the local market, and the latter prices were generally 4c under those at Kansas City. A local house sold a car of cash corn to go to Oconto in northern Wisconsin, a most unusual situation, and was taken as indicating a scarcity of grain in the territory tributory to Minneapolis.

Less Corn on Market.

Although weather conditions of late have been generally favorable for the movement of corn and prices have advanced materially from the low point, the arrivals at terminal markets yesterday of 264,000 bu were nearly 500,000 bu below those of a year ago. It was claimed Iowa industries were bidding for white corn in central Illinois yesterday owing to inability to secure the grain in the former state, while business to the east from Indiana and Ohio points has been checked by the pronounced holding tendency which has developed on the part of the producer of late.

There was aggressive buying of corn futures during the day, with local professionals taking hold freely, and the May at the top touched 51c, or 3c above Monday's finish. Closing trades were 2¾@2⅞c higher, with December 45⅝@45⅝c, March 48⅛c, May 50⅝@50½c, and July 52⅛@52¼c.

Rye for Export.

A moderate amount of Canadian rye was reported as having been sold for export yesterday and Winnipeg was a buyer of futures in the Chicago market. Fair commission house support was in evidence on all the minor setbacks and the close was at net gains of 2@2⅜c, with December finishing at 51⅞c, March 54c, May 57⅛@57⅜c, and July 58⅜c.

Commission houses were fair buyers of oats and the close was ⅝@¾c higher, with December 27⅛c, May 29⅛c, and July 29⅝c. Iowa reported bids for cash grain at some points in that state well above a Chicago parity.

Elect 9 New Members to Chicago Board of Trade

Revival of interest in the wheat market is seen in the election of nine new members by the board of trade directors at their meeting yesterday. Five of them are members of the New York Stock exchange. The list includes Roy Emmerson Bard of Sutro Bros. & Co., Henry O. Pohlson of Seaverns & Co.; Wentworth P. Mackenzie of Shearson, Hamill & Co., all of Chicago; also Lewis G. Salomon of Phillips & Salomon and John N. Block of Benjamin Block & Co., both of New York. Other new members are Ward S. Parry of Fairman, Parry & Co.; William V. Gathany of E. D. Risser; Henry N. Rowley, all of Chicago, and Francis G. Venables of the firm of Watt & Watt of Toronto. A board of trade membership sold yesterday at $11,700, off $200 from previous sale.

Silver Output Increases in October; Price Recedes

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—Silver futures broke sharply again on the National Metal exchange today as the American Bureau of Metal Statistics made public figures showing that the production of silver from mines during October had increased 110,000 ounces or from 2,101,000 ounces in September to 2,211,000 ounces in October. Spot silver dropped 1½ cents to 31⅛ cents an ounce.

CONSUMPTION OF SILK CONTINUES TO GAIN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—With the sailing tonight on the Europa of F. Pisart and Camille Gutt, representatives of the Union Miniere du Haut Katanga at the copper conference here, the consensus in that industry was that the informal discussions among the large copper producers of the world ended with out any agreement being reached as to restriction of production or to stabilization.

However, the departure of Katanga's representatives was not generally viewed as indicating an outright failure of the informal conference that had continued here for almost a month. It was pointed out that the views of the different interests were thoroughly discussed and that at the close the divergence amounted to only a few thousand tons in the proposed curtailment of the Katanga mine. It is understood that the Katanga representatives carried with them a compromise plan to be submitted to the Belgian government which owns a 65 per cent interest in the Katanga properties.

Virtually since the arrival of the Belgians, when they announced a willingness to reduce output to 40 per cent of capacity, the American, Canadian and Rhodesian producers sought to obtain further concessions from the Katanga interests.

Jewel Tea, Cincinnati Road Both Pay Extra Dividends

The Jewel Tea company yesterday declared an extra dividend of 50 cents a share in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of $1 on the common stock. The extra is payable Dec. 15 to stock of record Dec. 1, and the regular dividend is payable Jan. 15 to stock of record Jan. 2.

Directors of the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific railway, indirectly controlled by the Southern railway, declared an extra dividend of $3 a share in addition to the semi-annual dividend of $4 on the common stock. Extras of $3 had been paid yearly from 1928 until 1929. Last year an extra $50 was paid.

An omission by the American Surety company and a regular payment by the Texas corporation were among other actions taken in dividend meetings yesterday.

Pays 50c a Share.

Texas corporation directors surprised some people who had been expecting a reduction by declaring the regular dividend of 50 cents a share, payable Jan. 1 to stockholders of record Dec. 4.

Two directors' meetings failed to bring forth any dividend actions. Directors of Remington Rand, Inc., deferred decision on first and second preferred dividends until Dec. 8. Directors of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway company also decided to take no action on the preferred dividend until the December meeting of the board.

Directors of the American Surety company voted to omit the quarterly dividend of $1 due on the common stock at this time. Since 1911 the company had been paying regular dividends varying from $2.50 to $10 a year.

Noah Swayne, president of Burns Bros., coal firm, said that although at present it does not seem that the company will earn its preferred dividends this year, "the regular payment of the preferred will in all likelihood be declared at the board meeting Nov. 24."

Votes $1.50 Payment.

Northern Pipe Line company has declared a dividend of $1.50 on its $50 par capital stock, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 21. On July 1 a dividend of the same amount was paid and in addition an extra payment of 50 cents was made out of nonrecurring income.

Important dividend meetings are scheduled later in the week. American Telephone, Southern Pacific, and Stone & Webster directors meet today for dividend action. No change is expected in American Telephone's payments. Tomorrow's dividend meetings include Atlantic Coast Lines, Budd Wheel, Engineers' Public Service, Commercial Investment Trust, National Lead, Texas Gulf Sulphur, J. I. Case, and United corporation. Predictions are made that Southern Pacific will reduce its dividend.

Directors of the Pet Milk company resumed the common dividend by voting a disbursement of 25c. The regular quarterly of $1.75 on preferred was also declared. Officials of the company declared that no annual basis for the stock has been fixed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—Delaware & Hudson Railroad corporation reports net income of $286,629 in the September quarter, compared with $1,071,936 in the quarter last year. In the first nine months the company had a deficit of $372,347 after charges. No comparison is available for the nine months last year, the railroad corporation having been formed in April of that year.

As of Sept. 30, the balance sheet showed current assets of $6,069,709 and current liabilities of $4,724,814, compared with current assets of $6,239,662 and current liabilities of $4,824,285 at the end of June. The profit and loss balance was $232,630, compared with profit and loss deficit of $39,954 at the end of June. Total assets were $110,156,554 against $110,683,601. These figures were reported to the Public Service Commission at Albany.

Corn Refiners Announce 5 Pct. Advance in Prices

Reflecting better grain prices, as well as improved conditions in the consuming markets for refined products of corn, price schedules of leading corn refiners have been advanced approximately 5 per cent, the first general upward price movement in the industry in about two years, the Corn Industries Research Foundation announced yesterday.

The price advances apply to starch, sirup, sugar, and other corn derivatives widely used for food purposes, and in many important manufacturing operations. The foundation said that improvement is especially marked in the gluten feed market, which has been more depressed in recent months than other divisions of the industry.

Leading corn refiners report that customers generally are buying in considerable volume, current bookings of business being the largest in many months.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 17.—Stocks hitched on behind wheat again today and were dragged to slightly higher shelvings.

The gains at one time tilted as high as 3 or 4 points in some of the more impressionable descriptions, but the eagerness of traders with memories of burnt fingers, to take their profits while the opportunity was golden, shaved the figured down materially toward the last.

Oil shares were helped by some further advances in gasoline prices and by the Texas corporation dividend and the motors had the benefit of growing talk over improved business prospects in the industry due to the introduction of the new models.

Buying of Rails.

There was some evidence of buying in the rails and public utilities by traders who have been on the selling side here of late. Nothing especially important came to the surface in the news to warrant the supposed change of front.

New York Central in particular made a brave attempt to rally after its dismal performance of the last week or so, but it could never seem to get much more than a point ahead of the game, and the close found it floundering back around last night's close. The company's balance sheet made public today showed that the road is going to have to do some financing in the near future. If it is able to convert its bank loans into long term bond issues the situation may look up a bit, Wall street thinks.

Distributed to Shareholders in 2½ Years

TO October 1, 1931, the average price at which all Corporate Trust Shares, Original Series, were sold, was slightly less than $7.69 per share. Under the distributive plan of operation, Corporate Trust Share distributions from all sources have aggregated slightly more than $4.05 per share since the inception of the Trust, as follows:

June, 1929	$1.165
June, 1930	1.316
December, 1930	.42
June, 1931	.35
Total	$4.053

With the exception of 21.4c per share withdrawn from the Reserve Fund, the foregoing distributions represent cash dividends and interest on the Reserve Fund, together with cash realized from the sale of (1) subscription rights and (2) extra shares received by reason of stock dividends and split-ups. The cash realized from such sales, and the withdrawal from Reserve Fund represented, in part, a return of principal.

The advantage of the distributive type of trust with Cash Reserve Fund in periods of high market prices, or in declining markets, can be measured definitely from the actual operation of Corporate Trust Shares, Original Series. Shareholders received $10,674,733.27 from the sale of rights and extra shares arising from stock dividends and split-ups. Had these been retained, their value as of Oct. 1, 1931, would have been $4,746,643.76. Thus Corporate Trust Shares, Original Series, showed a gain of almost $6,000,000 as against an accumulative operation during the period from the inception of the Trust to October 1, 1931.

Figures available in this office contrast the results of the two forms, or types during this period. These clearly show the advantage to the investor of the distributive type during the period of high market prices and declining market prices experienced during the past three years. This experience logically indicates that the accumulative type of trust will be more advantageous for the investor in periods of low market prices or of rising prices for the underlying stocks.

Upturn Follows Advance in Wheat Pit.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Volume of business continued small on the Chicago exchange yesterday, but prices took a sudden change for the better and the active shares finished the day from a fraction to two points above Monday's last quotations.

Uneasiness created by the recent relapse in the commodity markets was dissipated to a considerable extent by the two day advance in the wheat market and accounted in large degree for the more favorable attitude shown toward stocks yesterday.

Easily the feature of the trading on the Chicago board was the 2 points rise in Bendix Aviation. This issue was unusually active, turning over to the extent of some 17,000 shares reflecting recent favorable publicity regarding the new business secured by the company and the declaration of the regular quarterly dividend by directors.

Anticipate Upturn.

Anticipation of an early increase in activity in the automobile industry is claimed by friends of the stock to brighten the outlook for the company. At last night's closing quotation of 20¼ the stock is one of the highest priced among the motor accessory shares in relation to current earnings and dividends.

Marshall E. Sampsell, president of Associated Telephone Utilities company, reported yesterday that consolidated earnings of the system in the third quarter amounted to $912,538 after all charges but depreciation. This compared with $821,411 in the corresponding period of 1930. Gross earnings for the same period amounted to $4,450,433 as contrasted with $4,018,-033 in the September quarter last year.

Net Earnings Increase.

Net earnings of the company for the 12 months' period ended Sept. 31 before depreciation were $3,444,408, against $3,253,514 in the preceding year. Gross was $16,944,285 against $16,182,401.

Operations during the third quarter were satisfactory in the light of the low ebb of business activity during the period, Mr. Sampsell said.

At a meeting of the directors of the Vortex Cup company yesterday the regular quarterly dividends of 62½ cents on the A stock and 50 cents on the common were authorized. C. W. Hills Jr. was elected a director to succeed his father.

Bright Spots in Business

W. J. McAneeny, president of the Hudson Motor Car company, told 300 Hudson and Essex distributors at Detroit that 7,000 men will be returned to work in the company plants within the next few weeks. More than 2,000 men were given employment Monday, Mr. McAneeny said.

Manufacturers of dry goods report a slight increase in volume since Nov. 1, due principally to seasonal demand, although buying continues largely for immediate needs, Dun's says in a special survey of the dry goods trade.

An order for 4,000 electric refrigerators has been placed with Copeland Products, Inc., by Anheuser-Busch, Inc. Delivery dates are specified on 3,129 units.

For the first time in two years production schedules in several clothing factories in Rochester, N. Y., are speeded up, with the prospect of work for 6,000 in next two weeks.

THINKS ENGLAND MAY ADOPT A NEW CURRENCY

Dr. Friday Sees Final Turn from Gold Standard.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Delegates to the eighth annual convention of the National Association of Finance companies, meeting at the Congress hotel, yesterday heard the suggestion made that Great Britain may take a revolutionary financial step by permanently abandoning the gold standard in favor of a "managed currency and a plea made for the liberalization of the federal reserve bank regulations to permit the rediscounting of installment finance paper.

Dr. David Friday, well known Washington economist, asserted that there are indications in Great Britain pointing to the possibility of discussion of the abandonment of gold in favor of a new currency at the next empire conference. He asserted that many leading British economists and financiers feel that the present gold standard is obsolete and that there is considerable discussion of the so-called "managed currency" which he described as being one which would not fluctuate in value, but would be kept equal to the purchasing power.

See Narrow Price Swings.

This purchasing point would have to be determined through research, he declared. One of the principal virtues claimed for it, Dr. Friday said, is that it would prevent the wide fluctuations in commodity prices. He added that even if such a currency were adopted by Great Britain and its dominions, it probably would not effect the gold standard of France and the United States.

Regarding the economic situation of this country, Dr. Friday asserted that the events which followed the Napoleonic and civil wars indicate that prices are in for a long period of repression, with advances at intervals.

Dr. Friday and other speakers, including Ralph P. Babcock of Jamaica, N. Y., advocated the liberalizing of the federal reserve regulations to permit the rediscounting of installment finance paper. It was asserted that in a recent petition to permit this is granted, about one billion dollars in additional credit will be made available. This would act as an immediate stimulus to business, it was stated.

Prove Their Strength.

Mr. Babcock said that the finance companies have proved their strength during the period of the depression, only two small firms being forced to suspend during the last two years. In both cases, he said, creditors are being paid in full.

It was pointed out that installment selling has decreased during the depression in the same ratio as cash purchases. One exception was the sale of mechanical refrigerators, which has moved upward despite the slump. The firms represented at the convention finance sales of automobiles, radios, farm machinery, industrial machinery, etc.

Should Aid Sales.

"The making of installment finance paper eligible for rediscount by the federal reserve banks will make available a huge amount of credit by the banks," Mr. Friday said. "This should stimulate retail sales. The paper in question has proved its liquidity. The banks have found that the closer you get to the purchaser the more liquid is your paper. Installment sales paper fulfills this point."

More than 800 executives from finance companies located all over the country are attending the convention, which closes today. The companies represented are said to have capital resources of approximately $400,000,000.

REALTY MEN'S PROTEST STIRS TAX SESSION

Speed Up Hearings to Forestall It.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 18.—[Special.] Opposition over plans of Cook county real estate owners to invade the state capital with an army of protest resulted today in a decision to speed up the work of the special session of the general assembly.

In secret session the steering committee of the house voted, 12 to 1, against the proposed "tax-payers' " demonstration by train, bus, by automobile, which the promoters predicted would bring 10,000 property owners to Springfield on Dec.

The steering committee decided that after the house recesses tomorrow it will reconvene next Monday and devote that day and the next two days to hearing the views of persons and organizations on pending legislation, but that after Wednesday—exactly one week before Dec. 2—no further public hearings will be granted, and the legislature will get down to business on its bills.

Realty Men Rebelled.

The decision of the meeting was reported on the floor in the form of a motion by John F. Devine, Democrat of Dixon, who condemned the proposed realty owners' demonstration, reading from what he called "inflammatory" circulars sent out by the promoters.

Apparently these circulars were sent to many members of the house. They were signed with the titles of the Chicago Real Estate board, Cook County Real Estate board, Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, the Taxpayers' Civic Forum, South Shore Real Estate board, the South Side Federation of Improvement Clubs.

"Unite for action!" was the appeal at the head of the big leaflet, other quotations from which follow:

"Organize to register the will and purpose of the 500,000 taxpayers in the members of the Illinois legislature. [They recognize voting strength if organized.]

Warning to Lawmakers.

"We propose to unite in an impressive demonstration before the governor and legislature to display our strength, will, and determination as the aroused taxpayers of this state for genuine tax relief.

"Hold your legislators responsible.

This was the high spot in a day of marking time on bills in order to grant public hearings. In both houses representatives of the governor's conference went ahead with their explanation of the bills proposed for the financial relief of the local governments of Cook county and the relief of real estate from some of its tax burden.

Meanwhile bills continued to pour into the legislative hopper, the number introduced in the two houses, with the duplications deducted, now approaching the 200 mark.

Assessors Fight for Jobs.

The new bills introduced include those prepared at the request of the Cook county board of assessors, which has been represented here this week by two of its members, John E. Cox and Walter L. W. Meyer, and five or six employes. The chief purpose of the delegation is to oppose the bill providing for the replacement of the present tax boards with an appointive assessor and two appointive reviewers.

Two board bills were introduced by John M. Lee and George A. Fitzgerald, both Chicago Democrats, and were marked "by request." One would make it a misdemeanor for a corporation or individual to fail to file a real estate or personal property schedule. Another would permit one citizen to file a complaint against another's personal property assessment. A third would authorize the board of assessors to publish the tax lists before they are turned over to the board of review. A fourth would authorize the imposition of fines upon corporations failing to pay their taxes, and would require them to file proof of payment with the secretary of state before renewing their licenses.

Two bills covering the same general field were introduced by Frank Thomas, Republican from Mount Vernon. The first would provide a penalty of
